

British to Fight U.S. Dry Edict

Steamship Companies Meet to Oppose Ruling—Daugherty Plans Vigorous Drive.

London, May 2.—British trans-Atlantic steamer lines, backed by all the companies on the continent, will fight the dry ruling of the United States supreme court to a finish. Directors of the White Star, the Cunard, and other British lines met in Liverpool today to consider what action can be taken to nullify the effects of the decision.

Washington, May 2.—Vigorous enforcement of the supreme court decision which prohibits liquor on all ships within American waters was promised by Attorney General Daugherty today.

He declared that at the end of 20 days, when the court mandate becomes effective, the government will have set up the machinery to keep liquor away from the United States. In a formal statement, the attorney general declared that he is gratified that the supreme court has so carefully and clearly decided the contested questions that have been causing great controversy.

Decision Is Helpful. Mr. Daugherty said that the decision is particularly helpful in interpreting "transportation" and "importation." He says it is no longer necessary to transport for hire, but merely to carry liquor from one point to another. On importation, the mere crossing of the international boundary is sufficient. This he contends will stop British ships running within the three-mile limit when going from the Bahamas to Canada.

The government is frankly baffled, it was stated, and must move with great caution in the face of domestic and international issues that never before have been presented. While the treasury worked out a means of guaranteeing that liquor on sovereign or American ships is dumped when United States waters are reached, the Department of Justice made a careful study of the legal aspects of the decision and just how far the government can proceed.

Problems for Solution. These problems are presented for solution: 1. If the government is forced to operate the shipping board vessels, will the president defy the Antislavery league and lift the ban on liquor? 2. Will the law permit embassies to receive liquor shipments as in the past? 3. How to find means of satisfying foreign governments whose laws require that liquor be kept on board ships even in foreign ports.

4. What can be done to combat the rum-smuggling fleet, the operation of which is legalized outside the three-mile limit? 5. What legislation will be required to adjust the situation when congress meets?

Lincoln Woman, Widow of Alleged Robber, Is Quizzed. Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.

Lincoln, May 2.—Mrs. Harry Edmondson, wife of the Lincoln man who was recently slain by Pasadena police following an alleged daylight robbery, returned to Lincoln Sunday and yesterday was subjected to questioning by local police.

She was quizzed about Edmondson's alleged transactions while he was in Lincoln. At the time of Edmondson's death Pasadena police claim to have found a large quantity of jewelry in Mrs. Edmondson's possession. Later a fur coat which she had identified as the property of a Lincoln woman and had been returned to the owner.

Search for Lincoln's Body Proves Futile

Warren J. Lincoln, a distant relative of Abraham Lincoln, martyred president, and son of a Nebraska woman, was murdered, according to Aurora (Ill.) police. Search for his body has proved futile.

Aurora, Ill., May 2.—Search for Warren J. Lincoln, former attorney and prominent nursery man, whose absence was discovered Monday, went forward today, with the authorities working on two theories, slaying and kidnaping.

Crimson smears found in Lincoln's bugalow, on an Indian club and on his night shirt, dragged from a well a short distance for the house, officers said, have been analyzed by a chemist as those of human blood. The finding of four chickens in a pen with their throats slashed caused authorities to doubt that the stains were from human blood.

While the search for Lincoln's body in underbrush and woods along the Fox river continued unabated, authorities continued in their attempts to locate Mrs. Lina Lincoln, the missing man's estranged wife, and Byron Shoup, her brother.

Lincoln, it was learned last night, had filed a praecipe in a $10,000 damage suit against his brother-in-law.

REEL REMARKS

By the M. P. Editor

Garnier has announced his latest to follow "Rich Men's Wives," "Poor Men's Wives" and "Daughters of the Rich." It's to be entitled "Daughters of the Poor." There ought to be plenty of girls to give him advice.

Buster Keaton declares that his nine-month-old baby can recognize his dad on the screen and howls loudly for more of Keaton when the show ends. Maybe he's going to be an exhibitor. Buster, and thinks these comedies will get the money.

Orville Caldwell has been declared by no less an authority than Elinor Glyn as "the screen's most perfect man." The only mean remark that we think of is that everyone doesn't work in the movies.

Father Testifies for Son Arrested for Nonsupport. When George Neal appeared in municipal court yesterday to answer a complaint filed by his wife of failure to contribute to the support of their daughter, Esther, 2, he scarcely appeared to understand the judge's admonitions.

He was bound over to district court for examination by an alienist.

William Neal, his father, testified that his son was injured in 1921 while working as a car repairer for the Missouri Pacific railroad, and declared that his wife at that time signed a statement that her husband was unable to work any longer.

Mrs. Neal returned with her daughter to the home of her father, John Nelson, 2014 North Twentieth street.
