SILK

A NIMMENSE Silk Fair held in the Grand Central Palace in New York City has just closed.

A nation-wide display is set for the present week, to be known throughout the land as Silk Week. The romance of Silk is a history of the world. It measures the luxury of any given age.

Modern ingenuity and manufacturing genius has made available to masses of people what was once the privilege of princesses, namely, the ability to possess the treasured textures and works of art in color and design.

The Oriental predominates in pattern this season, but many rare weaves are shown that only the Occident could produce.

"The shimmer and sheen of the silken thread radiates happiness."

Our showing is marvelous. Give yourself the pleasure of looking it over this week. Courteous assistance will be cheerfully given you for your information or fur-

Oriental Silks

Unusual combinations and daring patterns are shown in a riot of rich colors in beautifully woven and printed designs of Egyptian, Indian, Persian and Chinese art, on Crepe de Chines, Cantons, Roshanara Crepes and similar fabrics. These silks are used for dresses, blouses, combinations and trimmings. Printed crepes in the smaller patterns on both light and dark grounds are exceedingly popular for the afternoon frock. IN the designing department of America's greatest washable I dress factory there is a woman of ideas and ideals.

To her, more than a million women give thanks for adorable dresses, positive in their perfect fitting of all types of figures and containing marvelous features that provide long-wanted comforts, conveniences and greater service.

She is the woman who designed and originated the Famous Barmon fected a method for ad justing the size of a dress and placed this great feature in Barmon Dresses to insure every woman of being perfectly fitted. cealed tabs at the back of the dress makes this

To meet the requirements of tall women and to guard against any possible shrinkage, she de-vised an adjustable hem and placed it on the skirt of every Barmon Dress. To lengthen the skirt you merely pull a chain stitch-ing which releases a con-cealed 2-inch tuck. No restitching is necessary.

She knew that all dresses show first signs of wear and service beneath the arms, and to overcome this she designed the under-arm shields and had them tailored into all Barmon Dresses. Thus did she practically double the life of frocks at these points. How often it happens that accidental rip, tear or stain spoils a dress and makes it unfit for sightly service. To offset this she has placed in Barmon Dresses two pieces of dress material for mending purposes always ready to use in making neat repairs.

home, for porch and for

Surely you will want dresses having such wonderful features and especially so when they can be had at tiny costs, not one bit more than you must pay for ordinary dresses lacking these aids to sure fitting and comfort.

And they are dresses of endearing style---smart and saucy---glorious in their colors---with decorations of unique beauty---all developed in the best of washable fabrics.

If You Relish Gossip Send for this FREE little book: "What Mrs. Smith Told Mrs. Brown, Over the Back Fence." With it we will send you the Barmon "Promenade of Fashions", showing many new models and naming the store, in your town, where Barmon Dresses can be seen and purchased.
