

New President of Grain Growers Visits in Omaha

Harry L. Keefe of Walthill Says Policy Will Be to Co-Ordinate Existing Forces.

Harry L. Keefe of Walthill, Neb., who was elected president of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., at Chicago, visited here a few hours yesterday on his way home. Mr. Keefe explained that it will be the policy of his organization to co-operate the existing forces. "At a meeting of the board of directors of the United States Grain Growers in Chicago, arrangements were made for the ultimate establishment of grain agencies at the several principal terminal markets, the details of which have not been completed," President Keefe stated.

Confer With Wheat Growers. "The representatives of the United States Grain Growers met in Kansas City yesterday in conference with the American Wheat Growers' association, Inc., which is a body composed of the several state organizations of wheat growers throughout the wheat belt. Recommendations were made for the mutual organization of selling agencies, the business to be kept separate, but it was recommended to secure storage facilities jointly. The wheat growers operate by states. The recommendations also provided that the wheat growers should devote their principal efforts to the marketing of wheat in their organized territories. The United States Grain Growers should devote their efforts to the marketing of other grains and also wheat in the territory not organized by the wheat growers. Other mutual co-operative detailed arrangements were recommended.

Emphasize United Pool. "The wheat growers are operating very successfully and emphasize the 100 per cent pool and believe that they have been able to assist in stabilizing the markets. They also believe that they have made a substantial saving for their members. The United States Grain Growers have not yet operated. They made applications through one of their auxiliary departments for seats on the several grain exchanges which have not been granted, and they are planning to proceed in direct marketing, which is buying and selling without proceeding through the exchanges at this time.

Life on Equator Club Talk Topic
Business men of Quito, capital of Ecuador, are sticklers for form. They appear during the morning hours in silk hats, swallow-tail coats and striped trousers; during the afternoon they don business suits, play bridge from 5 to 7, and then dress for dinner. Thomas W. Patterson, who represents an American firm at Guayaquil, Ecuador, told members of the Continental club yesterday noon at Hotel Fontenelle some interesting facts about life on the equator. Mr. Patterson, en route to Japan, is visiting Roy Ralph. "During the first four months of the year we have rain most of the time. The humidity is so high that even shoes are damp," Mr. Patterson said. "During the other months the climate is dry. The natives are surprisingly strong and many of them thrive on parched corn and water. They can carry 75 to 100 pounds on their backs all day. Making Panama hats is quite an industry. The more children a man has, the more hats he will sell. There are large families. "When I arrived at Guayaquil four years ago last February, Captain Davis of the boat warned me of yellow fever, which killed nearly every white person who was stricken. American science, however, discovered that the fever was spread by a house mosquito which was successfully combated. "Snakes 20 feet long and wildcats are among the dangers which the traveler in Ecuador may encounter," Mr. Patterson said. "The natives sell large quantities of cocoa beans and another bean from which buttons are made. Americans operate the railroads."

High School Clubs Fail to Act on Resignations
The club members of Central High school did not hold their meeting yesterday afternoon, as was expected, according to rumors. The first suggestion was to meet to consider the action of a group of visitors who met last Monday afternoon when eight voted to resign from all school clubs, on the grounds that these organizations are inimical to the best interests of the school. It is now believed that the incident is closed.
