

Colonial Stock Used to Buy Auto

Witness Says Mrs. Sunderland Didn't Want Husband to Know.

Mrs. Ralph Sunderland, wife of one of the defendants in the Colonial Timber case in federal court, hurried from her seat with the spectators Tuesday to reach the side of David Fitch, one of the attorneys for the defendants to aid him in questioning a witness.

Mrs. Sunderland prompted Attorney Fitch with a firm voice that carried across the courtroom. Attorneys, representing thousands of dollars in fees, smiled as she fired question after question to Fitch.

Carl Changstrom, head of the Westcott Motor company, was the witness. He testified that he accepted 25 shares of Guaranty Security company stock as part payment in the sale of an automobile.

"Mrs. Sunderland purchased the car," he testified. "She said she had 25 shares of the stock and wanted to turn them over to me without the knowledge of her husband. She said the stock was very valuable."

Mr. Changstrom testified that he saw Mr. Sunderland and concluded the deal.

There was a twitter in the courtroom when Changstrom testified Sunderland told him the stock would pay 10 per cent and was worth more than $150 a share.

"Did the stock ever pay you a dividend?" asked Special Prosecutor Dorsey.

"No," replied Changstrom. "I have the stock and Mrs. Sunderland has the car."

Volumes of minutes of the Timber company and the Guaranty Security company were read by District Attorney Kinsler and Dorsey in order to show the connections between the two companies and in order to show how promotion was started before the company had any titles to the West Virginia land.

Woman Struck by Auto Dies of Injuries She Sustained

Women Deplore Wage Decision

Topic Takes Precedent Over Regular Business at Voters' League Meet in Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., April 11.—Women leaders of the nation, meeting in their second day of the fourth annual convention of the National League of Women Voters, relegated to secondary place the business of the league and discussed the sweeping decision of the United States supreme court of the minimum wage law in the District of Columbia was unconstitutional.

Mary Anderson, chief of the women's bureau of the Department of Labor, was pessimistic as to the "future progress of the country in the light of reactionary decisions of the supreme court."

"This decision," she said, "marks the return of America to those days when girls were working for $3 a week."

"Only one remedy presents itself," said Miss Alice K. McFarland, director of the women's work under the Kansas court of industrial relations, "and that is that women organize into trade unions."

"The action of the supreme court is a calamity. It will increase strikes and industrial unrest. Low wages will increase immorality and retard progress."

Escaped Asylum Inmate Picked Up by Salesman

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Fremont, Neb., April 10.—Charles Voss, 45, escaped inmate from the state asylum at Norfolk, is safe in the hands of local officials, awaiting representatives of the institution to escort him back to that city. Voss was picked up by a traveling salesman while he was walking into Fremont.

On the way into town, Voss' conversation drifted into so many different channels without warning that the salesman became suspicious. He turned Voss over to the police when they arrived in the city. The latter explained that he was bound to meet his daughter, who was coming from Chicago by airplane. The reunion, he said, was to be held in the city park. Further questioning revealed that he belonged to the state hospital at Norfolk.

Flyer Talks for Army Airplanes

Major Tinker Emphasizes Value of Air Service in Peace and War.

"America and the world at large does not seem to appreciate the full value of the air service," said Maj. C. L. Tinker, sixteenth observation squadron, Fort Riley, Kan., before the Nebraska Reserve Officers' association in Hotel Rome. Other officers of the squadron who arrived via airplane Tuesday were Capt. Thomas Boland and Lieut. "Bob" Nowland. Nearly 150 guests attended the monthly meeting, the one for April being under the supervision of the air service. Lieut. Walter Johnson was chairman and

"Pete" Jolly was in charge of the sporting events.

"Even with the awakening of people during the war," declared the major, "there are still vast fields of future possibilities for the air service which have not been explored. The full value of the airplane as an instrument of liaison, communication observation and offensive and defensive warfare has but begun to be imagined."

The Keno four entertained with several selections and Roscoe (Doc) Conklin's orchestra furnished the melody for the evening. Beryl Burton and Sarah McGowan offered numerous songs and steps.

A cock fight, with each opponent wearing boxing gloves, was introduced and a badger-bulldog battle would have been staged had not "Pete" Jolly unthinkingly substituted a large flower pot in the badger's box.

Clair Mulvihill, as an Italian flying officer, recounted some humorous war incidents in dialect.
