Corn was strong and a ready sale was unchanged to 1-2c higher. Oats and barley nominally unchanged.

There was rather prominent selling of wheat following the opening of the Chicago market by eastern interests, but on the dip resting orders to buy stopped the decline and prices soared an advance.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 10.—While grain values averaged higher trade was not large and with profit-taking and week end evening up, the advance lost before the close.

Grain markets showed a much firmer undertone the past week, and while the best prices were not maintained there was considerable change in sentiment toward the closing days.

Financial

New York, March 10.—The downward reaction of prices on the Stock Exchange, which began last Tuesday after several days of conflicting movements, continued today.

The pace of decline was moderate, but it perhaps attracted more attention because it did not follow the usual tradition of a week end reversal of the prevalent speculative movement of the week.

There were advances as well as declines in today's market, but the net declines were greatly in the majority, most of them, however, being fractional.

Surveying as a whole the loss thus far incurred from the high prices of the season, which, as a rule, were reached early in the present month, it will be seen that the change is not sweeping.

Reaction of 4 or 5 points when the previous advance in this year alone had been 10 or 15, is not particularly discouraging.

The attitude of Wall street towards the lowering of prices is more striking than the decline itself.

Resources Absorbed: To judge by the task current in commission houses last week, one might have expected a rather active movement in the stock market.

Times of continuously increasing trade activity, is a perpetual and regular feature of the market.

Never pursued such a course; if it did, we should have weekly or monthly upsurges in the market.

Cotton Prices Decline: The decline in prices of 1 1/2c on Wednesday to 30 1/2c on Friday and Saturday morning, no doubt, a natural reaction from the week's advance.

Reaction from the week's advance in prices mostly a big nickel higher over the week, with a few exceptions.

Good quality hogs and butchers sold largely at $7.00 to $7.50.

Sheep—Receipts, 1,000 head. Fat lambs have been in liberal supply again this week and the market on most days has been quiet.
