Ingraham-Casteel.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Casteel announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Alice, to Daniel D. Ingraham of Sapulpa, Okl., on August 2. The ceremony will take place in the First Christian church in Kansas City, Mo., with the groom's father, Rev. M. F. Ingraham of Sapulpa, officiating.

Miss Casteel will wear a gown of white chiffon trimmed with black figures and made in an old-fashioned style. She will wear a large black picture hat. Her sister, Mrs. B. R. Chizek, will be matron of honor and James Ingraham, brother of the groom, will be best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Ingraham will be at home at 2411 A street after August 15.

Johnson-Gruben.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gruben of Council Bluffs announce the marriage of their daughter, Bernice, to Fred E. Johnson, son of Mrs. E. Johnson of Omaha, which took place this morning, 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. F. C. Sager of the Epworth Methodist church officiating, in the presence of the immediate relatives.

The bride was attended by Miss Esther Lindbloom of this city and Harry Johnson, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Following the ceremony the couple left for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will reside.

Visitor Honored.

Dorothy Graham will entertain at luncheon and the matinee dance at Happy Hollow club Thursday in honor of Mary Louise Boos of Los Angeles, who is visiting Gertrude Irene Welch. Covers will be placed for the Misses Welch, Boos, Graham, Evelyn Pierpoint, Mary Jane Pinkerton, Marthene Hanford, Barbara Baird, Betty Davison and Mrs. Will T. Graham.

For Miss Hill.

Mrs. Arthur English will entertain at her home at luncheon on Friday in honor of her niece's guest, Miss Esther Hill, of Kansas City. Miss Hill, and Miss Florence Fowler, niece of Mrs. English, are classmates at the University of Missouri. Miss Fowler will hold a picnic at Elkhorn ridge Monday afternoon in honor of her guest.

Honoring Dr. Hanchett.

Mr. and Mrs. William Baxter entertained at Valley at dinner on Monday night in honor of Dr. Mienicken Hanchett of Chicago, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Hanchett of Council Bluffs. Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. Hanchett, Corinne Paulson, Katherine Baxter, Fred Loomis and Senator R. B. Howell.

Miss Flickinger Honored.

Mrs. Helen Sadlek Kyhl and Miss Elsie Paustian entertained 24 guests at the Kyhl home Tuesday evening complimentary to Miss Edith Flickinger of New York, who is spending the summer with her mother in Council Bluffs.

Morning Bridge.

Mrs. P. A. Heinfeldt will give a morning bridge Thursday at her home, honoring her house guest.

Former Expression Teacher Here, a Visitor

Returning to Omaha for a visit after a year's residence in Minneapolis, is Mrs. Effie Steen Kittleson. For 11 years Mrs. Kittleson was teacher in the art of expression in Omaha. She produced plays, trained private pupils and gave lectures.

Mrs. Kittleson speaks with enthusiasm of her work in the twin cities where she intends to remain. She maintains a studio there and works chiefly as lecturer to large classes. They have included story telling groups, Bible classes, republican women, club women, musicians and high school students. Mrs. Kittleson went to Minneapolis shortly after her return from a trip abroad where she did post-graduate work in the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London.

Mrs. H. H. Fish, who is Mrs. Kittleson's hostess in Omaha, entertained for her at luncheon at the Country club Wednesday. Mrs. Kittleson leaves Thursday for a visit at Wahoo. She will return to Omaha later in the month for a short stay en route to Minneapolis for the beginning of her season's work September 1.

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

The way Katie and Midge found Jim Katherine looked at me with a curious startled tenseness when I announced my intention of going with Katie in search of Jim. I knew that expostulation was trembling upon her lips, but before Katie she said nothing save an eager assent to my query.

"Of course I'll see to the dinner," she said. But come in here a second before you go."

I followed her out of the kitchen through the dressing room, and into the library, where she closed the door behind us.

"Look here," she said, taking me by the shoulders. "There's danger in going after Jim, isn't there?"

"That depends," I returned truthfully. "It depends upon what Jim has succeeded in doing. But I don't believe—"

"But I do believe," Katherine returned firmly. "And I want you to let me go out there with Katie. It—it doesn't matter much to anybody what becomes of me, but you have your little boy. You ought not to risk danger."

Her words startled me with their implication of unhappiness. I knew that she had no near relatives—but Jack, her husband—did she mean that it would not matter much to him if anything happened to her? Had anything of which I did not know transpired in my absence to make her feel so morbid?

I had not time to speculate upon one of her kitchen implements which I knew was sharpened to a razor edge. "Put that away, Katie," I said, restraining a smile with difficulty. "We're going out to hunt Jim, not to kill people."

"How you know we no need sooch things?" Katie demanded truculently, but she laid the knife down obediently, nevertheless. "Vot you goin' do eet dot mans oop dere, start keel it hard for me, Katherine."

Her lips curved into a smile at once tender and whimsical. "I won't, old Don Quixote," she said. "Run along before Mother Graham finds out you're going, or you'll be swallowed whole."

"She'd probably insist upon going, too," I replied as I heeded Katherine's injunction and hurried back to the kitchen, finding Katie cloaked and hooded, waiting impatiently at the door. She held her arm closely, stiffly against her side, and glancing keenly at it, I saw that she was concealing a long knife against her dress.

Katie Prepares Herself.

"I cannot shelter myself with that plea," I said. "It was I who told Jim of that escaped criminal out there, so I, alone, am responsible for his going after him, and I must go to find Jim. Please don't make it hard for me, Katherine."

"There's no chance of that," I said with an assured air which I hoped would quiet her fears, but I did not tell her that concealed in my dress was the tiny pistol which Lillian gave me long ago.

Katie accepted the inevitable with a characteristic shrug of the shoulders. "Maybe so, maybe not," she said sullenly, and then glanced uneasily through the window.

"Sun most down," she observed, "and we no can tell how long eet take to find dot Jeem. You take dot flashlight? No?"

"That's a very good idea, Katie," I assented. "Have you one here?"

"Two," she responded laconically. "Dot Jeem, he shootst have dem feezed, two, tree days ago."

"We'll take them both," I decided, glad to be relieved of the necessity of going after my own in my room, with the probability of meeting my mother-in-law on the way.

"I get vun present," Katie said eagerly, and in less than the time she had named we were outdoors, walking toward the woodland whither Jim had followed the escaped boot-legger.

But for minutes that seemed hours, an hour that stretched interminably into a century, we found no trace of the intrepid man who had gone out into danger with such brave simplicity.

It was long past twilight, almost pitch dark in fact, when hopelessly plodding back to the house by a different route than that which we had
