

Unified Action in Marketing Is Conference Plan

Grain Growers, Farm Bureau and Wheat Growers Pass Resolution on Terminal System.

Lincoln, May 6.—A forward stride toward unified action in terminal marketing of Nebraska grain was taken at a conference of representatives of the United States Grain Growers, the wheat growers and the Nebraska Farm Bureau, resulting in adoption of a resolution to be presented to the respective national organizations for ratification, according to a statement made public by H. D. Lute, secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau.

of mutual benefit, before the opening of the grain marketing season of 1923, between United States grain growers and the Nebraska Wheat Growers' association, and any other purely farmers' co-operative organization interested in the co-operative marketing of farmers' grain in the Omaha trade territory, for the purpose of co-ordinating and consolidating the marketing of grain for the best interests of the members of the organizations so joining.

That joint storage space be contracted for in sufficient amount to provide for in sufficient amount to grain.

That upon the adoption of these recommendations by the board of directors of the United States grain growers and the American Wheat Growers' association, the United States grain growers shall recommend to its members the privilege of the Nebraska wheat growers' pool, and that so long as the Nebraska Wheat Growers' association provides a wheat pool, sufficient to satisfy the co-operative marketing necessities of the farmers of Nebraska, and the Omaha trade territory, that the United States grain growers make no effort to pool wheat.

Lice and Mites Destroy Young Chicks in Spring

Parasites Suck Blood From Poultry and Make Bird Less Resistant to Disease.

"Thousands of dollars worth of young poultry is destroyed each spring because of lice and mites, for birds infested with these parasites cannot make normal growth," says Clara M. Suter, extension specialist in poultry. The parasites suck the blood from the chick, thus causing loss of vitality which makes the bird less resistant to disease.

The head louse causes much trouble in all kinds of young poultry and should be carefully watched. It rarely goes below the neck, or neck feathers, but goes to the eye and nose for moisture. It lays its eggs on the small feathers around the eyes and under the bill.

Poultry Owners Unite Two Clubs

Fillmore County Finds Duplication in Two Organizations and Unites.

Geneva, Neb., May 6.—Consolidation of Fillmore county's two poultry associations has been effected. After several years of attempting to function separately, hold two poultry shows and conduct other business as two organizations, the members of both organizations decided that their efforts were being lost in duplication.

The officers and directors of both associations resigned, leaving the two associations automatically dissolved. A temporary organization was formed with T. W. Drummond of Fairmont as chairman and Dr. J. M. S. Chesler as secretary. The new organization is known as the Fillmore County Poultry and Pet Stock association.

One of the outstanding features of the new organization's constitution is a clause which provides that the annual show of the association shall be held each year in a different town. No one town in the county is to have

Wisconsin Test Is Interesting

Dairy Association Report Shows 40 Unprofitable Cows Sold for Beef.

The selling of 41 cows for dairy purposes and the sending to the butcher block of 40 unprofitable cows are high points in the annual report of the Mt. Hope-Fennimore Cow Testing association report. Interesting facts about the work of this association which was founded in 1914 have been compiled by Elaine G. Paulson, tester for the association.

In summarizing the activities for 1922 he reports: Twenty-four members completed the full year's work; 40 unprofitable cows were sold for beef; 41 cows were sold for dairy purposes; 22 cows were purchased; eight bulls were purchased and 14 sold. Every member uses a purebred sire. Each member has a silo. Seven members installed individual drinking cups; 15 members have electric lights; 13 members have modern barn equipment. Seven herds are tuberculin tested. Five members were induced

The reason for presenting the subject of noteworthy incidents in the progress of the United States, Mr. Webster said, was the desire to show people what the government was in the beginning, how it weathered the storm of infancy and internal dissension and how it strives today to preserve its unity.
