Peace Movement in Erin Discussed in Dail Eireann

Richard Mulcahy Reviews Situation — Declares Rebel Leaders in Jail Were Treated Generously.

Dublin, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The present efforts toward peace in Ireland were the subject of discussion at Friday's session of the Dail Eireann, and Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense, was asked for information supplemental to what already had been known.

Reviewing the circumstances, the minister declared that Liam Deasy, when he broached the question of appealing to the irregulars in behalf of peace, was treated generously and allowed to communicate with Eamon de Valera and others through messengers.

When sufficient time had elapsed for receipt of replies, Mr. Mulcahy added, the government decided to publish the facts so as to prevent the leaders acting as a "kink in the hose" by concealing the situation from the rank and file.

Experts to Set Life of Overcoat

"Norm" of Garment Sought to Decide Legal Scrimmage in Court.

Judge George Holmes of municipal court will call in experts to determine the "norm" of an overcoat. The "norm" of anything is its period of usefulness, based on the average life of similar articles.

The case in point arose Saturday when Albert Edholm, prominent jeweler, and Charles Schimmel, proprietor of the Blackstone hotel, engaged in a legal scrimmage over disputed responsibility.

During June, 1921, while a guest at the Blackstone, Mr. Edholm alleged, he directed the hotel management to send two overcoats to a cleaning establishment. The garments were sent, in the name of another man, plaintiff alleged.
