

Gene Sarazen Fails to Qualify in British Open Golf Tourney

Walter Hagen Qualifies by Single Stroke

Five Americans Among Those Who Play Today for British Championship.

By Universal Service.
TROON, Scotland, June 12.—Surprises on every hand marked the closing of the qualifying rounds for the British open golf championship today. Walter Hagen, of New York, present holder of the title, squeaking in by the narrow margin of one stroke after an early poor showing, and Gene Sarazen, looked upon as a sure contender being eliminated by one stroke.

The Americans who will go into the tournament are Hagen, Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge, N. Y.; Leo Diegel of Washington; MacDonald Smith of California and George Aulbach of Boston.

Sarazen turned in a card of 85 today, a total of 160 for the two days. James Barnes of Pelham Manor, N. Y., also was eliminated with a score of 160.

Joe Kirkwood, Australian champion, now living in the United States, qualified with 152.

Vardon and Wethered Out.
Among the fallen stars whose poor scores kept them out of the meet were Harry Vardon, Roger Wethered, the British amateur champion, and Audrey Bomber, the French open champion.

C. Wingate, C. A. Whitcombe and A. Tingey, all of England, were tied for the lead, turning in 146.

James Braid, the British veteran, made the grade easily with 149.

Only 80 persons were to have been entered in the tournament, but the number of ties at 159 brought the total to 88.

Hagen got under the wire by turning in a 77 today and his total was 159, so that his entry came by one stroke. A large gallery followed him today, although his poor showing of 82 yesterday served to dishearten somewhat the most enthusiastic followers of the champion.

Yankees Eliminated.
Other Americans eliminated were Charles Hoffman of Philadelphia, 161; Tommy Armour, New York, 162; W. C. Sherwood, Memphis, Tenn., 164; F. W. Clarke, Asheville, N. C., 165.

Sarazen's failure came at the second hole. Playing in the rain the American champion topped his drive and went into a bunker, requiring two strokes to get back to the green, and registered an eight for the hole.

Steady play after that until the 12th hole indicated he might still qualify, but at this hole after a drive straight into the face of the bunker, and with plenty of room to play, he tried to carry his shot, and came out with a six. Wonderful play toward the end could not overcome the heavy handicap.

The steady rain helped to keep down the gallery and also affected play, but the survival of the five Americans promises to bring out a good gathering when the championship matches start.

Others who qualified included "Steady" Herd, oldest of the entrants, with 156; Jean Gastiat of France, with 153; DeLaTours of Spain, with 154, and Oekenden, 155.

Prohibition Agents to Accompany Fight Fans to Tilt Scrap
By Universal Service.
Los Angeles, June 12.—Announcement here today by Charles H. H. Dolley, chief prohibition enforcement officer for southern California, that two of his operatives will travel upon each of the two special fight trains to be run from here to Shelby, Mont., has taken from the trip much prospective joy, as cherished by southern California fight fans.

Grimes to Undergo Operation
Chicago, June 12.—Ray Grimes, Cubs' first baseman, walked into the Henrotin Memorial hospital tonight, where he will undergo an operation tomorrow afternoon.

Great Falls, Mont., June 12.—The second $100,000 of the $200,000 prize guaranteed Jack Dempsey for his appearance July 4 in his title bout against Tom Gibbons at Shelby is in the bank and will be paid the champion June 14, seven if it is due. Mayor James A. Johnson of Shelby, treasurer of the fight, announced here tonight.

EDDIE'S FRIENDS

The Winner Gets Sleepy

It Is to Laugh, Says Scribe of Kilbane's Alibis Following Defeat by Eugene Criqui

New York, June 12.—It has been more or less diverting to learn, from various sources, that the outcome of the Kilbane-Criqui bout was determined by one or all of the following: Kilbane was only a shadow of the real man. Age beat Kilbane. He failed to train properly. He held his man too cheaply. He should have got up. He should never have been down. He lost track of the referee's count.

With the KNIGHTS of the GLOVES

Great Falls, Mont., June 12.—After a five-days layoff from boxing to enable his damaged eye to heal, Jack Dempsey was ready to resume his intensive training grind, but Manager Jack Kearns decided at the last minute to have his champion rest another day before starting the real grind of his campaign. The champion did no work whatever yesterday, and the day after the rainbows of the Rocky Mountains, 60 miles west, he returned to the training camp. The champion is located in a converted pleasure park on the edge of the city, about two miles from the city. The training quarters nestle on the fringe of a wild country and in the days before the advent of prohibition prospered as a roadside.

Shelby, Mont., June 12.—Two important scenes of activity mark Shelby, one in the spot near the spot world, the other in the spot near the spot world. The scene of the newest Montana oil field, where the huge amphibious which is to be the scene of the July 4 battle for the world's heavyweight title, is rapidly nearing completion. The other is the training camp of Tom Gibbons, "Sammy" and aspirant for the crown held by Jack Dempsey. The rest of the dust-coated collection of make-shift houses and tents form only a background. Shelby already is raining down after the first flurry of excitement of the championship clash. Scores of shabby and Shelby visitors, the advance guard of the horde expected here on the nation's natal day, crowded the edge of the challenger's training ring yesterday, as he went through six rounds with three sparring partners.

Paddock to Return Friday

Pasadena, Cal., June 12.—Charles W. Paddock, world champion sprinter, will arrive in New York City Friday, according to his father, C. H. Paddock, who has left to greet the runner on his return from Europe where he defeated some of the best sprinters on the continent.

TOM WHELAN NAMED GRID COACH

Pullman, Wash., June 12.—Washington State college's staff of football coaches is made complete today with the receipt of a telegram of acceptance by Tom Whelan, for three years and on the Georgetown university team of the position of assistant coach. Whelan will report at Washington State September 1.

Mrs. Rogers Hornsby Files for Divorce

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—Mrs. Sarah E. Hornsby, wife of Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman for the St. Louis Nationals, Monday, filed suit for divorce in circuit court, charging general indignities. The ball player entered a general denial of the charges.

Upon her arrival here, Mrs. Hornsby said she separated from her husband, after she had "learned what was going on," intimating that the suit for divorce could be associated with a hearing on the divorce case of Mrs. Jeanette Pennington Hine, 23, a saleswoman. Hornsby's name was mentioned.

WILDE AND VILLA PREPARE FOR BOUT

New York, June 12.—Jimmy Wilde, world's flyweight champion, and Pancho Villa, Filipino challenger, are putting the finishing touches to their training this week for the title bout at the Polo grounds next Monday night. Wilde, visited in his Jersey City home today by an International News Service reporter, said he had not given up active training as reported along Broadway.

"That's silly," said Wilde. "The only thing I have given up, is boxing and that is just following a custom which I established many years ago. Why should a man give up a system, for Tom, Dick or Harry when it has worked well in the past?" Villa is training hard at Pompton Lakes. The same ferociousness that marks the Filipino's actions in the ring characterizes his training.

$100,000 Will Be Paid Jack Friday

By Associated Press.
Great Falls, Mont., June 12.—Mayor Jim Johnson of Shelby, Mont., for 32 years a cowpuncher before he became wealthy with the discovery of oil, said here today that the second $100,000 due Jack Dempsey on his contract to box Tommy Gibbons, July 4, would be paid Friday. Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, received $100,000 when the articles were signed. The final $100,000 installment is due on July 2.

Cloudless Day Given One Rousing Welcome

The sun rose in cloudless splendor yesterday morning for the first time this month. Palm Beaches came back into their own, and furnace fires were neglected. Meteorologist Robins declares there has been sunshine during nearly 50 per cent daylight hours of this month. Although a few persons grumbled that the bright skies wouldn't last long, racehorse followers at Ak-Sar-Ben track welcomed the sunshine with pleasing surprise. The prediction is "fair and warmer" for today.

Borah, Here for Half Hour. Favors Strict Enforcement

William E. Borah, senator from Idaho, spent a half-hour in Omaha yesterday while enroute home for a few months' vacation. The senator declared that he stood for strict and impartial enforcement of the Volstead law, but that he did not believe the enforcement to be impartial at this time. He also said that he believes in referring the prohibition question or any other question directly to the people.

Pittsburgh.—Jack Zivic was given a newspaper decision over Charley White of Chicago in a 10-round bout.

New Orleans.—McCoogan defeated Billy McLean in a 15-round bout.

Fort Crook Noncom Veteran to Retire

After a quarter century of military service, First Sergeant Jesse Culley, dean of noncommissioned officers at Fort Crook, has applied for retirement. Culley has risen from private to top sergeant with an excellent career throughout, as shown in the formal annuals. "The army offers a grand career," said the sergeant yesterday. "I joined in July, 1898, during the Spanish American war. "Old I don't feel old. I feel about 25, though the calendar tells me I am 58. But I think 25 years in the army is enough."

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

Why Madge Was Able to Distract Lella's Thoughts From Her Own Problem.

I had spent a tense quarter of an hour in the effort to convince Lella Durkee that her husband did not care for Bess Dean, except as he would admire any pretty and witty girl. But at her direct appeal to me to convince her of Alfred's truth, I flinched for a conscience-stricken second, although I was able to keep Lella in ignorance of my feeling. For I was far from sure just how strong was Alfred's admiration of Bess Dean's undeniably good looks, keen mentality and fascinating little ways. While I had been annoyed at Dicky's attentions to the girl in hectic days which I remembered only too clearly, yet I had known my Peter Pan far too well to be jealous of him when Bess Dean was concerned. But while I was reasonably sure that Lella had as little to fear as I, yet I could not rid myself of a lingering little doubt concerning Alfred's real feelings.

The CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN

But I schooled my face and voice so that no hint of my doubt should escape me, and answered Lella with a convincing air of sincerity. Madge Salves Her Conscience. "If all you need to make you the happiest woman alive is my assurance that you have no real cause to hate Bess Dean, you'd better get out your banners to celebrate," I said. "Now let me bathe your face and put on your shoes. You don't want to let Alfred know that you have been crying."

I purposely made my voice brusque to conceal my own emotion at the sight of the joyous relief which had flooded her face at my assurance. She was so eminently childlike in her unquestioning belief of all I had told her, that I chilled with the fear of having lulled her into a false security.

But I saved my conscience with the reflection that almost any deceit was justifiable in her condition of mind and body, and steeled my will to the resolve that I would make my assurance of Alfred's essential fidelity come true if I had to half kill him in the process.

She smiled up at me joyously, and made a pathetic attempt to arrange her hair. "No, indeed, he mustn't see I have been crying," she asserted. "I—I suppose I ought to tell him—"

"Poor, poor Mother!" "Don't tell him anything just now." I advised, facing her shoes. "I'll tell you why when I've played lady's maid for a few minutes."

That her curiosity would be aroused by my words, I knew, for I had uttered them with that purpose, and I noted with satisfaction that while I bathed her face and rearranged her hair, she appeared to be debating something with herself. At least I had succeeded in diverting her attention, I said to myself with a humorous remembrance of hearing the expression used by a psychologist lecturing on children's management. And when she was restored to her usual dainty appearance, she finished my analogy by saying natively: "Now, will you tell me why?" "Because Alfred will be so sorrowful tonight that he won't be able to think of anything else save his mother. And you must be brave and help him." I put my arm around her as I spoke and felt my heart constrict with pity as her slight figure trembled and shrank closer to me. "Oh, Madge! What is it?" "In the sweetest words I could muster, I told her of her mother-in-law's mysterious ailment which she had kept from the knowledge of her son and daughter-in-law for fear of worrying them, of her visit with me to Dr. Foxham, of his verdict that an operation would probably be necessary, and of the fact that Alfred was even now closeted with his mother, after I had told him at her request of her plight. "Oh, poor, poor mother!" Lella wailed when I had finished. "And we never dreamed—the brave, unselfish darling! And poor Alfred! What a selfish girl I've been—thinking only of my own troubles! Don't you think I might go down to them now, so they will know how much I want to help them?" (Copyright, 1923.)
