

Additional Code Bills Are Placed Before Senate

Appointment of Secretaries by Governor Included in Reed Measure—House Bills Are Passed.

Lincoln, March 19.—(Special)—Two more code measures were thrown into the legislative grid today in the senate this afternoon.

One, senate file 2, introduced by Senator Perry Reed, was written by the committee on miscellaneous subjects, of which Senator Hastings is chairman.

The bill provided the governor may appoint constitutional officers as code secretaries as follows: Governor, finance; lieutenant governor, department of agriculture; secretary of state, department of labor; state treasurer, department of trade and commerce; state superintendent, department of public welfare; commissioner of lands and buildings, department of public works.

Appointments Optional.

It leaves with the governor the option of appointing secretaries who are not constitutional officers to act as code secretaries. It provides they shall only draw one salary, which is $5,000, except in the case of the governor, who received $7,500. The lieutenant governor is to receive $2,500 additional compensation, making $4,100 in all.

The second bill provides for code secretaries and leaves confirmation up to both branches of the legislature. The senate killed McCowan's bill providing that the state fire marshal should approve all electric wiring, after the Omaha and Lincoln delegations had protested and asked their constituency be exempted from the provisions of the bill.

Four Bills Passed.

These four bills were passed:

House roll 59, known as the Yankton bridge bill. It authorizes $100,000 state aid for interstate bridge on petition of five counties.

House roll 341, with emergency, permitting farmers on Kinkaid avenue homesteads to build gates and auto crossings.

House roll 2, muskrat bill, changes open season to November 1 from February 15, except on muskrats, mink and foxes, when it is from November 25 to March 1.

House roll 5, the beaver bill, allows

Fairacres Isolated From City by Huge Snow Drifts

Caterpillar Tractors Battering Road Through White Barrier Which Nearly Took Toll of Life When Autos Stalled During Storm.

Like a besieged city, Fairacres looked down from its Dodge street heights Monday morning while caterpillar tractors, much like war tanks, battered at snowdrifts separating the wealthy district from Omaha.

All the "king's" trucks, and all the king's sleds, previously had failed to make an impression on the Dodge street drift, which isolated Fairacres Saturday night and just failed to take a toll of life Sunday; but counted to its credit frozen hands, eyes and ears.

George Brandeis of J. L. Brandeis & Sons, first found the drift of snow an impassable barrier. He and Mrs. Brandeis, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Judson, tried to drive to their home Saturday night and lost their car in the attempt. They walked part of the way back to Hotel Fontenelle in evening dress.

After Mr. Brandeis sent to the Brandeis stores for "lumbermen's" again at 10 Sunday. A big truck was called into service and manned with five men. A sled with four horses drove up to the Fontenelle and took the gowned and full-dressed ladies aboard. The caravan reached Fifty-second street and had to abandon efforts to plunge through. Horses floundered in the snowbanks and the truck stalled.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Roberts and daughter, Elizabeth, got caught with their car in a drift at Sixty-second and Dodge Saturday night and spent three hours there before they were rescued by police.

Bessie Wisson, 22, a maid in the Adolph G. Storz home, soon afterward was caught in another car. On her sixth attempt she battled her way through the snow to the home of the Roberts.

Three policemen were unable to reach the Roberts' car and seven more were sent to help. They worked in field their way to the Roberts', reaching them three hours after the party had become stalled. The Roberts were so cold they scarcely knew help had arrived.

Patrolman J. F. Jensen carried Mrs. Roberts out on his back, and Patrolman Frank Freeman carried Elizabeth similarly. Mr. Roberts, supported by Patrolmen Ernest Fee and William Conley, walked out.

Both of Mr. Roberts' feet were frozen. Heine Bozen, motorcycle officer, suffered the freezing of his right hand; both eyes of R. H. MacDonald, patrolman, were frozen, and P. F. Payne, emergency officer, was frostitten on the cheeks and ears.

Mrs. Roberts and Elizabeth are at the Fontenelle awaiting the opening of the road and Mr. Roberts returned to work Monday morning.

Making the best of their situation, Mr. and Mrs. Brandeis gave a party at the Fontenelle Sunday night and had Mr. and Mrs. Judson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Head, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dalley and Edward Moore as guests.

Evening clothes were discarded Monday morning by the Brandeis after Murry Scott, a gardener at their Fairacres estate, made his way to the hotel by way of Elmwood park, taking their street clothes with him.

"If the road is not opened, Fairacres immediately will begin to suffer," Mr. Brandeis said Monday morning. "Many of the houses need oil for furnaces and the supply is dangerously low."

Bellboy Captured After Third-Story Window Leap

When Detective Franks and Motorcycle Officer Haley went to the Clairmont inn at 4 a. m. Monday to arrest Otto Rose, former "bellhop," on a charge of burglary, he leaped from a third-story window into a snowdrift, clad only in pajamas, and died. He was captured by Haley.

Officers went to arrest Rose on the strength of a statement by Joe O'Donnell, 2011 Arbor street, captured as he was leaving Stahmer Bros' grocery at 2702 South Twentieth street with three other men, who escaped. One of them, O'Donnell said, was Rose. He gave the names of the others as Clarence Kenney, 2910 South Seventeenth street, and Harold Wages, 1248 South Sixteenth street.

Prison Feeding Bill Is Opposed by Omaha Pastors

Senator Larkin Charges Ministers Base Support of Endres Method on Misrepresented Facts.

Lincoln, March 19.—(Special)—Omaha ministers are beseeching legislators to kill the Chambers-Larkin bill which would take the alleged $10,000 made annually by Sheriff Endres outside of his salary for feeding prisoners and place this money in the hands of the taxpayers. Following is a copy of the letters being received:

"We have reason to believe that the movement to deprive the present sheriff of any income from feeding the prisoners is fostered by enemies he has made by his publicly avowed purpose to enforce the law against existing crime."

Senator John L. Larkin of Omaha, one of the introducers of the bill, charged tonight that the signatures of ministers of Omaha had been obtained by a woman stenographer in the sheriff's office, through misrepresentation of facts.

The senator asserted that the ministers did not realize that the bill in no way crippled law enforcement in Douglas county and merely was an attempt to save an overburdened county of thousands of dollars.

"I have been informed by two ministers who fairly understood my bill and who refused to sign the letter, that the facts had been misrepresented," said Senator Larkin. "It is utterly unfair for Sheriff Endres to appeal to a nontaxpaying body, such as the ministers of Omaha, on a proposition which is not moral and which is of concern to the taxpayers of the county only."

"Not one of these ministers is subject to taxation under the law because their parsonages are exempt and I know that if they realized that it was a taxation issue and not a moral issue, they would never have affixed their signatures to the letter."

Ministers signing the letter are: E. Sinne, St. Mary Magdalene Catholic church; E. P. Jenks, First Presbyterian church; Arthur Atack, Hanscom Park Methodist church; William M. Franklin, Baptist church; Edgar Merrill Brown, Deits Memorial church; P. C. Gannon, St. Patrick Catholic church; Ezra Duncan, superintendent Baptist city mission work; G. A. Schlich, Congregational church; A. H. Delorme, First Baptist church; Charles Muggan, chaplain St. Joseph hospital; Howard Whitcomb, Calvary Baptist church; J. L. Beebe, Evangelical church;

Osborne Gives Orders on Bank Tax Payments

Lincoln, March 19.—(Special)—County clerks are warned not to accept partial payment of taxes from banks or make refunds of taxes already paid in a circular letter sent out today by State Tax Commissioner W. H. Osborne.

The supreme court recently held state banks should be taxed at the intangible property rate, as the federal supreme court had ruled national banks should be taxed on this basis. Congress then passed a law permitting the states to tax banks on the same basis as other property, and Attorney General Spillman has a motion pending in the supreme court for a rehearing in the state bank case.

If the state finally wins, taxes aggregating three-quarters of a million will have to be paid by the banks.

Rockefeller Gets Rare Tapestries

Famous Relics Turned Over to Oil Magnate by Customs Authorities.

New York, March 19.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today gained possession of the six famous fifteenth century tapestries, "Hunting for the Unicorn," which he bought from Count Gabriel D. La Rochefoucauld at a price somewhere between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. The tapestries had been held up by customs authorities while the internal revenue department investigated to determine whether a tax could be collected from their American seller. They were released when the revenue men determined that the sale was consummated in London.

Mr. Rockefeller had been exempted from a customs duty, there being no provision for duty on such art treasures.

Mr. Rockefeller issued a statement today explaining the transaction.

"I bought the tapestries in London," he said. "I was unable to make the purchase in this country because the seller refused to sell the tapestries here. The price I offered to pay for the tapestries in this country was precisely the price that I paid for them when the sale was made in London. I in no way benefited, directly or indirectly, by the fact that the sale was made in London and not here."
