Tails Tugged
by Lady Astor

Sets House of Commons Into Peals of Laughter by Efforts to Halt Flow of Speech.

By Associated Press.
London, June 30.—Lady Astor, tugging at the coat tails of Sir Frederick George Banbury, in a vain effort to induce him to stop speaking so that she and her liquor bill might have the right of way, sent the house of commons into peals of laughter last evening in which the grave speaker was obliged to join.

The opportunity of finishing the final stages of her measure had arisen and Lady Astor was hoping that the house could get to it if only she could placate Sir Frederick, who is a sworn opponent of her bill.

As the time approached for consideration of her measure Lady Astor took a seat on the step at Sir Frederick's feet. He, however, was well warmed up to the debate on the agricultural credits bill and paid no attention to the pleadings she addressed to him.

Lady Astor finally tugged at his coat tails trying to force him to sit down, while the house laughed heartily.

At last Banbury stopped. There were five minutes left for the consideration of the liquor bill and great was Lady Astor's discomfiture when Sir Frederick immediately began moving amendments to it. Uttering groans of impatience and exclamations of dismay, her ladyship made a desperate and futile attempt to move closure. When the time limit expired, with Banbury still talking and passage of the bill relegated to some future time, the laughter burst forth anew.

Then Lady Astor rose from her seat, shook her fist at the enemy and, hastening toward him, gave him a resentful punch, half in fun and half in petulance, while the members shouted with mirth.

The bill was not lost as the government has promised to grant facilities for its eventual passage.

London, June 30.—Eight of the crew of the lost British steamship Trevessa, which foundered in the Indian ocean on May 27, died in terrible agony while the second lifeboat with 16 men was making its way to land, said a dispatch from Mauritius today.

There were originally 24 men in the lifeboat when it put off from the sinking ship in the middle of the Indian ocean. Intense heat alternates with severe storms. Both food and water gave out during the weeks the boat was drifting.

Nearly all of the rescued crew of 44 are now accounted for, having landed on Indian ocean islands.

America's Only Traveling Curio
Shop Spends Few Days in Omaha

Downtown passersby were attracted by a house-like body, to which coins, photos, skins, license plates, and other curios were affixed, mounted on a Ford chassis that stood parked at various places along the business streets, last week.

"America's only traveling curiosity shop" has gone 235,000 miles, or nine and a half times around the world, by land, railroad and steamship, and has worn out four Ford chassis. Though started originally for pleasure, the project has become a business.

The interior of the cabin-shaped body is equipped with a complete camping outfit. Expenses are made by selling souvenir cards and filming educational pictures of nature and current events.

Exhibit Films.
The party includes S. Cramer and wife of Philadelphia; Thomas Cooney, cameraman, and Georges Sykes, mechanic.

"They carry with them three reels of their educational film to show to various schools, orphanages and penal institutions along the route. Walla Walla, Wash., was the last prison at which they showed their wares."

"I have 430 feet of undeveloped film that we took of a whale fight. The fellow that gets that is going to pay $25,000 for it," declared Cramer.

Bound for South.
The travelers landed at San Francisco five weeks ago after a three-month tour of the orient. They intend to work their way to New Orleans and from there sail to South America, touring through the southern continent to Cape Horn and then returning to New York. They may attempt Europe next spring.

To date the adventurers have sold 17,000 feet of their films and just recently have released 10,000 feet more.

The wanderers left town Thursday morning.

Pinto to Put Powder on Poor Pat

Popular Pet, Particular Pal of "Peaches" in City Hall, Probably Predestined to Pass Out.

This is the simple story of a bold, bad cockroach that inhabits the city health department at the city hall.

Now as everyone knows, a cockroach is a blattid orthopteron insect, with a yellow band on the prothorax. Moreover, every cockroach which is in good health is voracious, not to say omnivorous.

But no ordinary cockroach is this one which is engaged in light housekeeping at the health department. For this one not only has made friends with employees of the department but has gained such standing that he can devour their lunches without being molested.

Roars Like a Lion.
The health officials have named him Pat. They declare he is several years old, that he is so large he shoves waste baskets aside if they happen to be in his line of march and that when angered he roars like a lion.

Pat is a peculiar favorite of Dr. F. A. Sedlacek, assistant health commissioner. Dr. Sedlacek insists the cockroach answers to the name

Supposed Klansmen Stage
Demonstration Near Casper

Casper, Wyo., June 30.—The town of Glen Rock, 28 miles east of Casper, was the scene Wednesday night of a demonstration by white-robed men, believed to be members of the Ku Klux Klan, which ranks as the most spectacular ever witnessed in Wyoming, according to information received here today.

One hundred and fifty supposed klansmen paraded the streets in automobiles, built a huge bonfire on a hill near the town and wound up by setting off a terrible blast that showered rocks and dirt over the vicinity and sent spectators on the run.

The demonstration followed several notes of warning said to have been sent to the town marshal regarding the suppression of vice and during the parade unmasked members are reported to have visited several pool halls and gambling houses and warned them to conduct their places in compliance with the law or close their doors.

The automobiles entered Glen Rock from the west and are believed to have come from Casper.

Anna Crowley, arrested earlier in the week and charged with the theft of $11,000 from the Marks Saddlery company, where she had been employed for 15 years, was dismissed when she appeared for preliminary hearing in municipal court today, on motion of the county attorney.

Freed of Bombing Charge.

Ainsworth, Neb., June 30.—A jury in the district court here acquitted Fred O. Henne, ranch owner, of placing a bomb on the porch of William M. Ely, an Ainsworth attorney, which exploded and partly wrecked the Ely home. The bombing occurred over a month ago.

Hotel Loyal to Be Operated by Loyal B. Cohn

Cousin of E. John Brandeis Buys Lease and Furnishings—May Add Three Stories.

Loyal B. Cohn, cousin of E. John Brandeis, announced yesterday that he has purchased the lease and furnishings of the Hotel Loyal from the Harper & Kriel company, which has been operating the hotel for the last four years.

Mr. Cohn plans to take direct supervision of the hotel beginning at 7 o'clock this morning. He will make extensive improvements, cleaning and painting the big hostelry from top to bottom and refurbishing it entirely.

To Remodel Restaurant.
"I am going to put the Loyal back on a par with the best hotels in the city," said Mr. Cohn. "Not so far in the future I plan to add two or three more stories to the building. It was originally built for such an addition. The restaurant will remain closed for a time, until I have completely refurbished it and the kitchens. My plans for the restaurant are quite complete, but I hope to make it quite unusual place."

The Hotel Loyal, which extends for an entire block on Sixteenth street between Capitol avenue and Davenport streets, was constructed by the late Herman Cohn. It was for some years a show place, and is still numbered among the more modern hotels of the city. On the death of Herman Cohn, it became the property of his widow, Sarah Brandeis Cohn, who is now visiting in New York. Mrs. Cohn turned the property over to her two sons, Loyal and Walter, a few years ago.

Sentiment in Purchase.
Hence Loyal Cohn will be the owner and operator of the hostelry. He indicated that sentiment entered into his purchase of the lease, which runs for four more years. H. H. Harper, who has been managing the hotel, and Mrs. Charles Kriel of the Harper & Kriel company, will remain at the hotel for a short time to complete their business in hand, Mr. Cohn announced. The Harper & Kriel company operates a hotel at Columbus, Neb.

Mr. Cohn announced that he will devote his entire time to work at the hotel for a few months at least, during which time his partner, Joy Sutphen, will handle the business of the Interstate Advertising Service.

New Record Set in Home Building and Home Buying

Indications Are for 2,000 New Dwellings This Year—Building and Loan Resources Increase.

Home building and home buying continue to smash records in Omaha. Building permits issued by the city and the growth of building, savings and loan associations furnish the proof.

During 1922, permits were issued for 1,552 single and 41 double dwellings, or accommodations for 1,534 families. Previous to that year 1,000 new homes was the top record.

Sixty-one per cent of last year's total has been covered in the first half of 1923. The total cost, as stated in the permits, is $4,200,000. Should the builders hold the pace through the remaining six months, the year's record will mean 2,000 dwellings added to Omaha's progress as a city of homes and home owners.

Boom in Business.
City permits do not include the hundreds of modest homes built by families pioneering in the many additional markets in lots and acres outside the corporate limits. All are a part of Omaha's home growing life and belong exclusively to the home owning class.

Financing the major portion of the home building increase worked a corresponding boom in the business of the home loaning association. In round numbers, the 12 associations of Omaha now hold resources aggregating $88,400,000, compared with $58,000,000 12 months ago and $61,500,000 on the first of the year.

Present resources of the eight leading associations and the semi-annual distribution of earnings, averaging 6 per cent per annum, are as follows:

Comparative Resources

|--------------------------|--------------|-------------|
| Omaha Loan & Bldg. Assn. | $57,722,212 | $622,205 |
| Wg. Sav. & Loan | 20,468,574 | 494,888 |
| Occidental Bldg. & Loan | 11,111,594 | 326,545 |
| Nebraska Sav. & Loan | 2,612,548 | 65,239 |
| Commercial Sav. & Loan | 2,209,916 | 52,861 |
| Loan | 1,986,252 | 33,950 |
| Prudential Sav. & Loan | 1,828,296 | 19,885 |
| State Sav. & Loan | 722,589 | 16,191 |
| Total | $67,172,544 | $1,224,644 |

Resources of the four smaller associations—Union, Mutual, Standard and Metropolitan—will add $200,000 to the above total.

Association managers report money abundant, generally in excess of the unusual demand. Notwithstanding the increase in building costs, the demand for new homes continues good, with a marked increase in the number of home getters selecting plans and buildings to suit their means and tastes. Three and four-room homes are quick sellers, while the five-room bungalow and the colonial type continue strong favorites. Frame construction is the rule, but stucco exteriors are increasing steadily and brick veneers are gaining in popularity.

Damon and Pythias Cause Halt in Traffic

Pedestrian traffic was almost disrupted yesterday afternoon at Sixteenth and Douglas streets because two formerly inseparable police officers met for the first time in 24 hours. Fred "Damon" Palmatg and Ben "Pythias" Danbaum, patrolmen, stopped to talk over developments in the affairs of the city.

"I was misquoted," quoted "Damon." "It is reported that I said Butler was a great man. It's all wrong, a mistake and tends to create a poor impression with my friends."

Other explanations followed and pedestrians were forced to make way about the two officers. Then they separated, good friends to the last, their opinions again proven mutual.

Poison Rum Makers Held.

San Francisco, June 30.—With Max Hoffman, a chemist, and George W. Young under arrest here today, federal prohibition enforcement agents declared they had seized large quantities of what they termed "poison booze" bootlegged whiskey made from denatured alcohol imperfectly rectified.

Young was said to have been apprehended as he transported a truckload of message alcohol from a wholesale drug store to his home. The officers reported that they found "dangerous" whiskey in wholesale lots in Young's residence.

So—every gob who goes into the navy from this state is going to "tell the world" about Omaha and Nebraska. About 40 are enlisted each month and each of these will be furnished with data concerning his native state by Mr. Tancock.

The "ambassadors" are keeping the name of their speaker a secret. They say he is "some dark horse and big league orator" of that part of the state.

The membership, the king announces, is 4,673. Five thousand or bust is his slogan.
