

Eleventh-Hour Nominations Are O. K'd by Senate

D. R. Crissinger Confirmed as Governor of Reserve Board - Warm Fight Over Minnesota Judgeship.

Washington, March 3.—The senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of D. R. Crissinger, of Marion, O., to be governor of the federal reserve board. He has been serving as comptroller of the currency.

The senate also confirmed the following: Representative Mondell of Wyoming, republican house leader, to be a director of the war finance corporation.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, to be director of the veterans' bureau. Representative Townner, republican, Iowa, to be governor of Porto Rico, succeeding E. Mont Riley.

McKenzie Moss, of Kentucky, to be assistant secretary of the treasury. Dwight Davis, of Missouri to be assistant secretary of war.

John D. Nagle, to be commissioner of immigration at San Francisco. Confirmations also included seven of the federal district judges nominated within the last week by the president.

They were F. C. Jacobs, for the district of Arizona; John F. McGee, for the district of Minnesota; William Bondy, for the southern district of New York; Paul Jones, for the northern district of Ohio; Harry M. Hoffheimer, for the southern district of Ohio; Kenophon Hicks, for the eastern and middle districts of Tennessee; and John G. Gore, for the middle district of Tennessee.

The nomination of McGee was confirmed after a spirited fight led by Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, and Senator Borah, republican, Idaho. Mr. McGee was chairman of the state public safety committee which started out proceeding against Senator La Follette during the war.

The promotion of many army officers, including the nomination of Brigadier General Hanson E. Ely, now commandant at the Fort Leavenworth army service school, to be a major general, also were confirmed, together with some scores of postmasters.

The vote on Judge McGee was 46 to 31, and was made public by the senate. The negative votes were cast by six republicans: Senators Brookhart, Iowa; Capper, Kansas; Johnson, California; La Follette, Wisconsin; Norbeck, South Dakota; and Norris, Nebraska, and five democrats: Jones, New York; King, Utah; Sheppard, Texas; Stanley, Kentucky; and Walsh, Massachusetts.

The personality of Judge McGee was said to have been the principal issue in the controversy, his opponents declaring he was a man of violent opinions and expressions and lacked necessary judicial temperament.

Thirty years ago China did not have one factory or mill, while today almost every type of modern industry is to be found in the republic.

A Queer World

Hobo and His "Flop" House Becoming Scarcer Than Fire Hoses; Bootleg Rum Killing Off 'Bums'

Chicago, March 3.—One startling effect of the curious combination of prohibition and moonshine booze is the swift passing of the old time hobo and the bread line, and along with him the notorious "flop," the hobo "hotels," where a vagrant could get a limited space on the floor for a nickel.

In five years, perhaps a little longer, the hobo and his "flop" will be as scarce as fire hoses, according to Rev. George A. Kilbey, former Salvation Army officer, now superintendent of the Christian Industrial league, which works extensively among the down and outs.

"The barrel house bum is passing swiftly," said Rev. Mr. Kilbey. "The deadly stuff purveyed by bootleggers and saloons is killing off the hobo in droves. The old crop of bums is thinning at an amazing rate and no new crop is coming on."

Former Omahans Visit City Built Over Fires

Next to Constantinople, Naples Most Beautifully Located European City, Believes Pastor Who, Accompanied by Wife, Scales Vesuvius and Another Volcanic Mountain.

By C. W. McANVILLE. Pastor of the Methodist church at Hastings, Neb., and former pastor of Hudson Park Methodist church in Omaha, who is touring Europe with his wife, this is one of a series of articles he has written for The Omaha Bee.

The good book tells us that "in the midst of life we are in death." Of no city and its surroundings could this be said with more literal truth than of Naples. It is a great city of more than 600,000 population, with scores of smaller towns and villages all about, all of them literally built over the fires of the nether world, and with the possibility any day of being the victims of a great earthquake or a mighty volcanic upheaval that would blot them out forever.

Possibly no city of Europe aside from Constantinople is so beautifully located as is Naples. On the north shore of the bay its feet are lapped by the blue waters of the Mediterranean. Its buildings reaching back to the crest of the hills, the city rises from the bay like a great amphitheater and forms a panorama whose exquisite setting cannot be excelled by any other city. To the east rises Vesuvius, solitary and awful in its grandeur, almost close enough, it seems, to reach out your hand and touch its base clothed in verdure of beautiful green, its summit mantled with snow gleaming like polished silver, its crater throwing out volumes of white smoke and vapor which hang over the mountain top like billowy clouds of the evening time.

Surrounded by Villages. Around the circle of the bay may be seen village after village—Massa, Sebastiano, Polliena, Trochia, Restina, Torre del Greco, Egnorin and Pozzuola, the place where Paul landed. By day these towns with their stone walls, their high towers, their domes and spires, glisten in the sunlight. At night they make a circle of sparkling lights, doubled by their reflection in the sea.

In the distance is the promontory of Sorrento, with its Cape Campanella dipping its peak into the blue water. The picturesque island of Capri rises like a sentinel keeping guard over the mouth of the bay, while just beyond is the hill of Posilipo, completing the magic circle.

This whole region is volcanic. Hills all around Naples are the remains of craters, as shown by their cone formation and by the lava rock and ashes that are everywhere. The houses are built of lava rock, the streets are paved with lava, the mortar is made from volcanic sand and ground pumice stone. Even the houses of ancient Herculaneum and Pompeii were built of lava rock and the streets paved with lava. Hot springs and mineral springs abound.

See Boiling Water. Two days ago we went to Pozzuola, the ancient Puteoli, to see what we could find of the old harbor where Paul landed when he came to Rome. After finding this we walked up to the crater of Solfatara. This is the one that in 1198 erupted and buried the entire city of Puteoli. Since then it has been more or less inactive. However, it again is beginning to show signs of greater activity. Securing our guide, we started out across the floor of the old crater. It is a level space probably 500 yards in diameter, most of it covered with a thin coating of light colored clay or ash.

We had not gone far until the guide led us to a small hole about four or five feet in diameter, down in which we could both hear and see water boiling. A little further on were large pools of boiling water on the surface. All about us were crevices where sulphur fumes and vapor were escaping. We were able to get within a few feet of the opening, and could see the boiling lava, black as pitch. However, as we saw the fumes rising all about us and felt the hot sand under our feet, we did not care to tarry long.

Curious Phenomenon. An experiment by the guide showed a very curious phenomenon. Near a large opening where vapor was pouring out he lighted some torches and passed them over the surface of the ground. Almost instantly, in a hundred places all about us, vapor appeared. And even more strangely, the volume of vapor coming from little fissures all about the volcano's crater, some of them over a quarter of a mile distant, was instantly doubled or quadrupled.

At one place a stamp of the foot sounded like striking a hollow barrel, showing that we were working on a very thin crust which probably was some distance above the raging fires beneath. In one small opening instead of boiling lava, hot sulphur fumes were forcing their way up through a mound of sand making it roll and boil like water.

For years it has been noted that whenever Vesuvius is very active, the volcano is very dormant, and when this is quite active, Vesuvius is comparatively quiet. This shows that these two volcanoes are but different vents for the one great mass of internal fire that reaches clear across Naples and this whole region from Vesuvius to Solfatara, and possibly much beyond.

Scale Vesuvius. Yesterday we went to the top of Vesuvius. The first part of the ascent was made by street car, the latter by a cable incline. Those landed us within a few hundred feet of the rim of the crater. Guides accompanied us as we followed the long snowy path to the top. Here most of the party stopped and viewed the crater from a distance. But a young man from Indiana and myself, with our guides, ventured down a few hundred feet inside the old crater walls, trying to get near enough to take some photographs of the newly forming crater and the streams of red hot lava that were flowing across the thin surface of the old crater.

The rumble and roar of the boiling lava could be heard for a great distance. The new crater is a lava cone about 225 feet high. It is a little to one side of the center of the floor of the old crater, which is a level area of cooled lava covering many acres. Across a crater floor the boiling lava beneath. From the opening at the top of the cone we could see pieces of lava and rock constantly being thrown up into the air, some of them black, some red hot and some almost white hot. Some of the stones must have been thrown 50 or 100 feet. Some fell back into the crater to be hurled out again by the pent-up fires and gasses within, some fell out on the sides and helped to build up the new cone.

Grotesque Scene. Near the foot of this cone was a crack or opening out of which flowed great streams of burning lava. The floor of the old crater shows that it was once boiling lava. It is covered now with sulphur and other mineral substances which give it a greenish yellow cast. Across a crater floor great wriggling streams of boiling, seething red and white hot lava slowly flowed, until they looked like the outstretched arms of a huge octopus. To add to its gruesomeness, one could see from the sides of these longer streams little arms of the lava slowly wriggling out in every direction.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salt at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have pneumonia when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
