

Beatrice Fairfax PROBLEMS THAT PERPLEX.

Friend or Lover. Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a girl of

18. About four months ago I met a man six years my senior. I did not think much of him at first, but after a while I began to like him, and now I find that I love him dearly. I cannot understand why he says he is interested in me, enjoys my company and likes me very much, but he very seldom takes me out. He is in business, and I realize that he cannot meet very often, but on Sundays, instead of taking me out he takes his folks out. Another thing is that he makes an appointment with me at the last minute. You see he will call me up and ask me to go out with him that evening, and I never refuse, but always go with him. Can you tell me what to do so that I could win this young man? Do you think by his actions that he cares for me a little? Should I drop him and try to forget him? BUBBLES. The young man's devotion to his family shows his fine character. On the other hand, his making his appointments at the last minutes indicates that he is selfish in his attitude toward you, and is considering his own convenience rather than yours. He must like you or he would not make an effort to be with you now and then. By patience and good humored acceptance of his way of doing things you can set him the example of kindness and consideration and make yourself necessary to him. Take the friendship in a less serious fashion. The man may be a good friend even if you cannot charm him into being a lover.

apart. Why throw away love in order to gratify that dangerous and expensive thing known as pride? You were the offender. Write him a little note and tell him that you know he is too big and generous to hold this circumstance against you and that you are sure he must feel you were too sincere a friend to slight him in any way.

Lincoln Hotel Man Is Out With Facts

"Tanlac made me feel like a brand new man, and I never miss a chance to praise it," recently declared Harry E. Baldrige, 230 North Eleventh street, Lincoln, Neb., popular clerk in the Windsor hotel.

Just Second Fiddle: Of course the young man is doing wrong to run around with anyone except his fiancee. Do you really enjoy playing second fiddle? I should think that your pride would let you. I really think that it would be wiser for you to keep out of the whole muddle. Probably the young man's fiancee won't be so careless about his running around when she returns as she was when she left. I think you are more sadly in need of schooling than you are of advice.

When a woman finds herself afflicted with backache, headaches, nervousness, dragging down pains, pain in her side, irregularities and irritability, dark circles appear under the eyes and her complexion gets sallow, she may be sure the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to her sex. Such women should act quickly and take the great American remedy for such conditions, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they may be saved years of suffering. For generations this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring ailing women to health, and it may be relied upon with perfect confidence.'

The hair fetishist, technically, is a criminal who cannot resist the temptation to steal hair; who cannot see a beautiful woman without being uncontrollably seized with a desire to snip a lock of her hair and carry it away. Yet the hair fetishist, criminologists say, is only abnormally afflicted with the same fascination for beautiful hair which all of us possess in milder form. Features are unchangeable. Size and figure are more or less unalterable. But beautiful hair is within the power of every woman. Regular and thorough cleansing with FITCH SHAMPOO is the first requisite of a clean, dandruff-free scalp, and beautiful, healthy, glossy, lustrous hair. Without proper care and attention your hair is bound to be dull, thin and scraggly. Use FITCH SHAMPOO and your hair will be clean, colorful, and altogether charming. The FITCH SHAMPOO is on sale at first class toilet goods counters. In two sizes, 75 cents, $1.50 for family package. Complete directions in package. 5 applications at leading barber shops.
