

"Harlem Tommy" Fought So Often Without Verdict That He Muffed Title-Couldn't Go Distance.

It was in the New York no-decision nutches that "Harlem Tommy' Mur thy flourished. Born in 1885, his rec rd begins with 1903 and ends, so far as worthwhile performances go, in 1913. That 'record tells why this suberboxer never reached the peak-he was mentally and physically geared up to a 10-round no-decision contest. Possessed of every qualification titleholder requires, he mechanically and inevitably adjusted himself to the verdictless issue. When he stepped out of the 10-round game he won only nine bouts, and of these five were 12-round affairs in Boston. In the 11 years mentioned, he fought 130 battles, and in-84 of these no or knows today what happened. He knocked out 26 men, also in no-decision bouts, thus giving to 110 of his 30 fights the no-decision complex. Now in at least 70 of those 84 ur satisfactory encounters, Murphy probably received the favorable decisions of the majority of sporting writers present. How much better for his prestige and his box office drawing power if, instead of the exasperating. meaningless "No Dec.," he could have printed after his name the letter "W o show that he won. As to Murphy's abilities, he ha everything except the "will to win" the referee's verdict-and that was due solely to the fact that there was no referee's verdict. He was a terrific puncher, an extraordinary ring tactician, and his speed was bewildering. When Caesar paused in his career of 'decision" fights to praise it was deemed praise indeed. No greatertribute ever was paid to any boxer than the one bestowed on the Harlem

Murphy started down hill when he went to California to get into the 20-round game, just as "Knockout" Brown, Leach Cross and other graduates from the New York school did.
