

Woman Shot by Husband for Burglar

Jeweler, Hearing Wife Open Window, Fires Revolver at Shadow and Hits Her in Shoulder.

Mistaking his wife for a burglar, Carl W. Hansen, 4222 Pacific street, who operates a jewelry store at 2820 Leavenworth street, shot her through the shoulder with a revolver Sunday morning at 3.

Woman Opened Window.

Her husband heard the noise of the window opening. He seized a revolver from a chair beside the bed. Looking through the bathroom into the other room, he saw a shadow beside the window. He fired one shot, the bullet passing through his wife's shoulder.

She made no outcry. "Well, I guess you hit me," she said. "My God! Is that you?" her husband cried. "I thought you were a burglar."

He summoned neighbors and then telephoned for a physician.

No Arrests Made.

Detectives Killian and Davis investigated the shooting, but made no arrests. It was dark in the bedroom where his wife was standing, Hansen explained, and he could not see her.

The gun with which he shot has been at the side of his bed every night for three years. His jewelry store has been robbed three times. A year ago last Christmas the safe was dynamited by burglars and $4,000 worth of jewelry taken.

Mrs. Hansen was able to be out of bed today.

Following the report of police to County Attorney Deal, the latter stated that he would make no investigation, because he was satisfied that it was an accidental shooting.

I. W. W. Commander Train; Cops Make Them Buy Tickets

Lincoln, July 16.—Twenty men, a number of them members of the Industrial Workers of the World, according to cards and booklets they carried, were taken from a Burlington route freight train last night by railroad special agents. State sheriff Carroll and deputy county sheriffs.

The men had commandeered the train and when challenged by a brakeman compelled him to get off. At Cushman station, about five miles from here, authorities were notified. They found nearly 40 in the party, but about half of them escaped.

The 20 arrested were compelled to walk to Lincoln, and given their choice of buying tickets to Omaha or going to jail. They pooled their money and bought tickets.

Pessimist Finds Way to Keep Cool; Keeps Clean

Dresher Brothers Spend $15,000 Per Year for Scientific Service.

Even a pessimist can keep cool by keeping clean. But, for satisfaction and economy, the cleaning process must be thoroughly correct. Thorough cleaning allows your clothes to breathe and makes them wear longer, university authorities say.

It stands to reason that cleaning done according to accurate scientific principles is the most satisfactory and an economy in the long run.

That's why Dresher Brothers and nine other progressive cleaners of the country maintain a laboratory for scientific research at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dresher Brothers are not only dyers and cleaners, but haters, tailors, furriers, rug cleaning experts, and operate a cold storage plant for furs, rugs and clothing.

They maintain branches, for the convenience of customers, at Brandeis, Burgess-Nash, Dresher the Tailor, 1515 Farnam street, and on the South Side at 4645 South Twenty-fourth street.

Deposed Pastor Back in Pulpit

Denounces Ecclesiasticism of Church in Sermon to Former Flock.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.

Aurora, Neb., July 16.—Standing in the pulpit of the First Methodist church of Aurora, where he was pastor for 11 years before he was deposed by a recent conference, J. D. M. Buckner today denounced the ecclesiasticism of the church which, he said, had obscured for 1,900 years the true preaching of the gospel of the kingdom of heaven as preached by Jesus Christ.

He said that the burden of the preaching of Christ was that the kingdom of heaven is to be brought to this earth. Its preaching is the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. It calls for better social conditions among men on this earth in order that they may better enjoy this world, declared Buckner.

Blames Apostle Paul.

He blamed the Apostle Paul for substituting the "gospel of the church" for the "gospel of the kingdom of heaven." Other disciples and preachers followed in the wake of Paul and soon the gospel of the kingdom of heaven as preached and taught by Christ was entirely obscured, he said, and it has only been taught by progressive ministers since about 1820.

Paul and the other early preachers built up a kingdom of heaven in the after life instead of in this life as taught by Christ, said Mr. Buckner. These preachers taught, erroneously, that every effort must be made to save the soul for some mystical heaven hereafter, he said. Modern evangelists hold up before their hearers the bliss of future heaven and the blister of future hell and tell them it is just a question of joining the church or staying out of the church that decides which place the soul will go, he said.

Preaches New Doctrine.

Mr. Buckner said that this kind of preaching and teaching was carried on almost exclusively for 1,900 years.

"Washington Gladden was the first preacher to preach the real gospel of the kingdom of heaven, as announced by Jesus Christ, and when he preached of having the kingdom of heaven here on earth instead of after death, in 1890, his pulpit was a lone some among the churches," said Mr. Buckner.

He said that the world is now taking rapidly to the gospel of the kingdom as preached by progressives like Gladden.

Co-Op Marketing to Be Discussed

Farm Bureau Organization Will Hear Expert Explain Co-Operative Methods.

Secretary C. B. Steward of the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation has arranged with Walton Petzet, director of co-operative marketing of the American Farm Bureau federation, for a week of intensive study of co-operative marketing problems with the leaders of the co-operative marketing organizations of Nebraska July 23 to 27.

The promotion of co-operative marketing organizations occupies a major position in the program of work of the American Farm Bureau federation. The officers of the federation believe the marketing of farm products by producer-controlled co-operative marketing organizations offers a solution of the economic ills of American agriculture, in so far as they are the result of a poor marketing system.

The schedule for the week is as follows:

July 23, at the headquarters of the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation, 1543 O street, Lincoln. A meeting with the board of directors, extension service and farm bureau members and Co-operative Marketing association members. A general discussion of co-operative marketing in other states and suggestions applicable to Nebraska conditions.

The evening of July 23 will be spent at Beatrice with the farm bureau board of Gage county. Business men interested in the business welfare of the farmer will be welcome at all of these meetings and conferences. The question of grain marketing will receive special consideration at the Beatrice meetings.

July 24, at Kearney and Odessa, in Buffalo county. Business men interested in the business welfare of the farmer will be fully discussed.

July 25, Mr. Petzet will be the principal speaker at the big Madison county farm bureau picnic at Battle Creek.

July 26, at Chadron, with the Dawes county farm bureau.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Beware of folks who talk too much; No secrets ever safe with such. —Danny Meadow Mouse.

The Home That Peter Couldn't Find.

Peter Rabbit sat talking aloud to himself. He was admitting to himself that he must give up hunting for the home of Danny Meadow Mouse. He was admitting to himself that he hadn't the least idea where to look for that home. Peter would have been the most surprised fellow in all the Green Meadows could he have known that all the time just over his head some one was listening to him, and having the hardest work not to laugh right out. That some one was Danny Meadow Mouse himself.

You see where Peter was sitting was just inside the alder thicket that grew along the Laughing Brook just above where it enters the Smiling Pool. Peter had gone in there because it was shady there and very comfortable. Just back of him and about three feet above his head in an alder bush was an old nest. It was an old nest of Redwing the Blackbird. Peter knew it was there. He had known of that nest for a long time. Every one who had happened along that way after the leaves had fallen late the previous fall had known of that nest. Then no one could very well help seeing it. Now that the leaves were out again it was quite hidden. Still, of course, Peter knew it was there.

Peter also knew that Redwing and Mrs. Redwing build a new nest each year, and so have no use for their old nests. So he hadn't even looked up at that old nest. Probably if he had he wouldn't have noticed anything different about it because he wouldn't have looked sharply enough. You know we are very apt to see things as we expect to see them. But that old nest was different. Yes, it was quite different from what it had been. You see now it had a roof, and that is something that Redwing and Mrs. Redwing never put on their nest. With that roof on it that old nest made the most comfortable home you could imagine. Of course, you have guessed whose home it was. It was the new home of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse, and Danny himself was sitting with only his funny little head out of the little round doorway. It was Danny who was having such hard work not to laugh right out, as I have told you before.

I wish you could have seen the twinkle in those little bright eyes of his as he listened to Peter. He thought it the best joke ever. He could picture to himself how surprised Peter would be if he should speak to him and tell him to look up. He longed to do it. He did so. He longed to do it.

"But that would be foolish," said Danny to himself. "I would love to see Peter surprised, but it is worth a lot more to keep this home of ours a secret. If Peter knew of it he would be sure to give the secret away. He wouldn't mean to, but he would do it, just the same. People who talk too much and have too much curiosity can't keep secrets. Sometimes when I get the chance I'll tell Peter that I saw him right close to my home. It will be great fun to see him hunt again. If I know Peter at all, and I think I know him pretty well, he'll be back here again tomorrow. Peter does hate to give up when his curiosity isn't satisfied."
