

Harding Opposed on Court Plan

Dissention in Ranks of Own Party Develops Over Policy.

(Copyright, 1923.)
Washington, April 12.—The lines of opposition to President Harding's international court proposal within his own party were drawn tighter today.

While republican senators of the regular school, like Watson, of Indiana, were sounding warnings against the political consequences of pressing the court issue, Senator William E. Borah, republican, Idaho, made a reply to Herbert Hoover in which he asserted that the league court "like the whole international field" is to be governed by political forces, and not an impartial code of justice.

For this reason, the Idaho senator declared, he is opposed to the league court. At the same time he announced his intention of conducting a fight for a "real court"—one in which international law is codified and justice may be dispensed unhampered by the political prejudices of the countries involved.

The league court, like other arbitration tribunals set up in the past, Senator Borah asserted, will be rendered impotent "by the intrigue and politics of Europe."

Disagrees With Hoover.
"I agree entirely with Mr. Hoover as to what he says an international court should be," said Borah. "I only disagree with him as to what the league is."

"Mr. Hoover says: 'The international court is to deal in a judicial way with questions which arise under international treaties and under established international law; to provide a place where judgment may be given on the merits of a great multitude of questions for the settlements of which there has been no process, except negotiations or their reference to arbitration.'"

"That is precisely what I would like to see—an international court to deal in a judicial way with questions arising under international treaties and under established international law. That is the kind of a court which I proposed in my resolution. What I contended for was: first, the codification of international law. You cannot have a court unless you have a code of laws under which it is to act and under the sanction of which it is to make decisions.

No Court Without Law.
"You can no more have a court without law than you can have life without air. But the present court has no jurisdiction, except by consent of the parties. In other words, it cannot construe international treaties or international law unless the parties see fit to submit a question in a way of arbitration.

"This court cannot acquire jurisdiction, except by consent of the parties, which, of course, makes it a court of arbitration and places control of the court and of all questions relative to the court under the direction and control of the political influences of the different governments.

Three Ministers Officiate at Funeral of John B. Long

John Long, like Barnabas of early Christian faith, was a good man, full of holy spirit and of faith," said Rev. J. R. Perkins at funeral services for John B. Long, pioneer Council Bluffs merchant, Wednesday afternoon at the home, 515 East Pierce street.
Members of the Rotary club attended the services in a body, as well as a large number of his friends and former coworkers in the many civic and business activities in which he was engaged. Three ministers officiated, Dr. Perkins of the Rotary club, Rev. W. E. Mann, chaplain of the Elks lodge, and Rev. J. F. Catlin, pastor of the First Baptist church.
Pallbearers were George Hamilton, George Nicoll, E. H. Doolittle, Joe W. Smith, James G. Bradley and O. H. Brown. Walter Jenkins sang, accompanied by Mrs. E. R. Beattie. Burial was in Fairview cemetery.

Photos Confirm Einstein Theory

Pictures of Eclipse of Sun Taken in Australia Herald as Triumph.

San Jose, Cal., April 12.—Dr. Albert Einstein's theory of relativity is confirmed by results deduced from photographs of the eclipse of the sun taken at Wallal, on the northwest coast of Australia, September 21, 1922, by the W. H. Crocker eclipse expedition from the Lick observatory, University of California, according to a statement issued by Dr. W. W. Campbell, director of the observatory, who headed the expedition.

"These results are in exact accord with the requirements of the Einstein theory," Dr. Campbell's statement said. "The agreement with Einstein's prediction from the theory of relativity, 1.75 seconds of arc is as close as the most ardent proponent of that theory could hope for."
"In fact, the agreement of our observed data with the predicted value is so satisfactory that the Lick observatory does not plan to repeat the Einstein test at the solar eclipse due to occur in extreme southwestern California and in Mexico on September 19, 1923."
