Personals

Due to illness with a wisdom tooth, Miss Helen Condon is home from her school at Ward Belmont.

Mrs. E. R. Houghton returned to Omaha Tuesday after spending the winter on the Pacific coast.

Miss Adele Cullen leaves this evening for an extended visit in New York and Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Louis arrive Friday from Europe, where they sailed on February 29 with Mr. and Mrs. E. John Brandeis, who are now in Africa.

George Brandeis leaves this evening for Chicago where he will join Mrs. Brandeis. From Chicago they will motor to French Lick Springs, Ind., and to Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. J. Earl Haney of Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived this morning with her small daughter, Betty Jean, to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Irving Allison. Many affairs are being planned in her honor.

Miss Marguerite Helm of Sioux City arrives Friday to be the guest of Mrs. C. R. Tyler and to attend the Junior League Revue. Miss Helm's interest in the show is doubled because she herself was a member of the cast for the Sioux City Revue last year.

Canteen Company Reorganizes for Emergencies.

Members of company A, American Red Cross reserves, formed an advance class in first aid at a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Lucy Updike. The class will hold its first meeting Monday morning, 10:30 o'clock at the Conant hotel, Capt. G. R. G. Fisher will be the instructor.

In accordance with a request from the national Red Cross headquarters Mrs. L. J. Healey and Mrs. F. W. Carmichael of the national board will reorganize a standing canteen company of 40, which will be subject to call in an emergency. This group will include members of company A, of which Mrs. Healey is captain, and volunteers from the other companies. Company A is better organized than the others as it is the only company which has held together since the closing of the regular work. The company has been serving for charitable organizations at the homes of members.

For Hastings Guests.

Dr. and Mrs. J. B. McPherson of Hastings, who arrived on Monday from London, with their five children, were entertained at luncheon today at the Athletic club by H. B. Waldron. Thursday evening Mrs. Ella Lynch, sister of Dr. McPherson, will give a dinner of 15 covers in their honor and Friday Mrs. Cass Bean will be hostess at dinner.

Miss Sargent Visits.

Miss Janet Sargent of Kansas City, who was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. W. J. Foye, last summer, will be the week-end guest of Miss Eleanor Burkley for the Junior League Revue. Miss Vernelle Head, who is at the Head summer home in St. Joseph, Mo., will also return to Omaha for the Revue.

pecker and Mrs. Drummer were just like other bird babies. No sooner were they all fed than all began crying for more. Drummer and Mrs. Drummer were kept busy from daylight to dark hunting for food for them.

Then Chatterer slowly went all around the tree at the lower edge of that band of tin.

no time in which to show his pride. He had even forgot to worry about Chatterer the Red Squirrel. His one thought was of food. My, how he did sleep nights! It was just the same with Mrs. Drummer. Both were so tired when night came that they were asleep the instant they had settled down.

Then one morning as Drummer was flying over to the maple tree with food for those crying babies he saw something that made his heart almost stand still. What he saw was Chatterer the Red Squirrel making straight for that maple tree! "Oh, dear," thought Drummer. "Oh, dear me! Now one of us will have to be on guard all the time, and how ever will those babies get enough to eat?"

He hurried on and found Mrs. Drummer just coming out of the doorway. He told her what he had seen, and together they waited. They didn't have long to wait. In a moment or two they saw Chatterer scampering across the dooryard straight for that maple tree. They saw him leap up on the trunk and start up.

Suddenly a surprising thing happened. Chatterer fell back to the ground! The woodpeckers couldn't understand it. Chatterer himself understood it still less. Once more he tried, and once more the same thing happened. The third time Chatterer clambered carefully. He didn't rush as he had done at first. So it was that when he came to the band of tin put around the trunk of the tree by Farmer Brown's Boy he didn't make the mistake of jumping onto it as he had done before. He simply put one paw up, and found right away that his claws would not catch into this queer thing.

Then Chatterer slowly went all the way around the tree at the lower edge of that band of tin, trying to find a place where he could get up. But there was no place. His claws wouldn't catch in that tin, and there was no way for him to get across it.

If ever there was an angry Squirrel that Squirrel was Chatterer. He could hear the babies of Drummer and Mrs. Drummer crying for food above him, and try as he would he couldn't get up to them. He looked around for another tree from which he might jump across into this tree, but there was none near enough. This tree stood quite by itself. Do what he would Chatterer couldn't get a step higher up in that tree, and those babies were perfectly safe so far as he was concerned.

Slowly Drummer and Mrs. Drummer began to understand what that tin band was for. They understood that once again Farmer Brown's Boy had proven himself their very best friend. Their babies were safe. There was nothing for them to worry about. They could laugh at Chatterer the Red Squirrel. They hardly gave him a look as together they flew away in search of more food.
