Veto of Grain Rate Increase Forecast

Attorney for Omaha Exchange Returns From Commerce Commission Hearing.

J. A. Kuhn, attorney for the Omaha Grain exchange, has returned from Washington where on Wednesday and Thursday oral arguments were heard by the Interstate Commerce commission in the complaint of the Kansas City Board of Trade that there is discrimination between wheat rates between Kansas City and Duluth and the like rates between Omaha and Duluth.

"Early in 1920 rates on grain from Omaha and all points in Nebraska to Duluth were the same as were rates to Chicago," explained Mr. Kuhn. "In the latter part of 1921 Kansas City demanded the same rates to Duluth as applied from Omaha and Nebraska points to Duluth."

"The examiner for the Interstate Commerce commission held that Kansas City should take the usual arbitrary rate of 1 cent over the Omaha rate, but to arrive at a basis he declared that rates from Omaha and Nebraska points to Duluth should be advanced 5 1/2 cents per 100 pounds. This would automatically have had the effect of closing the Duluth gateway to all Nebraska grain."

"The Omaha Grain exchange protested vigorously to such an advance, and we can feel reasonably sure, I believe, that the commission will not order such an increase."

Truck Insurance Rates Reduced 10 to 15 Per Cent

Post-War Deflation and Safety Campaigns Are Held Responsible for Decrease.

While the war deflation and numerous campaigns carried on successfully by traffic safety committees throughout the country for the prevention of automobile accidents are great factors in the lowering of insurance casualty rates on commercial trucks, cars, according to J. B. Dumont, vice chairman of the insurance committee of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, decreases in this insurance ranges from 10 to 15 per cent lower than the rates charged last year.

According to information given out to local insurance companies, rate reductions were also influenced by the decrease in loss per car for last year as compared to the preceding year. The reduction will mean a saving of more than $2,000,000 to commercial car users.

While the rates for commercial cars were almost universally reduced, rates governing the insurance on private cars remains about the same, as regards public liability and property damage rates. Since the stock casualty companies have made it a practice to reduce the rates for automobile accidents and their attendant losses are reduced, the failure to reduce the insurance rates indicates that unlike the motor truck owners, the owners of pleasure cars have made practically no improvement in their accident experience.

The private car owner, however, will share with the truck owner in a reduction of approximately 25 per cent in the rate for collision insurance which applies in practically every territory.

ONE OF OURS

By WILLA CATHER. (Continued from Yesterday) didn't do he went down to O street and sent her a box of the reddest roses he could find. In his pocket was the little note she had written to thank him.

It was beginning to grow dark when Claude reached the farm. While Ralph stopped to put away the car, he walked on alone to the house. He never came back without emotion, try as he would to pass lightly over these departures and returns which were all in the day's work. When he came up the hill like this, toward the tall house with its lighted windows, something always clunged at his heart. He both loved and hated to come home. He was always disappointed, and yet he always felt the rightness of returning to his own place. Even when it broke his spirit and humbled his pride, he felt it was right that he should be there.

Approaching the door, Claude stopped a moment and peered in at the kitchen window. The table was set for supper, and Mahaley was at the stove, stirring something in a big iron pot; commed mush, probably—she often made it for herself now that her teeth had begun to fail. He stood looking over, emboldened by the pot with one arm, and with the other she beat the stiff contents, nodding her head in time to the rotary movement. Mahaley's emotions surged up in Claude. He went in quickly and gave her a bearish hug.

Her face wrinkled up in the foolish grin he knew so well. "Lor, how you scared me, Mr. Claude! A little more'n I'd 'a had my mush all over the floor. You lookin' fine, you nice boy."

He knew Mahaley was glad to see him come home than any one except his mother. Hearing Mrs. Wheeler's wandering, uncertain steps in the kitchen doorway, he opened the door and ran halfway up to meet her, putting his arm about her with the almost painful tenderness he always felt, but seldom, when he tried to show. She reached up both hands and stroked his hair for a moment, laughing as one does to a little boy, and telling him she believed it was redder every time he came back.

"Have we got all the corn in, mother?" "No, Claude, we haven't. You know we're always behindhand. It's been fine, open weather for husking, too. But at least we've got rid of that miserably Jerry; so there's something to be thankful for. He had one his fits of temper in town one day, when he was hitching up to come home, and Leonard Dawson saw him beat one of our horses with the neck-ropes. Leonard told your father, and spoke his mind, and your father discharged Jerry. If you or Ralph had told him, he most likely wouldn't have done anything about it. But I guess all fathers are the same." She chuckled confidently, leaning on Claude's arm as they descended the stairs.

"I guess so. Did he hurt the horse much? What one was it?" "The little black, Pompey. I believe he is rather a mean horse. The men said one of the bones over the eye was broken, but he would probably come round all right."

"Pompey isn't mean; he's nervous. All the horses hated Jerry, and they had good reason to." Claude jerked his shoulder to shake off disgusting recollections of this mongrel man which flashed back into his mind. He had seen things happen in the barn that he positively couldn't tell his father.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid Is Cause of Indigestion. A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices.

He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation; then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad salts, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salt is used by thousands of stomach sufferers with excellent results.
