

Two Suspects With "Blue Car" Now in Custody

St. Joseph Authorities Arrest Pair Alleged to Have Participated in Dundee Holdup.

Pete Nelson, former proprietor of Saddle Creek Tavern, and Arthur Stout, sought by police for more than a week in connection with the "blue car" bandit raids, were captured yesterday morning in a St. Joseph, Mo., rooming house, according to telegraphic advice to Omaha police.

The capture was effected on information furnished St. Joseph police by Police Capt. Jack Pisanowski. Pisanowski gleaned his information from Roy Smith, held in default of $20,000 bond, and docketed it with data obtained from a post card found in the Nelson home.

Arthur Stout formerly was a teacher at the American Business college, 1912 Farnam street. He is married and has a child in high school. Employees at the college identified a piece of cloth torn from the pocket of one of the bandits in the scuffle with Nels Anderson at Seventy-second and Dodge streets following the holdup as being part of a suit worn by Stout.

Motorcycle Officer Cleghorn was suspended for five days for losing the cloth and a piece of jewelry which was attached to it. Later he found the piece of cloth.

"I would rather have lost two months' pay than lose that piece of cloth," said Cleghorn.

St. Joseph police stated that the two men when arrested had in their possession an automobile stolen from Joe Wagner of Kansas City. It was identified as "the car used in the Omaha holdup."

Stout was in Omaha police court in 1919, when he was brought back from Springfield, Ill., on a charge of auto theft.

Detectives Trapp and Munch recently went on Stout's bond in order to enable him to get a job. They said at that time they believed him to be honest.

Defendant Freed in Fraud Trial

Simple Plea of Colonial Stock Salesman, Conducting Own Case, Effects Release.

James G. Cloud of Omaha, one of the two defendants in the Colonial Timber and Coal corporation case, who is conducting his own case, won his discharge yesterday morning. Cloud was a salesman of Colonial stock and bonds. He made his own motion to be dismissed and in a few terse words, devoid of legal verbiage, told Judge Woodrough why he considered himself innocent.

"The motion in regard to Mr. Cloud is sustained. He is dismissed," said Judge Woodrough. Cloud was overcome with joy as he left the court room.

The long, loud and legal arguments of the attorneys for Thomas H. Maters, Willard V. Mathews, Ralph Sunderland, Walter L. Stickle and others availed nothing. Judge Woodrough held these and the other defendants.

The presentation of government evidence has taken nearly five weeks. The defense will begin presenting evidence Monday.
