

Forgotten Graves in Forest Lawn to Be Decorated

Plot Containing Bodies of 37 Soldiers Who Died at Fort Omaha Neglected for Many Years.

Thirty-seven graves of former regular army soldiers in Forest Lawn cemetery will be decorated tomorrow for the first time in many years. They are in a little plot some distance north of the G. A. R. plot. Flags and flowers will cover them today and fitting military honors will be done those who died many years ago.

This has been ordered by Gen. Halstead Dorey of Fort Omaha who recently instituted an inquiry in local cemeteries to see if there were any forgotten soldier graves.

The 37 were soldiers who died at Fort Omaha from 1887 to 1892. Two of the graves bear more prominent markers than those ordinarily provided by the government. These two were erected by "officers and comrades." They are the graves of Otto Greip and William Haegle of the Second Infantry.

Four musicians in the Second Infantry are in the plot: Robert Christopher, W. M. Griffin, Joseph Leach and William Griffin; also two sergeants of the Second infantry, William Stephens and a sergeant of the Seventh infantry, George Jaboney.

Private Milton and Charles Stevens, privates of the Twenty-first infantry, are buried there; and one private of the Eighth infantry, Julius Schaas.

Little Bear and Black Cat are buried there. They were members of a company of Indian scouts in the Second infantry. A cook, Howard Sones, is among the dead.

WIFE OF OURS

By WILLA CATHER.
Famous Nebraska Author.

SYNOPSIS.
Claude Wheeler, son of a Nebraska rancher, is disappointed in wedded life with Edna Hoover, religiously old daughter of Jason Hoover, Frankfort, Neb. He goes to China, where he meets a young woman, Carol, who is a student at the officers' training camp and is commissioned a lieutenant. Claude and Carol are married in France, where he becomes a friend of the Erick family. Another widow and five sons. He has friends in France, and in Omaha, where he meets Leonard Dawson, young farmer and neighbor of the Wheeler family. He has an elder brother, Willie, in business in Frankfort, his father, Nat, and a younger brother, Ralph. While in Omaha, Claude falls in love with Gladys Farmer, high school friend of his wife. Claude leaves with his company for Europe and after two weeks of intensive training in France, they leave for the front. Claude is dispatched with an important mission to the headquarters in a small city devastated by the Germans. His mission is to bring the colored, who has been called to Paris, he strolls about the ruined town.

The barrack was built against the walls of the cloister, three arches of which remained, like a stone wing to the shed of planks. On a ladder stood a one-armed young man, driving nails very skilfully with his single hand. He seemed to be making a frame projection from the sloping roof, to support an awning. He carried his nails in his mouth, and he hung his trousers, took a nail from between his teeth, stuck it into the wood, and then deftly watched him for a moment, then went to the foot of the ladder and held out his two hands. "Laissez-moi," he exclaimed.

The one aloft spat his nails out into his palm, looked down, and laughed. He was about Claude's age, with very yellow hair, a mustache, and a bright blue eye. A charming looking fellow.

"Willingly," he said. "This is no great affair, but I do it to amuse myself, and it will be pleasant for you to see the 'Benevoles' give my hammer to the visitor. Claude set to work on the frame, while the other went under the stone arches and brought back a couple of yards, part of an old tent, by the look of it.

"An heritage des Boches," he explained unrolling it upon the grass. "I found it in a cellar, and had the idea to make a pavilion for the ladies, as our trees are destroyed." He stood up suddenly. "Perhaps you have come to see the ladies?"

"Plus tard," he said. "Very well, the boy said, they would see the pavilion for a surprise for Mlle. Olive when she returned. She was down in the town now, visiting the sick people. He bent over his canvas again, measuring and biting things with a pair of garden shears, moving round the green plot on his knee, and all the time singing. Claude wished he could understand the words of his song.

While they were working together, trying the cloth up to the frame, Claude, from his elevation, saw a tall girl coming slowly up the path by which he had ascended. She paused at the top, by the boxwood hedge, as if she were very tired, and stood looking at them. Presently she approached the ladder and said in slow, careful English: "Good morning, Claude has found help, I see."

"Are you Mlle. de Courcy? I am Claude Wheeler. I have a note of introduction to you, if I can find it." She took the note from his perch. "That is not necessary. Your uniform is enough. Why have you come?"

He looked at her in some confusion. "Well, to really, I don't know. I am just in from the front to see Colonel James, and he is in Paris, so I must wait over a day. One of the staff suggested my coming up here, because it is so nice," he finished ingenuously.

"Then you are a guest from the front, and you will have lunch with me and Mlle. de Courcy, and I will come for the day. Will you see our house?" She led him through the low door into a living room, unpainted, uncarpeted, light grey. There were colored war posters on the clean board walls, brass shell-cases full of wild flowers and garden-flores, canvas camp-chairs, a shelf of books, a table covered by a white silk shawl embroidered with big butterflies. The sunlight on the floor, the bunches of fresh flowers, the white window curtains stirring in the breeze, reminded Claude of something, but he could not remember what.

"We have no guest room," said Mlle. de Courcy. "But you will come to mine, and Louis will bring you hot water to wash."

In a wooden chamber at the end of the passage, Claude took off his coat, and set to work to make himself as comfortable as possible.

Kellogg's Bran is ALL BRAN

—that's why it relieves constipation!

Half-way measures mean nothing to the man, woman or child whose very existence is threatened by the habitual clogging of the elimination channels. Foods with only part bran can never clean and sweep the intestines in the nature-way as does Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

And, Kellogg's Bran is as delicious in flavor as it is positive in its action. If it is eaten regularly—two table-spoonfuls daily; in chronic cases, with each meal—it will permanently relieve the most aggravated case.

Your health will be greatly improved within a brief period if you will eat this delicious Kellogg cereal. Know what Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, will do for you and for your loved ones. There is no time to be lost in getting the relief that Kellogg's Bran assures.

Kellogg's Bran is delightful as a cereal, sprinkled over any hot or cold cereal, or served in countless appetizing ways in baking and cooking. It makes the best sort of pancakes, muffins, raisin bread, macaroons, etc., you ever ate. And, each mouthful contributes to health! Kellogg's Bran works for you all the time! Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran for constipation.

A pimply complexion or an offensive breath can both be overcome by the regular use of Kellogg's Bran, which is sold by grocers everywhere.

Ministers Join in War on Wappich

Resolution Adopted Deploring Language Used by Judge in Court.

Omaha Ministerial union, at a special meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday, voted unanimously for a resolution deploring the language used by Judge Wappich in dealing with those appearing in police court. The resolution commends the W. C. T. U. committee which made a report criticizing Judge Wappich's methods and states that Judge Wappich refused to meet and confer with the committee of ministers appointed to investigate the women's report. The judge has gone on a "silence strike," apparently, for when shown a copy of the resolution yesterday he refused to comment.

"I have nothing to say," he announced. There was little discussion among the ministers, although the matter was discussed for some time before the resolution was voted on. There were no dissenting votes among the 35 ministers present.

Hearing of Man Arrested in Umbrella Raid Delayed

Charles Terrill appeared in police court Monday to answer a charge of operating a disorderly house at the Umbrella, East Omaha resort. Last Friday his trial was postponed on his promise that he would bring in a bill of sale showing that he has sold the resort.

Paving Contractors Already on Jobs, Koutsky Reports

City Commissioner Joseph Koutsky reports that paving contractors are on the job. McKinley avenue from Thirtieth street west to city limits, has been concreted. West street, Tenth to Twentieth, and Dorcas street, Tenth to Sixteenth, have been completed. Twenty-fourth street, Lake to Spaulding, will be completed soon, according to Mr. Koutsky.

Secretary Weeks to Inspect Bellevue Vocational Hospital

Secretary Weeks will reach Omaha June 2 and will inspect the Bellevue vocational hospital. He will leave the same day for Chicago, arriving there June 3. From Chicago he will go to Washington. Troops at Fort Crook and Fort Omaha will be reviewed by him here.

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

Why Madge's Plan Vanished at the Sight of Leila.

Shrewd suspicion was in the glance which Bess Dean gave me when I said that I was dizzy and wished to go up to my room and lie down. That she guessed my illness was only feigned, I was sure, but I cared no whit for her opinion of me, and only nodded indifferently when she said with a silky intonation: "Terribly sudden seizure, isn't it? But, of course, run along, I'll try to keep things from burning."

Madge Considers Her Problem.

Then shame for my selfishness swept me. Tragically, grim and stark, lay in wait for my little friend, unhappiness threatened her daughter-in-law, also dear to me. I would be unworthy—the name of friend if I could not cheerfully sacrifice more than a day at home to them, rare and precious as those days were to me since my enforced sojourn in the city.

Fishing — In Minnesota's Lakes

From June 15, when the bass season opens until the end of September—or later—the question which is often asked, in Minnesota, is "How are they biting?" or "What luck you having?" For there, during the summer months, fish and fishing are on everybody's tongue; in more ways than one.

Within the confines of the state are, approximately, TEN THOUSAND lakes! And there are bass or pike or croppie or lunge in almost every one of them.

However, in Minnesota, as everywhere else, really good fishing is to be had only by going where the fish are, seven, or even ten hours by rail from St. Paul or Minneapolis; to lakes which lie, half-hidden, among the primeval forests and are reached, as often as not, by a ten mile ride over rough roads from the nearest railroad station.

Here are a few such places. Of all of them it can be said, quite truthfully, "the fishing is GOOD!"

Armour's STAR Leaf Lard

There's Lard— And There's LEAF LARD

Lard that's just "lard" is only lard. But Armour's Star is leaf lard. A big distinction! Star leaf lard is dry, crisp, flaky, has a delicate flavor, and is ideal for all cooking and baking purposes.

Armour's Star—the "Ham What Am"—and Armour's Star Bacon are of the same high quality as Armour's Star Leaf Lard.

Packing-House Secrets

Local packers buy raw product and sell finished product in approximately the same territory. National packers are equipped to move the surplus production of one section to some other section a thousand miles or more away where a deficiency exists.
