Peace Conditions Rule Stock Market

New York, June 12.—J. S. Bach & Company Weekly Review says: The character of the stock market now prevailing, gives little intimation of futures security price levels, but it is being studied by business interests for some indications of what the industrial prospects may be. The stockmarket, as a forerunner of the trade conditions, cannot always be relied upon. During the war, after long absences, we had lulls and downward movements similar to the present one, which were followed by quite enormous increases in business and by renewed bull markets.

After the war, in 1919, the same kind of a spring and summer reaction occurred in the stock market, giving no forward indication of the excessive activity in the fall, of both business and stocks. But there, too, the forces of an enormous and abnormal inflation brought about the uprise. No such conditions prevail now, at least not to any appreciable extent, and the situation is ruled more nearly by comparative peace conditions.

Consequently the action of the stock market may have more significance as a prophecy of further slowing down in business. This, if it comes, will do something to clear up the impossible situation in the labor market, and will be far better for a remedy than would have been a continuation of the furious business pace of the earlier months, which might have been carried to a point where disastrous collapse would have been the sequence.

Kindness Costs Woman Her Life

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—Evidence that Mrs. Dona S. Barnes of Seattle probably gave her life to a kindness to a school girl who today is safe at her desk, has been uncovered through its inquiry into a mystery arising from the finding of a canoe ashore, on the banks of Lake Washington here last Wednesday, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer announced today.

A reporter found the school girl, Miss Nora Noonan, in a convent, Miss Noonan said that last Tuesday she missed a ferry boat on which she intended to go to Mercer Island, in the lake, and that a woman who answered the description of Mrs. Barnes, volunteered to take her to the island in a canoe.

When they reached the island, the girl said, the water had become rough and she suggested that her benefactor return to Seattle on a ferry. The woman laughed, Miss Noonan said, and spoke confidently of paddling home.

Mrs. Barnes' husband, a manufacturer, plans to use an airplane to search for his wife's body.

Two Out of 27 Gobs Admitted to Annapolis Enlisted at Omaha

Two possible "future admirals" of the United States navy are congratulating themselves that Lieut. Frederick Powers of the local recruiting office persuaded them to enlist last June.

James Shadis Peterson, whose home is in Huron, S. D., was found by one of the recruiters near his native, health and told of the marvels of the navy. He took the "president's penny" and he signed up June 23, 1922. Since then he has been at the naval training school at San Francisco.

Vernon Dorch came to Omaha from his home in Texas to get a job.

The job wasn't all that was cracked up to be and, on east Douglas street, Dorch met a navy man who offered to give him a real job with good pay and a chance to rise. After a long talk with Lieut. Frederick Powers, Dorch decided to have a life on the ocean wave and signed on the dotted line, June 19, 1922.

He is now on the U. S. S. Texas. Both young men will proceed at Uncle Sam's expense to the naval academy and a good commission at the end.

Present navy regulations provide that 100 young men be selected from the navy personnel annually for admission to Annapolis.

This year only 21 passed the examinations. And two of these were enlisted at the Omaha navy recruiting station. Only three other cities had two successful takers of the examination, and those cities were much larger than Omaha.

Taylor Murder Informant Found

Santa Ana, Cal., June 12.—Otis Hefner, who a year ago in Seattle, Wash., was said to have confessed to know something of the slaying in Los Angeles, February 1, 1922, of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, was found last night in the Orange county jail here, where he has been for the last four days under the name of Otto Nelson.

Officers quoted Hefner as saying: "I was arrested in Seattle about a year ago, on a bad check charge. While I was in jail a trusty told me a man named Jim Redman, who had been sentenced to life for murder, would get me out if I would pay him $50 and follow his instructions. I agreed."

"I began to get notes of instruction from this Redman. I was told where a suitcase containing $200,000 in loot was hidden, and that Taylor's diamond ring was in it. Redman told me to get a lawyer, tell him the secret of the bag and that the lawyer would get me out of jail by letting the police know I had information of great importance. He wanted me to give some of the stocks and bonds in the bag to one of his gang when I got out."

"I followed orders, but the bag wasn't in the place he described. I never saw Redman and don't know for sure he really existed. Anyway, I was paroled after being sentenced."

He said he had told Redman was a mail bandit. Hefner said he came from Amarillo, Tex.
