Morgan Describes Loan. "The importance of the Austrian oan, which is being issued Monday," J. P. Morgan, head of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Cc., said in announcing the offering, "lies in the face that the attitude of American investors to this loan will show they are interested in helping those na tions of Europe which are prepared to help themselves toward the re-es-tablishment of their credit. Say "Bayer" and Insist!

"Last year, at the bankers conference held at Paris, I stated it was my opinion, that if the security to be given was clearly good and the investors of other lending nations would co operate to the extent that they felt themselves able to do, I believed that the American market would participate in an important extent in the rehabiliatation in the European financial situation. At that time these conditions could not be satisfied. Now however, for the first time, a loan is offered which fulfills both the con ditions
