tiful, sweet and low, and it speaks in the French tongue." Claude flattered himself that he had kept all personal feeling out of the paper; that a few examinations to sit through that the Cornell current will be in at the Temple, a few more evenings with the Erdichs, trips to the library to carry back the books he had been using,—and then he would suddenly find himself with nothing to do but take the train for Frankfort.

He rose with a sigh and began to fasten his history papers between covers. Glancing out of the window he decided that he would walk into town and carry his thesis, which was
