

Armour to Begin Work on New Hog House Soon

Workingmen Waiting for Debris to Cool—Will Continue to Buy Stock as Usual, Says Manager.

According to Oakley C. Willis, general manager of the local plant of Armour & Co., work on the new hog house to take the place of the one destroyed by fire, will begin as soon as the debris of the burned building is cool enough for workmen to handle.

Robert C. Clark of the office of the architect-in-charge of Armour & Co., Chicago, arrived in Omaha yesterday to look over the situation and plan the new structure. C. R. Marquis of the Chicago office is still in Omaha and will confer with Mr. Clark.

"Armour & Co. have been on the hog market every day since the fire destroyed our hog house," said General Manager Willis, "and will continue to buy hogs as usual. Hogs purchased by the company are sent to Chicago and St. Louis. The company is rushing work in order to be able to resume handling hogs at the Omaha plant. All of the hams, bacon and cured meat in the plant were saved. The salt meats were destroyed. The cattle and sheep killing departments were not affected by the fire.

"The closest estimates put the total loss at $1,750,000, which includes the buildings and its contents. The loss increased daily until it reached that big total."

Many factories in Germany, formerly engaged in the manufacture of explosives are now busy making artificial silk.

Sheiks' and Shebas' Prestige Fades With Return of Waltz

The reign of sheiks and shebas on Omaha dance floors soon will cease. The waltz—the most graceful and artistic of all dances—is coming back. And with its return, the fox trot, the rage of the last few seasons, in which the cakewalk and his running mate, the wily vamp, ruled supreme, must go.

Waltzing is sweeping the east by storm and its popularity wave is rushing westward. The Trianon, million dollar dance palace of Chicago, which is the "style center" of western dance steps, has devoted one night a week to the waltz. Nothing but suitable music is played. The jerky, sometimes suggestive, steps of the fox trot, are barred.

Harry L. White, proprietor of Roseland, Omaha's dynasty of feet shuffling, halls with glee the triumphant return of the waltz, and starting Tuesday night, will have every third dance a waltz.

Alamito Meeting Halted by Court

Something of value for the stock in the Alamito company and assumed certain obligations to obtain it, despite the contention of Daniels that he had given only his note and paid nothing for the stock.

Judge Fitzgerald set February 27 as the date for a hearing to determine the ownership of this large block of stock. It is anticipated that Attorney Fitch also will argue at this time that the preferred stockholders in the company should not be permitted to vote at the annual meeting, although it was specified that they should in an amendment made at the state constitutional convention. He probably will base his claim on the theory that the amendment applies only to corporations formed after the amendment became effective.

Question Inadmissible. The defense in the Waterloo Creamery company case in federal court yesterday made an effort to bring in charges that one signature on the petition that threw the company into bankruptcy last year was forged.

It was during the examination of John Pavlish of Crete, aged retired farmer, with white hair and long gray side whiskers. The name, Joseph Pavlish, is signed to the petition. "I had a son, Joseph, who died three years ago," said the aged man. Judge Kennedy then held that the question was inadmissible. "More filing of that petition did not throw the company into bankruptcy," he said.

Mr. Pavlish said he repudiated all efforts of agents to sell him stock until a proposal was made that he loan the company some money. He said he thought the shares of stock were merely security for the loan. Altogether he put $16,000 into the stock. A. C. Fruge of Crete put more than $14,000 into the stock, having saved this from his years on the farm. "I'm working in town now as a day laborer to make a living," he said.

Farmers Tell of Investments. More stories of money in large amounts easily extracted from farmers were told yesterday afternoon at the trial of Leroy Corlies and 10 others charged with using the mails to defraud in promoting the Waterloo Creamery company.

Harry A. Smith, a young farmer of Early, Ia., testified he took 100 shares of the stock at $127.50, gave two notes for $13,750 and later paid the notes in full. He said H. F. Voight negotiated the deal, telling him the company was going to build a condensing plant at Storm Lake, near by, and that the stock had paid 7 to 11 per cent and would pay 15.

H. N. Rosers of Petersburg, Neb., said he bought 42 shares at $137.50 a share, the salesman telling him the company had $3,000,000 assets, only $300,000 liabilities and orders to keep it busy for five years.

Ship Bill Blocked by Filibuster in Senate

(Continued From Page One.) available records show that the longest continuous senate session occurred in 1915 on the ship bill then pending. The senate at that time stayed in session 54 hours, and the sitting was marked by the 11-hour address by Senator Smoot, an address of about 14 hours by Senator Jones, who is conducting the fight for the present ship bill, and a single speech of more than seven hours by Senator Gallinger, republican, New Hampshire, then 78 years of age. Senator Burton of Ohio, now a member of the house, in 1914 conducted successfully a filibuster against the rivers and harbors bill, occupying the floor 12 hours.

Senator Williams spoke about three-quarters of an hour early tonight and then Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, took up the burden during the dinner hour with a speech vigorously criticizing President Harding for

"wholesale dismissal" of bureau of engineering employees nearly a year ago. Senator Williams said that filibustering was justifiable in two situations: "To protect state rights and when an accidental, incidental, temporary majority tries to forestall the future and defeat the will of the people as expressed at the last election."

Attacks "Lame Ducks." The Mississippi senator referred to the "lame ducks" as "misrepresentatives" owing to their defeat, and said that everybody knew the shipping bill could not pass in the next congress.

Attacking the speech of Senator Underwood of Alabama, the democratic leader, in favor of the majority right to have a vote on the measure, Senator Williams said Mr. Underwood's position was "illogical and would lead to unethical results." Referring to the right of lame duck senators to vote, he declared: "It is unethical and immoral to put the legislation over." "It is treason to democracy. We should prevent it by every means within our power."

The cry of filibustering as hurled back at the republicans, by Senator Williams, who said that Senator Jones, in charge of the shipping bill "was the chief and head of the filibusters by denying other legislation that the people are in favor of."

This improved formula contains medical powders doctors prescribe to improve the complexion. In fact, this powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. This unusual powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Amé) Because La-may is pure and because it stays on so well it is used by millions of American women. All dealers carry the large box and many carry the generous thirty-five cent size.
