

Kreisler Has High Opinion of Omaha Boy

Virtuoso Sees Much Talent in Sammy Carmell and Tells Him Hard Study Is Way to Success.

Sammy Carmell, the boy violinist of Omaha, was received cordially by Fritz Kreisler, the famed Austrian artist, in Hotel Fontenelle Friday afternoon. Speaking of the boy with the committee that had introduced him, Sol Goldstrom, Hugo Heyn and E. B. Goodman, members of the society for the development of musical talent in this state, the virtuoso said:

"The boy has talent, exceptional talent. I base my judgment not on his technique alone, but he shows vigor, strength, rhythmic power, and the look in his eyes is one of seriousness."

Speaking directly to young Carmell, Kreisler said: "My boy, don't believe you have more talent than others. But you have met the opportunity that you now have. You must not get the idea that you are above the rest, or you will never succeed."

Herr Kreisler gave full credit for development of the boy's artistry to his teacher, Miss Emily Cleve, and to her untiring efforts to train him for the best endeavor. He praised the work of the state society in fostering the musical genius found in Nebraska.

Hugo Heyn, sales manager of the Mickel Bros. company, said that Herr Kreisler appeared to be very much interested in Sammy and recommended that he be sent to New York as soon as possible to study under Franz Kneisel, whom he considers the greatest teacher in this country.

Attorney Martin Cleared from Lion Bonding Case

Edward M. Martin, attorney, living in Fairacres, was ordered dismissed from the Lion Bonding company case in federal court by United States Attorney Kinsler Friday.

"A very thorough investigation has shown us that Mr. Martin had nothing whatsoever to do with the crimes we are charging against the defendants in the Lion Bonding case," said Mr. Kinsler. "On the contrary, he opposed these things and finally resigned from his position as director. A bill sent in by him after the company was in a receiver's hands for services rendered was the only thing connecting him in any way with it and these services, we believe, were for advice against doing the things for which the officers are being prosecuted."

Beet Growers Divided on Price for Crop

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Scottsbluff, Neb., March 23.—Three hundred and fifty farmers, members of the Co-operative Beet Growers' association, voted here, by a plurality, to sustain the board of directors of the association in its demands upon the Great Western Sugar company for a 1923 contract guaranteeing $6 a ton minimum for beets, and providing for a sliding scale division of the profits that it would pay the farmer 45 per cent of the sugar obtained. Almost as many farmers were in favor of demanding half the sugar as the lesser demand, while a fifth of those voted declared for accepting the company's contract.

It was developed at the meeting that if the association fails in its demands for a better contract that beets would be planted, but it was indicated that the acreage would possibly be reduced over that of last year.

Frank Thomas, president of the association, presided and the principal talks were made by William Morrow, A. C. Jarvis of Sterling, Caya, J. F. Ray of Minatare and J. T. Whitehead of Mitchell.
