

Bride Is Brutally Murdered in Home; Mate in Hospital

Bloody Finger Print Only Clue to Pittsburgh Killing —Spouse of Victim Run Over by Train.

(By International News Service.) Pittsburgh, Pa., July 18.—A bloody finger print found on a mantel cover was the main clue upon which detectives were working this afternoon to solve the mysterious slaying of Mrs. Julia Coyne, a girl-bride of several months, at her home in Port Perry near Braddock, this county. The woman, noted for her beauty in the Braddock region, was found dead in her home by her father, John Conroy. The bedroom of the three-room cottage was a scene of confusion. The woman lay nude on her bed shot through the head. Her clothing had been torn from her body and pushed under a dresser. Detectives believe her clothing had been removed after she was dead and life had been extinct 12 hours, according to a coroner's deputy.

Detectives searching the house found a revolver in a holster slip under the head of the girl. One chamber was empty, the officers said. It was identified as belonging to Patrick Coyne, 35-year-old husband of the woman. In a pocket of Coyne's coat, hanging in a cupboard, detectives found four loaded and two empty shells of the same calibre as the revolver. Two other empty shells were found in the grate.

The husband, with both legs cut off last night by a freight train, lies close to death in a Pittsburgh hospital. County Detective Michael Veraky went to the hospital to question the husband. Other detectives are investigating the husband's accident. One bullet killed the woman, a coroner's deputy said. Around her arm was a string of rosary beads. Detectives take the view that she died pleading and praying that her life be spared.

At the hospital this afternoon Coyne told a deputy coroner he purchased the revolver three weeks ago and had target practice several times since then. On Monday night he hid the revolver, he said, and since then had not seen it. He became hysterical and the questioning was ended.

"Take a Chance" Vivian to Dive at Omaha Bee Picnic

Vivian Karls.

By day a typist and office manager in an insurance company. By night a "dare-devil" performer. This is the daily program of "Take a Chance," Vivian Karls, Omaha girl. During the day she is one of the typists and office managers of the Columbia Fire Insurance company. At night she is the girl who makes the daring dive, astride the diving horse at Krug park.

Miss Karls' act has attracted nationwide attention, especially because she does not make "dare-devil" performing her sole occupation.

Dives for Bee Guests.

The guests of The Omaha Bee at the big family outing will have an opportunity to see Miss Karls in her sensational dive with the famous diving horse, for she has consented to make a special dive for guests of this newspaper during the afternoon of the big outing.

You and the children will be thrilled as you see this pretty girl, still in her 20's, seated on the horse, on the high diving board.

Then the horse walks slowly to the end of the diving board of the pool below. Suddenly he leaps. Miss Karls remains on his back until he comes to the surface of the water and begins to swim out.

Dare Starts Diving.

It is an event worth seeing. Miss Karls made the first dive with the horse on a dare.

"I will be delighted to make a special dive for The Omaha Bee guests," said Miss Karls. "I will make it extra-sensational, too."

Many other special features are being arranged by The Omaha Bee in connection with its outing. The Krug park management is co-operating in every way and has promised a string of free tickets to every guest who has a coupon clipped from The Omaha

Bee. This coupon will appear soon. Besides the free tickets, reduced prices will be given to the park's swimming pool and other attractions. Don't forget the date, Wednesday, July 25. Johnson to Help Smash 'Machine'

W. H. Green Declares Minnesota Senator Will Battle Men Who "Cleaned" Farmers.

W. H. Green of Omaha, vice chairman of the federated farmer-labor party recently organized at Chicago, issued a statement here yesterday declaring that Magnus Johnson, newly elected farmer-laborite candidate for United States senator from Minnesota, would help smash the "machine" that has "cleaned" American farmers. Commenting on a statement from Washington last night by Chairman Hull of the democratic national committee in which Mr. Hull represented the result of Monday's Minnesota election as a protest of not only farmers, but all classes against republican high tariffs, Mr. Green declared that the "farmers are not greatly interested in the pros and cons of the tariff tennis ball that the republicans and democrats have been passing to each other every few years."

Mr. Hull, however, would be interesting if he would state how many democratic senators voted for the sugar and other schedules of that republican tariff he is now reviling," Mr. Green's statement said, adding: "The farmers have been cleaned and the cleaning was done with one of the latest improved vacuum cleaners, with the handle and motor on the Atlantic seacoast, and you can feel the suction out here 24 hours of the day. Magnus Johnson will help smash that machine."

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Very few take notice of a thing of which everywhere in every way you find that this is so.—Nanny-Meadow Mouse.

How Nanny Chose the New Home.

When Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse had started out to look for a new home they hadn't had the least idea where that new home would be. They simply wanted to get away from where they had been living not far from the dear Old Briar-patch. Too many knew that they were living there. Life was too uncertain. It seemed to them that they spent most of their time dodging enemies. So at last they had started out to look for a new home.

Now it happened that they were in no particular hurry about that new home, and so they kept on going farther and farther. They were exploring, and always it is fun to explore. Each time they thought of stopping they would feel the urge to go on a little farther. And so it was that at last they reached the Smiling Pool. They couldn't go any farther in that direction without swimming, and while both could swim, neither wanted to. So they turned and went up along the Smiling Pool and passed where the rushes grew at the place where the Laughing Brook entered the Smiling Pool, and so they came to the place where the alders grew.

Of course they had to explore that alder thicket. They had no intention of making their home in there, but they wanted to see what it was like in there and learn all about it. They expected to make their home on the ground or in it, as they always had. It was Nanny who chanced to look up and see the old nest of Redwing the Blackbird. It wasn't very high up, and it was a very easy matter to climb to it. Nanny did climb to it. She wanted to see what it was like. She found a very well built and comfortable nest. Being tired, she curled up in it to rest. And then it was that the great day came to her. She scrambled out of that nest and down to the ground so fast that Danny was sure she had been frightened. "What is it, Nanny?" he cried. Nanny's eyes were dancing with excitement. "It's our new home!" she cried.

Danny stared at Nanny as if he thought she were crazy. He looked

Each time they thought of stopping they would feel the urge to go on a little farther.

"Well, that's where we are going to live," replied Nanny. "You know our cousin, Whitefoot the Wood Mouse, sometimes builds his home in a bush or tree. There isn't any reason in the world why we shouldn't. We'll put a fine roof over that old nest, and we'll have the safest home we have ever had in all our lives. Every one who knows of that old nest knows it is an old one, and no one will look at it twice. We are right on the edge of the Green Meadows, and we can live just as well as we ever did, and I guess better."

Danny looked a little doubtful, but he wisely held his tongue. He had learned that when Nanny had made up her mind to anything he might as well agree. So he half-heartedly fell to work to help make a roof over that old nest. Before it was finished he was quite as delighted with the idea as was Nanny, and together they worked as only two Meadow Mice can.

Mausoleum Decree Asked Set Aside in Petition of Four

Columbus, Neb., July 18.—Application to set aside the decree in the Kinnan case which provided that the bodies of Joseph R. and Martha J. Kinnan, deceased husband and wife, should both be placed in a mausoleum in Columbus cemetery and that the six sons and daughters should all have legal rights to visitation to the mausoleum has been filed in district court by the plaintiffs. An order setting aside the decree is requested chiefly on two allegations: First, that Misses Jessie and Dollie Kinnan, the defendants who erected the mausoleum, have refused to deposit a key to it with the sexton of the cemetery as directed in the decree, and second, that the plaintiffs have discovered new evidence material to their contentions in the cause.
