Solons Blame Guard Head for Herrin Horror

Illinois House Committee Report Criticizes Action of Officers in Connection With Mine Riots.

By International News Service. Springfield, Ill., June 30.—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black, of Illinois National Guard, was held responsible for the Herrin mine massacre; Col. S. N. Hunter, personnel officer of the guard, is held derelict in his duty and his discharge recommended; peace officers of Williamson county are severely arraigned and the state senate military delivery censured in the report of the house committee charged with investigating the riot of last June, made public here today.

The report was drafted at a meeting of the committee held at noon today and was presented to the house this afternoon.

Concerning General Black, the report says he "was derelict in his duty in not taking personal charge of the situation and ordering out troops. We believe that responsibility rested with the adjutant general. When he left the matter to a subordinate officer he assumed responsibility. We believe that if General Black had gone to the scene of the trouble when its seriousness first came to his attention that he would have called the troops and thus averted the massacre."

Disabled Vets in Row.
Boston, June 30.—After a turbulent session in which several delegates left the hall, the National Disabled Veterans' league, in convention yesterday, re-elected John T. Nolan of Washington, D. C., commander. The meeting followed a stormy morning session which was terminated by a call for the police and the shutting off of the lights in the Arlington theater.

Order was restored in the afternoon meeting after Senior Vice Commander Thomas V. Fields, state commander of New Jersey; Second National Vice President James Hussey of New York and George T. Davis of Indianapolis, Ind., with a small group of delegates, had left the hall. Fields had been accused by Commander Nolan of accepting a gratuity for adjusting the claim of Eugene Kelly, a disabled veteran of Jersey City, and had been suspended by the executive board, Commander Nolan asserted.

Paris and Pope Near Break Over Note About Ruhr

French Ambassador to Vatican Cancels Reception to Cardinals as Result of Communication.

By International News Service. Rome, June 30.—Relations between France and the vatican were strained almost to the breaking point today as a result of French displeasure over Pope Pius XI's Ruhr note.

M. Jonnart suddenly cancelled his reception to the Catholic cardinals. This was attributed to the antagonistic attitude of the French government towards the papal note.

It is possible that M. Jonnart may retire as French ambassador to the vatican.

Many Italian papers praise the note as a favorable move towards settlement of the Ruhr problem. There is a feeling in vatican circles that the note was "interpreted in the wrong spirit."

By International News Service.
London, June 30.—Foreign office officials this afternoon denied that Great Britain had inspired Pope Pius XI's Ruhr note. Such a report had been circulated.

France's reply to Great Britain's reparations memorandum requesting further enlightenment upon the Franco-Belgian policy in the Ruhr, particularly the French definition of "German passive resistance," is expected next week.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 30.—The summer layoff for theatrical performers is on. Hundreds are out of work and are sunning themselves along Broadway curbs. Fur coats and jewelry have been pledged to tide them over the lean days.

There is, so theatrical papers report, much suffering among the profession. This is particularly true among show girls, as the large majority has been without engagements all winter. The Slave Door Inn, which aids stage folk, is swamped with applications for jobs as waitresses.

A summer musical revue recently sent out a call for 25 girls for the chorus, and the result proved the beauty market is glutted. More than 400 responded to the call and only two were accepted. They were of unusual beauty and had varied experience.

Scores of girls are coming to New York from the prairie cottage and village street, lured by advertisements of the one-flight-up dramatic schools which skillfully give the idea positions will follow graduation.

The big chorus in musical shows will soon be a thing of the past. Small choruses are more easily trained and have proved just as effective. The 15 Palace girls from London were so excellently trained that after appearing in a production all season they have been starred in vaudeville.

"The Gingham Girl," which ran 12 months, had a chorus of eight girls. Another musical show has six. Stage beauties, too, who had nothing but beauty and a property smile, are no longer a drawing feature.

It is estimated that before the new season begins 4,000 chorus girls must seek new fields of endeavor. Hitherto the cabarets were open to them; but only a handful of these pieces are left.

The most successful pawnshop in Manhattan is run by a red-headed Irishman—upsetting another illusion. He has not the jingle-jumble window display of the usual pawnshop. And there are no threeball signs out front. The windows are curtained and the only entrance is on a side street. Inside are rows of little stalls where customers are hid from view. The clerks are dignified old men and seemingly sympathetic in their dealings. The proprietor has a proper appreciation of the fact that in almost every transaction he makes there is the background of tragedy.

The recent sudden spurt of popularity in the career of Minnie Maddern Fiske is not so difficult to understand. She is the only actress who pronounces "garage" in English fashion. This ought to make any one popular. There is talk of building a theater for her where she will appear year in and year out.

One of the prize fight promoters told me the other day how his charge won a fight. Shortly before he entered the ring, he said, he gave his man a powerful stimulant. In other words, he was "doped." "It was done," he said, "to make the fighter forget he was yellow."

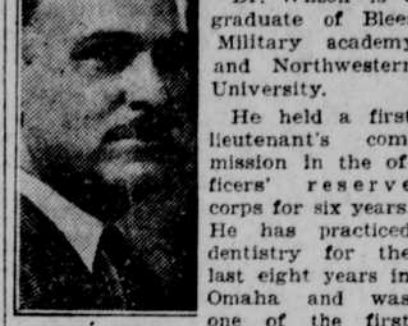

The old mouth organ is coming back. It is considered quite an innovation for the private apartment party. And some of the parties carry their own organist to cafes. When the jazz band dies down the organist regales with his tunes.

New York, June 30.—Sixteen steamships, their rails lined with 7,000 aliens who have forsaken their homelands, rode at anchor outside Ambrose lightship today waiting for the stroke of midnight to dash from quarantine with admittance to the United States of their immigrant passengers as their goal.

Runaway Bride Tells How Sisters Traded Husbands

By International News Service. Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—A strange story of a love triangle in which sisters would trade husbands and husbands swap wives, was told here today by Mrs. Alta Michaels, 15 year-old runaway bride.

Mrs. Michaels was arrested with Ivo O. Anderson, 25, her brother-in-law, at a rooming house here. He was charged with violation of the Mann act.

The Michaels and Andersons lived in the same house in Oklahoma City, Alta told the police, explaining the ramifications of the "love square."
