

EXCLUSIVE? OH, MY, YES!—This old mansion is now used to quarter the bachelor officers of the 17th infantry at Fort Omaha. According to legend at the post, it was once the quarters of General Crook.

YOUTH, BEAUTY AND SUCCESS—Only 17 years old is Catharine Stoneburn, dancer and soloist, who is called "The Gold Girl of the Folies." Her father is a well-known New York advertising man.

FAMOUS VIOLINIST TO PLAY HERE—Fritz Kreisler, who will appear at the Auditorium March 23, under the auspices of the Tuesday Musical club.

A FEW NEW TIMBERS, A LITTLE PAINT FRESTO CHANGO—A good example of reclamation by the building tradesman. Just a few years ago this building housed a fire station and became so dilapidated the city decided to abandon it. Now it's a first-class hotel building. The location is Eighteenth and Harney.

PRECIOUS AS GOLD—Thoroughbred Dursey Jersey hogs owned by S. M. Sonder of North Platte. To him each one of these animals is like a jewel. That's what his banker says, too.

LATEST RADIO WRINKLE—Fold it up and you have an ornament for your parlor. Open it up and you'll hear greetings from New York, Atlanta, Havana and points east, or, perhaps, west. Oh, yes, the cost is only $400.

A COLONIAL MAID—Little Kola Mae Lieben shows how the girls of George Washington's time appeared on their party days.
