

Feeders Tell of Best Methods for Fattening Stock Shippers to Omaha Market Pleased With Results—Box Car Shortage Hurts West Point Growers.

A load of choice Poland China hogs was brought to the stock yards yesterday by G. E. Grunke of West Point, who said there would have been more shipping from that locality if it had not been for the scarcity of cars.

Feeders are howling for cars to ship their live stock to market, said Mr. Grunke "but the railroads have been pretty slow in furnishing them and for that reason there was very little stock shipped from West Point last week. There would be a large number of cattle and hogs shipped if we could only get the cars."

The hogs Mr. Grunke brought in yesterday averaged 200 pounds and sold for $7.70 a hundred.

Lambs Fed on Mixture. According to A. L. Glasscock of Timnath, Colo., who was on the local market yesterday with a shipment of 461 head of lambs, averaging 88 pounds that he sold for $14.25 a hundred lambs in his section are pretty well cleaned out.

"I have been feeding my lambs on a ration of alfalfa, corn and beet pulp and have noticed great gains in weight. Some of the sheep raisers on short of the own-raised feed and had to pay as high as 90 cents a bushel for corn and $15 a ton for hay."

A load of well-finished steers, good enough to bring $8.50 a hundred was brought to the stock yards yesterday by Louis Kedura of Lehigh.

Mr. Kedura said he bought the cattle on the local market last fall as feeders and that in 140 days they made a gain of 220 pounds on a ration of ground ear corn and alfalfa. There were 20 head of cattle brought in by Mr. Kedura and they averaged 1,116 pounds.

Clover Hay for Calves. Three loads of cattle were brought to the local stock yards yesterday, two of which were those of Otto Evans and the other W. V. Mease, both of Broken Bow.

Mr. Mease said he made a specialty of feeding and raising young calves for market and had found that a ration of shelled corn and clover hay was the best for fattening purposes.

A shipment of three loads of well-finished Hereford steers was sold on the local market yesterday by W. L. Japp of Kearney, who received the highest price paid for cattle on the market, the price being $9.10 a hundred.

"For the first time in my many years of cattle feeding I tried feeding ground corn," said Mr. Japp, "and I have very gratifying results. The gains in weight were probably no larger than if I had fed shelled ground corn, but it did not cost me so much, as I made a good saving on hay."

Stock Being Shipped. "On account of the high price of corn, which is selling at 70 cents a bushel all the stock in my section is being shipped to market," said A. A. McKim, who came to the stock yards yesterday with 62 head of choice Duroc Jersey hogs that averaged 300 pounds for which he received $7.50 a hundred, just a nickel below the top price of the day.

Axel Ericson came in from Craig yesterday with a load of nicely-finished steers and he said the farmers in his section had shipped their live stock out this year or are fattening rapidly.

"There is quite a scarcity of corn and not nearly as much this year as there was last," said Mr. Ericson. "Most of our grain has been used in the feed lots and very little has been sold to elevators."

9,000,000 Persons in Germany Receive Aid. Berlin, March 12.—(AP)—Nine million persons in Germany are receiving government aid, according to a statement made by Food Minister Luther before the budget committee of the reichstag. Three million of these are without incomes worth mentioning, the minister said.

According to Heer Luther, the food situation is much more serious than prior to the war, not only on account of the smaller production, but because of lower earnings of the workmen. The milk supply is especially bad in large cities and prices are prohibitively high for many persons.

Regarding the occupied area, the food minister said the supplies of flour and grain were sufficient for many weeks, and that the government had taken steps to provide fats, bacon and lard.

Oil Gusher in Arkansas Is Threatened by Fire. Eldorado Ark., March 12.—Fear is expressed that the big Burton gusher in section 28, 20 miles to the north of here, which blew connections off this morning, will catch fire. The master valve was torn from the casing by the pressure and the derrick has been blown from over the hole.

It is hoped that the well will sand itself over of its own accord. Unless this occurs thousands of barrels of oil will be wasted before engineers can design means of capping the gusher.

It is feared the well will ignite itself by the friction caused from sand and crude oil coming out of the casing under such pressure.
