yesterday as a result of the blizzard that has held Nebraska in its grip for 24 hours. The Union Pacific Railroad company reported it was running about half of its westbound trains and a smaller number of trains toward the east. The Northwestern and Rock Island lines have discontinued all trains. Huge snow drifts block right-of-ways and trains 'are sald to be stalled at a dozen points east and west of Omaha.

The light snow, driven by a gale packed into cuts in an impenetratable mass. Engines, unfastened from cars they were pulling, plunged futilly into the drifts. Rotary snow plows, the only thing that affect the hardpacked drifts, are working without stop in an effort to return the train schedule to normal, but so far have made little progress.
