CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLE NOW ASSURED

Reparation Issue Still Unsettled

France's Reply to Great Britain's Note Offers No Solution of Problem—Discussion to Continue.

Belgium Backs France

London, July 3.—France's long awaited response to the British memorandum on reparations was presented to Foreign Secretary Marquis Curzon this afternoon, but it offers no solution of the seemingly interminable indemnities problem. Count De Saint Aulaire, the French ambassador, in an earnest talk with Lord Curzon, set forth France's views on various phases of the British question but failed to define specifically the country's position on some of the points raised in Lord Curzon's recent questionnaire. The general verdict of those in a position to know what took place at the conference is that it was "unsatisfactory and inconclusive."

Belgium Supporting France.

Count De Saint Aulaire's conversation with Lord Curzon occurred soon after the foreign secretary had given Baron Moncheur, the Belgian ambassador, nearly an hour. It is understood that Moncheur's talk with Curzon was in general agreement with France on the principal issues of the reparation controversy. There was undisputed disappointment in British circles that neither of the allies showed a disposition to recede on their previously expressed demands.

At the same time talk of a rupture is dismissed and the suggestion of independent action by Great Britain is but lightly accepted.

"An effective solution of the problems can be found only in the united action of all the allies," said one British official tonight. "If we acted separately, what assurance could we give Germany that it would be safe from interference by France?" This official likened independent action by Great Britain to that of a person taking a lease on a house where there was no security and where a stream of lava might destroy the structure at any time.

Cabinet to Discuss Case.

The whole reparations problem will be discussed at Wednesday's cabinet meeting in the light of today's conference with the French and Belgian envoys. Meanwhile the foreign office announces that nothing will be given out for publication until the conference has disclosed a more conclusive decision. No date has been set for resumption of the negotiations with Count De Saint Aulaire and Baron Moncheur. The general feeling in London is that a settlement of the problem which is paralyzing the whole economic and industrial life of Europe is no further advanced than it was a month ago, and that no basis for a real agreement can be reached until the premier and foreign ministers of all the allied powers give a full and frank heart-to-heart talk at a general conference.

Secretary Work in Sympathy With Irrigation Project

Spokane, July 3.—Secretary of Interior Work appealed to the people of the northwest to view the Columbia basin project in a "practical" way and remember that before the federal government could loan the money necessary to reclaim the 2,000,000 acres in the basin, congress would have to pass legislation to make the funds available. "I am willing to spend the money," Mr. Work said, addressing members of the Columbia Basin Irrigation league, "but before I can do that, your legislatures must vote it."

Verdict Returned in Favor of Mrs. Croker Is Upheld

Dublin, July 3.—There will be no retrial of the suit brought by Richard Croker, Jr., contesting the will of his father, one time Treasury hall chieftain. The time for serving notice of an appeal or for an application for a new trial expired at 5 this afternoon. Up to this time no such notice or application had been served. Thus the verdict recently returned in favor of Mrs. Bula Croker, the widow, is upheld.

The Omaha Bee Will Have Float in Fall Festival

Patrick Henry to Be Characterized in Pageant as Sponsor of Free Press.

The Omaha Bee is to have a float in the patriotic pageant written by John Lee Webster and to be held during the Ak-Sar-Ben festival. The float should be a most interesting one, for it will concern itself not only with one of the most animated and picturesque characters in American history, but also with one of the most important pillars in the structure of our country.

"Freedom of the Press" is to be the title of the float. It will depict Patrick Henry, the great American statesman, pleading with his fiery oratory before the Richmond convention for the adoption of what later became article 1 of the bill of rights—the article which assures the freedom of the press and of speech and religion.

Few if any there are who will deny that this article is the foundation on which American liberty has been based and maintained.

This article, which is the first of the 10 amendments, was proposed and adopted with the other nine at the first session of the first congress held in New York city in 1789.

It reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Patrick Henry is inspirational in himself, for his rise to greatness was entirely unforeseen. He showed no particular aptitude for his studies, failed in his first business, and at almost every other thing he attempted, including farming. As a last resort he attempted law, and was conditionally admitted to practice. He immediately leaped into prominence.

B. Brewer, general manager of The Omaha Bee, signed a contract for the float yesterday.

Political Bodies Plan Solid Front

Representatives of Agricultural and Industrial Groups Meet With Farmer-Labor Party.

Would Abolish Court

Chicago, July 3.—Delegates representing labor, agricultural, economical and industrial groups will meet in conference Wednesday with delegates to the national convention of the farmer-labor party in an endeavor to perfect a unified political front in next year's election.

Over the protests of many farmer-labor representatives, the convention today voted to seat in the convention, delegates from all units which had received the call for the convention and adjourned as a convention, to meet in conference Wednesday to draft a program of harmony. What ever action is decided on in the conference will be brought before the delegates Thursday in reconvened convention.

The purpose of the convention-conference, as outlined in the call, is not to combine all the groups into a single political party, but to coordinate their efforts into a political machine that will achieve for the producing classes rights which speakers declared were denied under the reign of the two present political parties.

A standard under which these groups could unite probably will be chosen, said Jay G. Brown, national secretary of the farmer-labor party, but the adoption of a platform and the selection of candidates would remain for the convention to be held next year.

Objects Outlined. What such a political unity expects to do was believed to have been expressed in addresses of former Senator R. F. Pettigrew of South Dakota, Lieut. Gov. George F. Comings of Wisconsin, John Fitzpatrick of Chicago, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and F. A. Pike of St. Paul, chairman of the Minnesota farmer-labor party. Senator-elect Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota was not present at today's convention, but is expected to be here Wednesday and outline his platform before the conference.

Control of the government by the working classes, abolition of the United States courts, limiting the powers of the supreme court, government ownership of the railroads, elaborate measures looking toward the stabilization of agriculture, labor and the currency and revision of taxes in many forms were directly or indirectly urged in speeches made by the foregoing speakers or delegates upon the floor.

William Foster Delegate.

Reading of the report of the credentials committee disclosed that William Z. Foster, recently tried under the Michigan anti-syndicalist laws for alleged communistic activities, was a delegate to the conference from a Louisiana unit had accredited as a delegate Kate Richards O'Hare. Despite charges that O'Hare would be made with the socialist party, inviting them to come within the platform of the conference, Mr. Brown said he did not expect any such action to be taken.

Four Burlington Employees Confess to Box Car Thefts

Quartet Held at Creston Thought Members of Gang Responsible for Wholesale Robberies.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Creston, Ia., July 3.—Four young men, Alfred Hamilton, Harry Bliss, L. F. Taylor and Neil Dickey of Creston, are under arrest here following a raid conducted by four Burlington railroad officials co-operating with county and city officers.

The young men, all employees of the Burlington, were arrested on charges of breaking and entering box cars and stealing large quantities of merchandise. Officers had been working on the case quietly for some time and brought it to a climax when they learned that the young men had gone to Osceola, broken the seal on a freight car and dumped a large quantity of merchandise along the right-of-way just east of Creston, later carrying the merchandise away in automobile trucks.

Upon being arrested the four men made signed confessions alleging their guilt. Officers located several hundred dollars worth of stolen merchandise hidden under the flooring of a vacant residence on the Bliss at a several miles south of Creston. Articles of merchandise, identified as stolen, were also found in the homes of the men.

The prisoners were arraigned before Justice Adam Pickett. They waived preliminary hearing and were bound over to await grand jury action in August. It has been stated that the four men probably will enter pleas of guilty on a county attorney's information and receive their sentences from a district court judge.

It has not been definitely determined whether others were implicated in the wholesale robberies which had been in progress for some time.

Brandeis Stores Sold Golf Balls for 25c Saturday

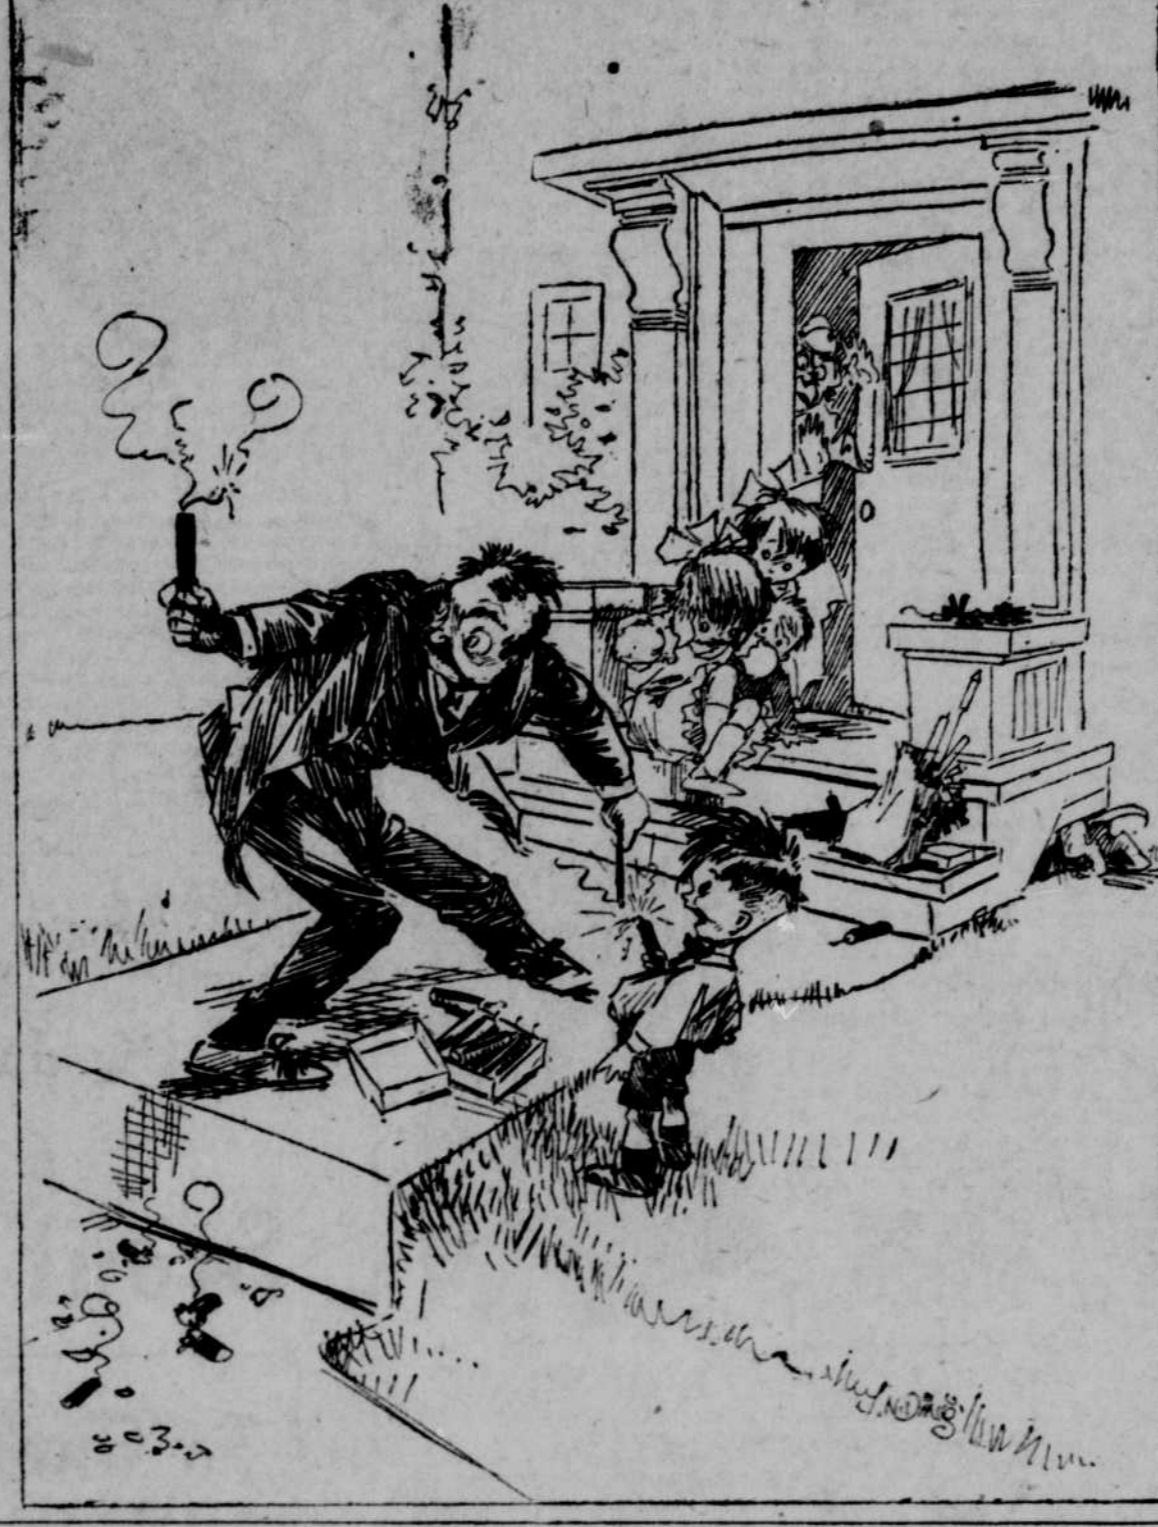

They didn't make one dollar profit per 1,000 balls. Yet 2,000 people came to Brandeis Stores to buy Golf Balls. Hundreds of these people bought underwear, shirts, golf pants, shoes and clubs, not to speak of other departments of the store that profited from this army of visitors.

Brandeis Stores Sold Golf Balls for 25c Saturday

In Omaha there are 10,000 golf players. 7,000 people did not profit from this sale. Brandeis Stores would have been pleased to have welcomed and served the entire 10,000—and to the consumer's advantage. Some, of course, didn't need golf balls; others "forgot" about it—but for the most part golfers need to learn that in advertising lies the secret of economical buying.

July will be profit season for Bee advertising readers.

Big Fight Taken Over by Kearns

Dempsey's Manager Assumes Practically All Responsibility for Bout—Will Probably Have to Pay Referee.

Gibbons to Get Nothing

BY FRED S. HUNTER. Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Shelby, Mont., July 3.—A huge bowl-like arena with a seating capacity of 40,000, looms against the horizon on the outskirts of wind-swept Shelby tonight.

Wednesday afternoon 10,000, possibly 15,000 of those seats will be occupied at prices ranging from $20 to $55. The rest will be empty. And Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons will fight it out for the championship of the world before the smallest crowd that has witnessed a heavy-weight championship 60 in years.

For his part in the battle, Dempsey will receive $210,000 and whatever else his manager, Jack Kearns, can get, which probably won't be a great deal.

Gibbons' end on his percentage contract won't amount to more than a bag of peanuts. Kearns Takes Over Show. Jack Kearns practically took over the show today. The Montana promoters who undertook a great deal more than they were capable of handling, were conspicuous today by their absence. They apparently were content to stay under cover and let the great pile up on Kearns.

Kearns arrived in Shelby at noon today, to take charge of the ticket sale under the compromise agreement reached in Great Falls at 2:45 this morning. He found that he had to take charge of pretty much of everything else as though Kearns will have to pay out a considerable portion of the money he'll take in at the gate, for it looks as though Kearns will be the only one able to pay the referee and the preliminary fighters for their services.

Gets First $100,000.

Kearns, under the new agreement, is to receive the first $100,000 that comes in at the gate. It seems unlikely that the ticket sale, since Kearns took over the gate, will reach even that sum. And from whence might come the $20,000 or so necessary to compensate the referee and the preliminary fighters? Kearns will be the only man in Shelby with that much money.

On the train coming up from Great Falls this morning, Kearns admitted he realized payment would be up to him to make the show. "I've been the goat so far, so why not continue?" he laughed. "I suppose I'll have to foot the bill so the people who have bought tickets will get a run for their money."

$4,000 in Box Office.

When Kearns arrived in Shelby he found $4,000 in the box office. That's his start on the $100,000 he's shy. Kearns did not accompany Kearns to Shelby. He remains in Great Falls until Wednesday morning. Then he will come down for the fight in a private car. That's another $210 for Kearns to pay.

Shelby was crowded today with visitors here for the fight. Each incoming train carried its quota. Many Pullman cars have been sidetracked in the yards to accommodate those unable to find rooms in town. Shelby is spotted with big canvas tents containing from 25 to 400 cots each. Even the Shelby high school has been hurried into a rooming house.

Prices Out of Sight.

Prices have gone out of sight. Last Saturday a noon meal in Shelby's leading restaurant cost $1.50. Today a less ample meal brought a check for $5.

The wind blows constantly. There isn't a paved street in the town and the dust clouds almost strangle the throngs which mill up and down the quarter of a mile that constitutes the main street of the town.

Dempsey and Gibbons both rested today. Neither turned a hand. Some concern is expressed by Gibbons camp followers over the mental strain upon the challenger.

Probably never before has a challenger entered the ring against a champion with the psychological aspect of the affair so much against him. Gibbons will go in the ring knowing that he will not collect a red cent. And Gibbons is not the type of boxer who fights for the love of the game. It's a business proposition with him.

Fear Nervousness.

That's why Tommy's supporters fear that he may develop a nervousness that will be fatal to his chances for victory. Outwardly he has been as calm and unworried as a debutante. He laughs and jokes and manifests the greatest confidence in his ability to give Dempsey the trimming of his life.

But inwardly the mental strain must be great and at any moment the breakdown so greatly feared may come, but no matter what may be Gibbons' mental condition when he enters the ring little hope is held out for challenger by those who have seen the rival gladiators in training.
