

Harding May Drop Plans for Return Trip by Railway

President Considering Making Journey From Alaska by Water—Would Add Some Time to Itinerary.

By Universal Service.
Washington, May 9.—Indications became stronger today that President Harding may abandon the contemplated swing back across the continent on his return from Alaska and make the homeward voyage all the way by water.

It is known that some of his political advisers have urged that he adopt this plan. Secretary of the Navy Denby also has joined in pressing the suggestion. Secretary Denby has assured the president on two visits to the White House that he could have one of the new light cruisers, either the Detroit or the Omaha, ready to bring him back.

Should the president determine to come back by water he would make only about 10 speeches going west. The points at which it is practically certain he will speak, although no definite program as yet has been worked out, are St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka or Des Moines, Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland. It also is expected that he will stop at Seattle on the way back from Alaska.

The all-water voyage home would add two or three weeks to the length of the president's absence from Washington, depending upon the number of stops he would make. Secretary Denby wants him to visit the Panama canal zone, the Virgin Islands and Porto Rico. This itinerary would keep him on American territory throughout.

Under the tentative plans for the trip, the start from Washington would be made between June 20 and 25. The Fourth of July would be spent in Portland, sailing the next day for Alaska.

Rotarians Hear Pastor's Address on Pastion Play

Rev. George A. Miller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who returned from Europe, addressed the Omaha Rotary club at Hotel Fontaine Wednesday noon on the Pastion play, which he witnessed at Oberammergau.

Dexter Bush reported that $16,000 has been reported to date in the Boy Scout drive which the club is conducting.

Dr. C. E. Atzen presided.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI.

The Tired Child.

Children do not know when to stop. Impelled by an almost boundless energy, they keep on with the job they are interested in until exhaustion overtakes them and they begin to cry. Then it is difficult to manage them.

"Ma-ma, ma-ma, hoo-hoo-hoo. Ma-ma!"

"What is it?"

"Ma-ma, ma-a-a."

"What is it? What ails you? What do you want?"

"Ma-a-a."

"Now you stop this right away. Come in and have your face washed and get ready for supper. Not another whimper out of you now. I've got no time. Stop. I tell you!"

That's just a tired child and a distracted mother who has made no allowance for this performance in her day's schedule. Now she is confronted by it at the busiest hour of the day, just before the evening meal.

If she provides against this "will" hour by ensuring the child's energy, things will be easier. He should be called from his play before he is worn out; sometimes 15 minutes before the last minute he can stay, sometimes longer, depending on the child.

Of course he will protest loudly and in all likelihood raise his voice in lamentation, but the tone will be one of lusty opposition and not the wail of fatigue. He will know what he wants and tell it to the world.

Make him come right along and get himself freshened up for his supper. He will soon get the habit of having a quiet period before his meal and in any case he will be easier to handle. At least he will come when he is called and submit with what grace he can muster.

I doubt that any child ever leaves his play willingly. Even when he is so tired that he staggers on his feet, he will keep on until strength falls him utterly and the tears come. That must not happen.

When he comes in so tired as that, he is in no condition to be talked to and yet he seems to demand much speech. Much speech!

And he is in no condition to be fed.

If he is too tired to digest his food and if he eats it more trouble is due everybody concerned. A child suffering with indigestion at the end of the day's work is about the last straw!

So if the mother is busy (and motherhood is synonymous with busyness) it would be well to set the alarm clock to call the youngsters in from play before fatigue catches them.

Save a quarter of an hour for straightening them out and then go on from there. It would eliminate that awful "Ma-a-a," that note of misery that finds its echo in so many households toward evening.

Husband Charged With Threatening to Kill Wife

Claude Summers was arrested by police yesterday when they found him battering away at the door of the residence where his wife was staying with her brother, C. E. Halbert, 3529 Thirty-eighth street. Mrs. Summers complained to police that her husband threatened to kill her.

Chinese Official Inspects River Protection Work Here

The river protection work in East Omaha was examined yesterday by M. T. Yu, representative of the Chinese government, who is making a tour of this country, examining river engineering projects.

Mr. Yu refused to comment on the bandit captures in China.

All Homes on One Side of Street in Block Raided

When federal agents raided the home of S. Cocco, 1317 Pacific street, yesterday they completed the toll of houses on the south side of Pacific street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

Cocco was charged with illegal possession of liquor.

One of Omaha's most interesting scenes was the funeral of Claude Tannhauser, a young man who had been killed in the war. The funeral was held at the First Presbyterian church, and the casket was borne to the cemetery by a military band.

Claude Tannhauser was a member of the Omaha High school football team, and had been a member of the Omaha Athletic club. He was a very popular young man, and his death was a great loss to his family and to the community.

The funeral was held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. The casket was borne to the cemetery by a military band, and was interred in the Tannhauser family vault.

The Boomerang of "Cheapness"

Buy once, and wisely.

Automatic water heater satisfaction comes only to those who look beyond the price. To buy because a price is lower is to invite the boomerang that inevitably appears in the form of repair bills and intermittent, unsatisfactory service.

An automatic gas water heater is a serious purchase. It performs a vital service; it should be a permanent part of your household equipment; it is a quality appliance through and through, built for a perfect and uninterrupted year-after-year service.

For over a quarter century Ruud Automatic Gas Water Heaters have established their Quality in every part of the world. They have stood for a solid responsibility to the user. Their makers have understood that there is an obligation to be discharged to the user which starts on the date of purchase instead of ending there.

Buy once and wisely. Buy Ruud.

Neptune Varnish

Hangs On Like a Bulldog

It almost seems as if Neptune Varnish must have teeth, the way it bites into a floor and holds on like a bulldog. It hangs on and hangs on, long, long after other varnishes have given up. You get wear out of it, simply because Lowe Brothers' Varnish Experts put wear into it. It gives your floor a rich gloss that stands water, soap or ammonia. Won't turn white.
