

Nomination of James G. McNary Given to Senate

Banking Committee Favorably Reports Selection for Post of Comptroller of Currency.

Washington, March 3.—The administration plan for American participation in the international court organized by the League of Nations was finally put on the shelf for this session of congress by the senate today when it voted 49 to 24 against proceeding with consideration of the resolution of Senator King, democrat of Utah, proposing to grant the president the necessary authority.

Washington, March 3.—The contested nomination of James G. McNary of New Mexico to be comptroller of the currency, was reported favorably today by the senate banking committee. A minority report, criticizing severely Mr. McNary's administration as president of the El Paso, Tex., First National bank, based upon the evidence of bank examiners and others in the committee's recent extensive investigation was prepared by Senators Couzens, republican, Michigan, and Hitchcock, democrat, Nebraska. Senator Couzens also prepared a personal statement detailing his reasons for opposing Mr. McNary's confirmation.

Excessive loans from the El Paso bank to Mr. McNary and other bank officers; "speculative" banking, especially in Mexican currency, and payment of large dividends without reducing doubtful loans, were said to be the principal counts in the minority report.

Washington, March 3.—An investigation during the recess of congress into the gold and silver industry, was ordered today by the senate. A commission of five was created to conduct the inquiry.

Lesser Bills Up.

Washington, March 3.—Its major tasks all but completed, the 67th congress found time in its closing hours today to take up many of the lesser bills and resolutions such as usually die unnoticed amid the hurry and confusion of a session's final windup.

From the opening of the last day's work in both senate and house discussion of legislative "chicken feed" was the order of business with many members seeking, and in many cases, finding an opportunity to get a vote on this or that private or local measure which they never looked or hoped to bring to the stage of action.

A Formality.

The only bill of first magnitude to which attention had to be given during the day was the farm credit measure as finally agreed to last night by senate and house conferees. Acceptance of the conference report by the senate and house themselves was more or less of a formality.

In the Hopper.

Dozens of bills and hundreds of nominations were in today's legislative hopper, but most of the 14,000 on the calendars were doomed, their loss conceded and no efforts at resuscitation planned.

The Gamest Woman I Know

By O. O. MINTIRE.

For three years she laid in a cheerless room in St. Vincent's hospital, New York, encased in a plaster cast. The only thing she could look at was a tarnished chandelier.

During all those torturing hours not a whimper passed her lips. Doctors from everywhere doomed her to permanent invalidism, but not once has her courage faltered, nor has she recited her lullaby of woe.

Now the fight has been won and Nellie Revell is able to be wheeled out into the flooding sunshine of the hospital yard. It was there that I found her the other day.

I think Irvin Cobb said a strikingly true thing when he called her, "the gamest guy I know."

Here is a woman who had risen to the top of her profession as a journalist and a theatrical press agent. She had a bank president's salary, drove to work in a limousine and was one of the most beloved women of Broadway, and then—

Candle at Both Ends.

One day she found that she was literally working herself to death. The candle had been burning at both ends and there was a sudden collapse.

Diagnosticians stood over her and shook their heads. Nellie Revell, in the argot of Broadway, was "through."

She would never walk again, may never leave her lonely hospital cot. She heard all this. They thought it more merciful to tell her.

So she went to St. Vincent's and began the dreary round of lagging hours with suffering that would, in most instances, crush the heart of hope and dumb the voice of courage.

Instead of submitting to hopeless invalidism, she decided that she would fight. In the long watches of the night she thought, not of herself, but of thousands of others in all farflung corners of the globe.

To "Aunt Nellie," as her friends knew her, no one is licked. And she has proved it with herself. On a little pad she laboriously wrote her daily message. It was printed here and there and then picked up and reprinted by others.

Mail came to her from far off Nome, the African veldt and the borders of Sahara. From the bed of pain went personal letters begging them all to keep up the fight. "It's worth while," she wrote.

Savings Swept Away.

Her own private savings had been swept away, but she began to rebuild it with her pencil. She has, aside from her newspaper and magazine writings, written a book of her experiences which is shortly to be published.

Not long ago her eyesight failed, and then she was kept in a room of inky darkness, yet when friends came to call, she made them laugh. Another time, her heart fluttered feebly and medicals saw the end. But she sent them away laughing, too.

She has Polyanthias, she is not a devotee of Coue, or any other cult orism. She merely has supreme faith in herself and her Maker.

A visit to her hospital room is like a visit to a gallery of celebrities. One may perhaps meet there Irvin Cobb, Norma Talmadge, Rev. Beach, Ethel Barrymore, Joe Davidson, Harrison Fisher and Jackie Coogan.

School Vice Quiz Placed on Skids

Police Morals Squad Head Agrees Not to Appear Before Board.

Sergt. Frank Williams of the police morals squad said Saturday that after a conference with W. E. Reed, president of the board of education, he decided that he would not appear before the school board to speak on the subject of high school students buying liquor.

"After Mr. Reed and I discussed the situation, he said he believed it would be good policy for me not to appear before the school board," said Sergeant Williams.

"Mr. Reed expressed the belief that our department has been and is doing all we can do to suppress this practice of some of the high school youngsters. I do not believe that Central High school is affected in the same manner as Technical High school on Leavenworth street.

"Of course, recent publicity on the subject has put a quietus on the situation."

French Advance Into Mannheim

Purely Fiscal Operation, Foreign Office Announces at Paris.

Mayence, March 3.—(AP)—French troops today advanced outside the Mayence bridgehead and occupied additional small sections of German territory.

Three railroad repair shops were occupied by the French troops at Darmstadt, which is just on the rim of the bridgehead.

The ports of Mannheim and Karlsruhe, respectively 40 miles and 70 miles to the south of Mayence, further up the Rhine, also were occupied. (Karlsruhe is not immediately on the Rhine, lying about six miles to the east. The little town of Maxau, on the Rhine, where other reports say the French crossed the river, is opposite Karlsruhe and in the Karlsruhe fiscal district.)

According to information here, these ports were occupied because of cases of sabotage on the railroads and canals in the Rhineland and the Ruhr.

excitement, so that she might forget herself." She has sat as a high goddess in her little theater of tragedy and diverted the world with laughter.

It is a human thing to enter the sickroom on tiptoe and speak in hushed whispers but only once does one do that at Nellie Revell's.

She snaps you out of that attitude, and if you don't watch yourself, you will be pouring out your troubles to her. One does not feel that here is a woman who has unnumbered times faced the accumulated troubles of the world, but, rather, one of the active doers.

There is a dynamic vitality about her that is contagious. She has sent countless away from her bedside to do bigger and better things. It may be the variety actor with the cinnamon colored Fedor and the patter of the Broadway curbs, or it may be the phlegmatic scientist of ponderous mien.

With one sweep she strikes all octaves of human emotions. She can well say with Henley, "I am the captain of my soul."

For many months she found joy, she who had been in the swirl of furious life, in watching a building across the street raise its walls skyward, brick by brick. She saw in it a lesson for the human builders of character. And she wrote columns and columns of hopeful philosophy about it.

"People came from miles and miles to see a building undergoing the ordinary processes of construction and went away with nobler thoughts.

Perhaps it may sound a bit slangy, but if you know Nellie Revell you'll understand. It seems to me that now that she has been saved to continue her useful activities it would be a fitting epitaph at Nellie Revell's "Final curtain to write: "A Game Guy." (Copyright, 1923.)

Dr. Hubert Work Says Goodbye to Postal Workers

Washington, March 3.—In a farewell message, Dr. Hubert Work, postmaster general who relinquishes the position of head of the postal service Monday morning, to Senator Harry New of Indiana, said goodbye today to the 329,000 postal workers throughout the country.

"From the little girl who printed her thanks for 'bringing my Christmas doll to me,' to the manager of the great mail order house, I have found friends.

"During the two years of our contact, not one discourtesy nor 'disloyalty' has marred the pleasure of our association. The public has noted our attitude toward this government service, has approved it, and I leave you with the keenest regret."
