Krueger Is New Head of Midland

91 Are Graduated—Honorary Degrees Conferred—Summer School Term Opens

Commencement week was a great week in the history of Midland college. Many of the alumni and former students returned for class reunions and for the inauguration of Dr. John Frederic Krueger as president.

Along with the regular commencement week program, which included the fine arts recital, the play "Palomander Walk," given by the Kalophon Literary society; alumni banquet, a reception given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Krueger and the inauguration on Thursday morning, was also held.

The doctor of divinity honor degree was conferred upon Rev. William Ira Guss of Omaha and Rev. William T. Kahse of Sidney, Neb. Two students graduated from the Western Theological Seminary, one receiving the bachelor of divinity degree, 15 from the collegiate department receiving the A. B., or B. S. degree, 11 from the preparatory department, 2 from the fine arts, four from the kindergarten primary, 18 from the commercial department and 33 received teachers' certificates.

At the annual meeting of the board of trustees on June 6, Mr. O. A. Keyser, a graduate of the class of 1903, was elected college treasurer. Mr. Keyser began his new duties on June 11.

Summer school opened June 11. Though the enrollment was not so large, still the students and teachers are hard at work—to make this summer session one of the best. Prof. Guy M. Whipple, Ph. D., of the University of Michigan, is giving lectures twice a day during the first week of the summer session.

Anglo-Indian School Work Told in Report

The work being done by Miss Ethel L. Whiting, 1907, Nebraska Wesleyan graduate, as superintendent of the girls' school at Cawnpore, India, is described in a report issued by the Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church. This is the third annual report of the Lucknow conference.

The Cawnpore school is the only institution in that conference for Anglo-Indian and European children. The school was organized early in the '70s, and has long been the haven for poor and neglected children. The institution is located in the plains at Cawnpore to accommodate the poor. With a few mission scholarships and gifts from friends in India, a number of orphans and other needy children have been kept and educated. Not half of those who apply, however, can be admitted.

The last child to be admitted is an attractive 8-year-old girl, a Eurasian child of an Indian woman. Such children are the mission's endeavor to rescue and assist into useful lives. The teachers are Anglo-Indian young women who have been educated in India.

Employers Test Business School

Boyles College Placed on List of Officially Approved Institutions

There is a growing tendency among business men and employers generally, to investigate fully the character, standing and efficiency of commercial schools before employing graduate students. This trend, according to Mr. Boyles, president of the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools in order to protect employers from commercial schools of questionable reputation.

The National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools, of which the Boyles college is a member, is made up of those institutions that have been favorably passed upon by the business public, and by the examining board of the association.

There have been admitted to membership only those schools that have fully proved their right to be regarded in the best sense of the word as business training institutions of the highest order—schools that have been alert to meet present day requirements and have been successful in their respective communities.

Summer enrollment of commercial students is very promising this year, states Mr. Boyles, indicating a tendency on the part of ambitious young men and women to apply the summer months toward greater earning capacity and bigger possibilities, rather than idling away their time vacationing.

Recognizes Omaha School

The work done by the American College of Business in Omaha is recognized by the American Association of Vocational Schools, which accredited the college. This association is national in scope and its mission is the better training of young people for position of responsibility, honor and profit.

Before a school can become accredited and admitted to membership in this association a thorough investigation is made concerning its courses, its faculty, its equipment, its standing in the community, both among young people and business men; the moral and business integrity of its officials; its past record for fair and honorable dealings; its policy of service, to both employers and employes.

Nebraska School of Business

Miss Sara Goddard, graduate of the University of Nebraska, has been added to the summer quarter faculty of the Nebraska School of Business.

Individual Instruction Summer Term Opens

The School of Individual Instruction opened its summer session Monday with an unusually large enrollment.

It features personal attention, short hours and small classes and prepares pupils for "the next year's work." Pupils may "make up" work instead of repeating a grade.

It is an acknowledged fact that a few moments of personal attention will accomplish more than hours of class work.

Those trying individual instruction agree that it accomplishes more than any other system.

University of Omaha Summer School Opens

Summer session at the University of Omaha opened Monday and from present indications the enrollment will exceed that of any previous year.

Dr. Ross L. Finney of University of Minnesota has arrived and will give a course in social aspects of the curriculum. Mrs. Pearl Weber of Illinois Woman's college is here and will offer psychology, psycho analysis and methods during the entire six weeks of summer school.

The school has been fortunate in securing Dr. Arnold B. Hall of University of Wisconsin to offer citizenship courses, and Dr. C. N. Wenger of University of Michigan to offer methods in oral and written English.

On account of the increasing demand for college subjects leading toward degrees, more of the regular

Hundreds Attend Opening Summer School Session

Between 600 and 700 students braved the heavy rain storm yesterday in order not to miss the first day of summer school at Omaha Central high school. Others are expected to swell the total enrollment for the summer to more than 750.

This is the second year of the new public system of summer school. E. E. McMillan, future principal of the new North High school, and assistant principal of Central High, is principal of the summer session.

Summer school this year will be about the same as last year except that household arts and music have been added to the list of subjects offered," he said. "We expect about the same enrollment as last year," he said. Last year's enrollment was 740.

If your boy or girl needs to make up Grades this summer

Register now at the S.I.I.

If your boy or girl has failed to get the number of credits necessary to carry them into the next grade, they can still make up these credits by attending the School of Individual Instruction this summer.

The School of Individual Instruction is the only school of its kind west of New York. Here you will find a quiet, refined atmosphere. Students are taught how to study and what to study. Classes are small—one teacher to every ten pupils. This insures real "individual" instruction. There is constant supervision of both study and recreation periods.

Do not permit your boy or girl to "lag" in school work—send them to us for enrollment in our Summer School and we will prepare them to resume their regular standing in their school work next Fall. Our Summer School opens June 18th and classes are limited. Enroll now before classes are filled.

Try Individual Instruction — it will accomplish what no other system can.

Parents are invited to call and discuss school plans. We are more than willing to co-operate with you in securing the "right" instruction. A little help at the right time is invaluable.

This school is authorized to give examinations for Phillip's Academy, Andover, Mass., June 19-20.
