

Beatrice Fairfax PROBLEMS THAT PERPLEX.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Who is right and who is wrong in this argument?

I have been going with a young man four years my senior for six months. Recently he has begun bossing me— or trying to boss me around. He objects to almost all of my girl friends. Says they are not the sort for me to have as permanent friends and wants me to drop them. There is nothing wrong with these girls though one or two are perhaps a little loud. My friend has not yet asked me to marry him and so I feel he has no right whatever to order me around. My mother, however, takes sides with him and raises such a fuss every time I go anywhere with these girls. I have no peace. I am very fond of him but feel if I give in now in this he will always have the upper hand. BROWNIE. There is no "boss" in the modern marriage. People who are congenial and care for each other just marry and go on as before. The successful marriage is a purely 50-50 proposition, and therefore neither party to the contract assumes the added obligation of doing the thinking for both. The young man you speak of has no right to dictate to you or to overbearing in any way. Not because he hasn't proposed—but because it isn't good taste. However, it is always permissible and justifiable for a friend to advise, though often such benevolence is misunderstood and always it is resented. Nevertheless such advice works wonders in helping us to see ourselves as others see us.

Frontier Between Ruhr and Rest of Germany Opened Dusseldorf, July 26.—The frontier separating the Ruhr valley from the rest of Germany was opened at midnight.

Thousands of Germans were packing in and out of the occupied region today, making haste to transact urgent business. They were anxious to accomplish all possible during the present opportunity because of reports that the frontier would be closed again.

Pupils Slain, Japanese Teacher Kills Himself Tokio, July 26.—Because four of his pupils, on their return home from a school picnic were crushed to death in a train accident, Mr. Yasutaro Mori, an instructor in the Shikanshima primary school near Osaka, committed suicide by jumping in front of a train on the same line on which the children were killed. It is reported that blame by the parents of the children for their death caused Mr. Mori to kill himself.

Nurse Praises Tanlac, Following 15-Lb. Gain

Miss Mary Early, 1331 North Twentieth street, Omaha, Neb., practical nurse for the past 15 years, prompted by gratitude for the Tanlac treatment, because of its benefits to her and others, recently gave out the following statement: "Tanic is the one medicine I can recommend knowing full well it merits the highest praise, not only because of what it has done for me, but because of what I have seen it do for others. My brother was flat on his back with typhoid for a long time, and afterwards was so weak he could barely walk from one chair to another. I gave him Tanlac and it
