Quartet, Reunited, Spend Summer Evenings at Walden Wood

Walden Wood, the summer home of the Myron Learned, perched high on the hills north of Florence, resounds Saturday evenings to the carolling of a quartet who have lately been reunited after many years.

Comings and Goings of People You Know.

Miss Marian Hoerner is visiting relatives in Hastings. Mrs. P. J. Haas returned Saturday from a visit in Kansas. Mrs. C. H. Ashton is visiting her mother in Buffalo, N. Y.

en, finding Katie with her face close to the kitchen window which commanded a view of the road. She turned as we entered, and I saw that she was puzzled about something.

"Something's foony about dose peopies cross road," she said, as she saw us. "How is that, Katie?" I asked with interest quickened by her comment.

"Yah, dot Jeem he do goot job," Katie's indifferent drawl was irresistibly laugh provoking. "Und all oder vegetables in cold water ready to cook. You shoost put dot schick-en ofer now, und den you got nod-dings to do until you vant put vegetables on, except feex salad. Dere apple pie in pantry. Ket von't be hard for you. But dot old voman has crust, making you get dinner ven you only home dees leetle—Oh! I forgot vunce more. I no call her old voman."

"I'll Help You." "Yah, dot Jeem he do goot job," Katie's indifferent drawl was irresistibly laugh provoking.

Joseph, Mo., and will be here for a short stay. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hills and daughters, Josephine and Margaret, returned Monday from a motor trip to Minnesota.

"So would I," I returned, "but there's no way of finding out, so I'll tackle this chicken instead, and get it over before any other interruption."
