Burden of Vast Amount of Bullion May Fail to Be Economic Blessing for Nation.

New York, March 30 .- Financial experts estimate that approximately 55 per cent of the world's gold supply is in America at the present time, about $4,000,000,000.

London, March 30 .- That a great stock of gold is a real danger to a country instead of being a security is the belief of Sir Josiah Stamp, foremost British economist, who framed the economic clauses of the treaty of Versailles.

"Now that the greatest assemblage of gold that the world has ever seen has been deposited in the vaults of New York," says Sir Josiah, "farseeing men and women on both sides of the Atlantic are beginning to realize a remarkable economic paradox.

Gold Not Food.

"The United States government today possesses nearly half the total supply of the world's gold, according to the latest report of the comptroller of currency. This does not necessar ily mean that America is better clothed, or housed, or fed than we in Britain. You cannot eat gold.

"This gold must either be kept inof the country to purchase goods.

"But there is an even more insidious danger-that the possession of this quantity of gold may lead the federal reserve board largely to inflate cur-When the bullion is unloaded in harbor it is carried to the vaults for safekeeping, and then it remains in reserve. "Supposing the percentage of reserve under normal conditions in America to be 40 per cent, this means that for every $100 of purchasing power and credit in circula tion she has $40 in gold wherewith to back it. But today, owing to the enormous quantity of gold, her re-serve is approaching double that figure, and she is rapidly reaching the point where every dollar of purchasing power on the continent could be replaced by gold of its face value.

Prices Might Rise. the danger is dormant. But if, when an improvement occurs in trade, business men seek large increases in credit, the federal reserve board may be tempted to lower this reserve ratio so as to give them all that their ambitious programs may require. "They might think to themselves 'It would not do any harm to let the reserve down by 5 points' and inflate the note issue accordingly.

"This may have much the same effect as if there were a government press printing paper marks.

"Let us suppose that they succumb to the suggestion. Credit becomes more plentiful because the ratio reserve is lowered. More paper dollars are available, so that prices rise, with the result that a dollar note no longer buys the old quantity of goods. Inflation sets in, with the subsequent nemesis.

Perils to Be Avoided.

"Workmen demand higher wages, and strikes come, with their inevitable consequences of economic deadlock and the subsequent collapse of in-

"Thus the undulations of industry ere made more severe, whereas the desire of everyone is to introduce a greater stability in trading conditions over the passage of years.

"What we want to do is to avoid the severity of trade cycles, for every spasm of artificial influence leads further away from the desired object. Every burst of inflation raises many new social difficulties, and just as we are getting into the comparatively level waters after the rough seas of the war we naturally dread new disturbances which may arise in this

"We can only hope that the banking authorities in the United States realize the responsibility they have to the world in the way in which they handle their gold problem."
