COOLIDGE PREPARES TO CARRY ON

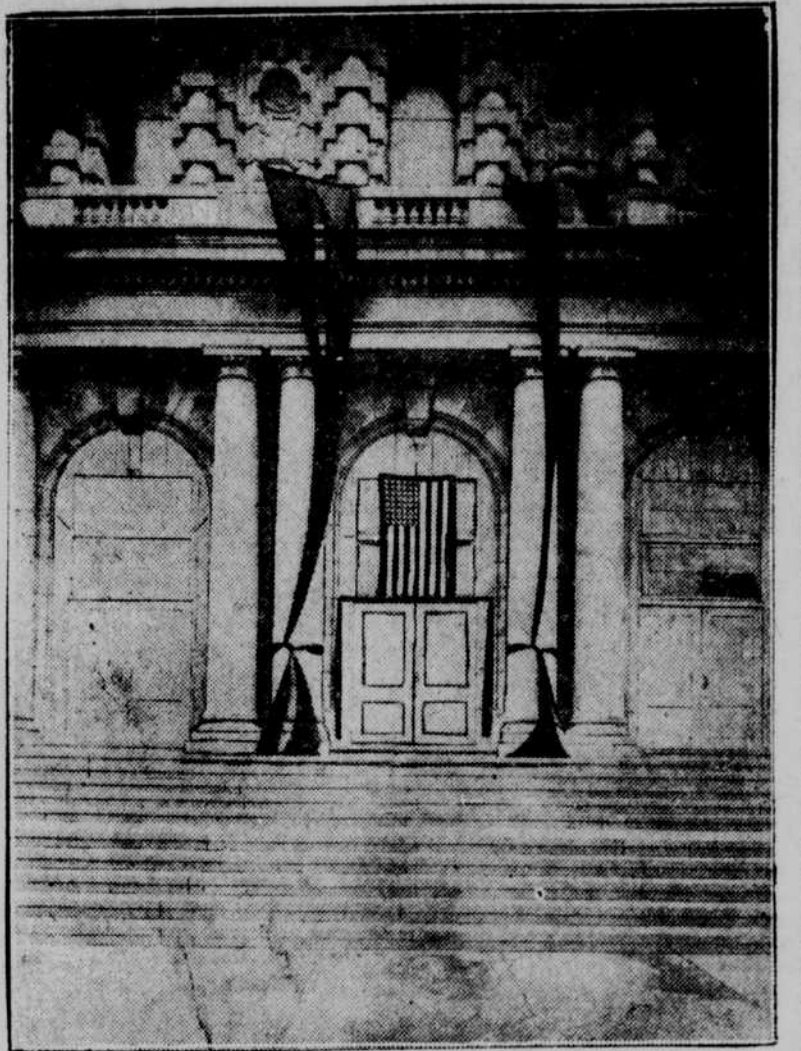

Germany's Hope Lies in Agreement

Anglo-French Parley Result Will Bear on Future of Country—Needs Financial Aid.

Fear Split Up of Nation

By MARK SULLIVAN.
New York, Aug. 4.—What is going to happen in Germany is directly tied up with whether the French and British agree, and, if they agree, what they agree upon. In fact, British-French agreement or disagreement is the determining factor in the future of Germany, both the immediate future and the distant future.
If they don't agree, if the French government keeps its army in the Ruhr, some form of revolution and dissolution is sure to come upon Germany. It won't be avoided, either, by the cessation of passive resistance, or by the continuance of passive resistance. If the Berlin government continues passive resistance the disaster will come through the collapse of the currency and the paralysis of industry, followed by famine, violence and revolution. On the other hand, if the Berlin government should withdraw its orders for passive resistance, withhold its financial aid to the Ruhr workmen, and try to persuade them to work under the French bayonets—then, in that event, equally certain disaster would come in a different form. The reactionaries and nationalists throughout Germany, in the Ruhr and outside it would revolt against the government for its weakness at the same time great numbers of the workmen in the Ruhr would revolt in the contrary direction of communism. The financial help which the Berlin government and the big industrialists give to the idle workmen in the Ruhr has as its purpose not only resistance to the French, but equally as much, or more, the staying off of communism. (All this is subject to the qualification that the Berlin government would be able to withdraw passive resistance without causing revolution if that were part of an agreed program looking to the settlement of reparations and the ultimate withdrawal of the French army after reparations are paid.)
So that the fate of Germany, both immediate and ultimate, depends wholly on whether the French and British agree or fail to agree.
Fear Disruption.
The one thing feared in Germany is disruption, a splitting up into many pieces. Nobody in Berlin talks of

Omaha to Honor Late President

Civic, Military and Patriotic Bodies Will Meet Harding Funeral Cortège Early Monday Morning.

Silence and Simplicity

Many Omahans will be at the union station on Monday morning at 2:15 when the train bearing the body of President Harding will arrive here, en route from San Francisco to the national capital.
Civic, military and patriotic organizations have arranged to be at the depot, and citizens generally will, by their presence, express reverence for the memory of the nation's dead chief.
The occasion will be marked by simplicity. Gen. George B. Duncan and his staff of the Seventh Corps area will participate in the military honors. The troops of the Seventeenth infantry at Fort Omaha, in command of Lt. Col. Chas. W. Tilton, will be on parade at the station. The American Legion, Nebraska National guard and the Douglas County Reserve Officers association will be represented.
Officials Will Be There.
Mayor James C. Dahlman and the city commissioners will be joined by the county commissioners at the station. Police Commissioner Dan B. Butler will have charge of providing an orderly arrangement for those who wish to view the train. Railroad officials will suppress unnecessary noises during the time the train is in Omaha.
E. E. Calvin, vice president of the Union Pacific Railroad company, will accompany the train from Ogden to Omaha. The train will be here about 15 minutes.
The American Legion contingent at the station will salute as the train passes and will lower their flag according to regulations. The military troops will present arms as the train arrives and upon its departure.
Legion to Pay Respect.
Harry C. Hough, adjutant of the American Legion, issued the following notice to legionnaires:
"In time of war, the president is the commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the United States, and all service men stand by his command. In time of peace the president of the United States is still the superior officer of all service men, who gladly pay him the respect and homage due him. The Douglas county post of the American Legion, desiring to do all possible honor to our deceased commander-in-chief, Warren G. Harding, late president of the United States, will meet the funeral train as it passes through Omaha and give him our last salute."
The officers, executive committee members and members of Douglas county post will assemble at post headquarters, courthouse, at 1:30 o'clock Monday morning, and proceed in formation to the union station. It is the wish of the post commander, Hird Stryker, that every member of the post be on hand to fulfill this sacred obligation.
"HARRY C. HOUGH, Adjutant, Douglas County Post American Legion."

Lone Bandit Robs Salesman of $50 and $1,000 in Furs

H. Barrow, Los Angeles, Held Up After Attempting to Make Sale on South Side.

Police are searching for the lone bandit who held up and robbed H. Barrow, Los Angeles, a fur salesman, of more than $1,000 worth of furs and $50 in cash last night. The bandit is believed to be a member of an organized gang operating in Omaha, police said.
Barrow told the police that he had gone to an address in South Omaha to show some sample fur pieces to a customer. He was unable to negotiate the sale and had left the place when he was robbed. The bandit was unmasked and was armed with an automatic pistol believed to be an army model.
Barrow said that he had sold some furs to a friend of Willy Compton, 1722 Charles street, on a trip to Omaha last year. When he arrived in Omaha this time he called on Compton and offered to sell furs to any friends that Compton might have. Compton said he would see if any of his acquaintances wanted furs and requested Barrow to call him later.
Would Have Customer.
Yesterday afternoon Barrow met Compton and went with him to the home of Charles Hutter, 4429 South Eighteenth street, he said. There Hutter declared that he desired no furs but that if Barrow would return in the evening he would have a customer.
Hutter called Barrow to tell him to come to his home at 8:30 and to bring some "pieces" with him. At the home Barrow was unable to strike a bargain with the prospective customer and left after about half an hour. As he stepped into the taxi cab that had waited for him a man suddenly appeared, pointed a pistol at him and ordered him to put up his hands.
Bandit Grabs Furs.
The bandit grabbed the furs that Barrow had over his arm, then searched his pockets and took $50. He then ordered Barrow to enter the cab and "beat it."

Silent Throngs Pay Tribute to Dead President

Funeral Train Bearing Body of Harding Eastward on Schedule—Crowds at All Stations.

By Associated Press.
On Board Harding's Funeral Train at Ogden, Utah, Aug. 4.—The special train bearing the body of Warren G. Harding arrived here shortly after 10 tonight, mountain time, and started on a portion of the route it travels just 39 days ago carrying Mr. Harding, then well, happy and hopeful, to the Pacific coast and Alaska.
The same people of Ogden that on the morning of June 26 welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Harding to Utah with cheers, music and flowers, tonight stood in silent reverence.
The train paused here but a few minutes and then continued on its way, passing between here and Cheyenne over the same route traveled June 25 and 26. It is due to reach Cheyenne at 1:15 Sunday afternoon.
Messages were sent from the train here to those in charge of the funeral arrangements in Washington, that it was the wish of Mr. Harding that the services in the capitol conform as much as possible to the order of those held here for President McKinley.
By International News Service.
On Board Harding Funeral Train, En Route to Washington, D. C., Elkhart, N.Y., Aug. 4.—Over the sunbaked deserts and through the lowly mountains of the far west, the Harding funeral train, burdened with the sorrow of the nation, made scheduled time today on its long, eastward trail.
All along the route, from the more pretentious cities to the tiny cow towns and mining camps of Nevada, Utah and Wyoming, a reverent people came forth to stand silently beside the railroad track and to pay homage in the only way they could to the silent figure wrapped in the shining colors of the flag in the rear car.
People Pay Silent Tribute.
All day and all night it was the same unfolding panorama of desert, mountains and green-clad hills, dotted at varying intervals with throngs of people, silent, respectful, saddened. It was in the small towns that Warren G. Harding loved so well that the reverence seemed more pronounced. Perhaps it was because Warren G. Harding himself came from a small town. He loved the small town, he said.

Lincoln, Aug. 4.—Nebraska nearly lost an automobile ace in a near tragedy enacted last night on the D-L-D highway near Ashland, according to Cannonball Baker, chief character in the drama.
Baker started from Lincoln on a speed run to Omaha. At University Place an officer mistook the race driver for a bootlegger and broadcast his suspicions. In consequence, when he passed through Ashland and neared the Platte river bridge, there loomed the law.
"Halt!" commanded the marshal. Baker halted not.
Six pistol balls in rapid succession followed Cannonball.
Baker made the 63 miles to Omaha in 68 minutes.

He was an admirer and strong supporter of the president during his lifetime.

Bryan Missing; State Wreath Is Sent by Aides

Minor Nebraska Officials Pay Tribute to Harding When Governor Fails to Act.

Lincoln, Aug. 4.—Unable to locate Governor Charles W. Bryan or receive any word directing official state action in expressing the state's sorrow over the death of President Harding, Dan Swanson, state land commissioner, late today called a meeting of state officers to decide on fitting action.
As a result, executive officers purchased a wreath of flowers and a committee composed of Dan Swanson, land commissioner; J. M. Matzen, state superintendent; and H. G. Taylor, railway commissioner, was appointed to join the Omaha committee in meeting the train carrying the president's body across the continent Monday morning.
Charles W. Pool, secretary of state, was invited to act as a member of the committee, but declined because of illness of his wife.
Message of State.
Following is the message to be delivered with the wreath:
"It is with inexpressible sorrow that we hear of the death of our honored and beloved president, Warren G. Harding. In his passing, we have sustained an irreparable loss that will be felt in the hearts and homes of all true citizens of the republic. We bow in humble submission to this affliction with the hope that the God, in whom we believe, will sustain us."

Free Tickets to Wild Animal Show Offered to Youngsters

Every boy and girl in Omaha between 5 and 16 will be given an opportunity to see the wild animal picture, "Mrs. Martin Johnson's Trail of African Wild Animals" as the guest of The Omaha Bee, while the picture is being shown at the Moon theater the week beginning next Saturday.
In addition to free movie tickets, cash prizes will be awarded in a contest which has a distinct educational value.
The nature of the contest, briefly, is this:
Rules of Contest.
Starting tomorrow and continuing through the balance of next week, The Evening Bee will publish photographs of different wild animals that Mrs. Johnson captured or shot while the picture was being filmed. Every one of these photographs will be numbered, and every entrant in the contest should cut out the picture and write beneath it plainly the name of the animal.
Do not send in your identifications until the contest is closed. The last picture will be printed in Friday evening's edition of this week. After the complete set of pictures is published, paste them neatly on card board or a piece of paper, and bring them to the office of The Omaha Bee.
To every boy or girl who submits a complete set of the pictures, regardless of whether or not the names are correct, a free ticket to the wild animal picture will be given.
List of Prizes.
In addition for the first correct answer, The Omaha Bee will award a prize of $10, with a second prize of $5, a third prize of $3, a fourth prize of $2, and five more prizes of $1 each.
The Omaha Bee desires to have every boy and girl in Omaha and Council Bluffs see the movie as its guest, because it believes that the picture is one that every boy and girl should see, not alone for the entertainment, but for its educational value.
Mothers and fathers of the younger children will be permitted to assist them in the contest, but from an educational standpoint, it would be well to let the children work out the entire contest themselves. The public library is available for their research.
"A splendid idea," says Miss Edith Tobitt, librarian.
Endorses Contest.
"I heartily endorse this contest and I hope that every child in Omaha and Council Bluffs enters as it offers them an opportunity for entertainment in an educational way. The public libraries are at the disposal of every boy and girl. In the children's room on the second floor of the main library, children will find good books on African wild animals, and they will be welcome to compare the pictures which appear in The Omaha Bee with the pictures in the books."
"The public library is open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. The children living in the neighborhood of the sub-libraries should use these stations: Benson, Florence, Twenty-fifth and Ames and Twenty-third and M streets. It will be interesting to me to watch for the outcome of the idea, which The Omaha Bee is sponsoring."
In making the film, Mrs. Martin Johnson took her camera and gun and went into the very heart of the African jungles, photographing as she went along, the wild beasts of the country.
Remember the first picture will be published in The Evening Bee on Monday. Watch for it.

Chief Puts Shoulder to Wheel

New President Spends Day Getting Line on Affairs of State—Signs Name to First Proclamation.

No Changes at Present

By Associated Press.
Washington, Aug. 4.—President Coolidge today put his shoulder under the burden of government and made ready to carry on along the pathway pointed out by President Harding.
His second day as president was occupied with a long succession of official conferences in which he gained an initial grasp of his duties and responsibilities and made final plans for the state funeral of his predecessor. He signed the name of Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, for the first time to a proclamation announcing the passing of Mr. Harding and calling on the nation to observe next Friday as a day of mourning and prayer.
Affairs of state were taken up with several cabinet members, under-secretaries and others. Among those who called at the executive offices in the Willard hotel were Secretary Hughes, Postmaster General Nease, Secretary Denby, the acting secretaries of war, treasury and labor; Director Lord of the budget bureau, and Director Hines of the various federal agencies was discussed in connection with the problems of the early part of the year.

Announcements Withheld

Announcements of policy were withheld by the president, nor would he indicate tonight whether he had in mind an extra session of congress. "Everything stands as it is," he said to newspaper correspondents, "until you are notified to the contrary."
This statement applied also to the cabinet personnel, and it was learned later that the president hoped the present cabinet members would not only remain to assist him but would refrain from presenting even their customary formal resignations. The hope he is said to have expressed personally to all the cabinet officers now in Washington.
In addition to his talks with department and bureau chiefs, Mr. Coolidge was engaged throughout the day in conferences with Col. Clarence Sherrill, White House military aide, regarding plans for the funeral of President Harding. In mourning for his predecessor he wore a wide band of tresp on the sleeve of his gray suit.
Visits Old Office.
There was only one respite from the overflowing duties of his second day as national executive. About 2 this afternoon he left his hotel suite for a half hour to make a flying visit, possibly his last, to the office he occupied as vice president in the

Editors Meeting Is Postponed Two Weeks

J. S. Kroh of Ogallala, Neb., president of the Nebraska Press association, yesterday announced that due to the death of President Harding, the editors' summer outing, scheduled to be held in Omaha, August 9, 10 and 11, has been postponed to August 23, 24 and 25.
Friday, August 10, which was to have been the day of big entertainment during the outing, has been proclaimed as a day of national mourning, Mr. Kroh explained.
Aside from the two weeks' postponement there will be no change in the program, he said.

Couzens, in London, Fires Broadside at Prohibition

London, Aug. 4.—Senator James Couzens of Michigan, whom the Standard called "a shrewd Henry Ford's millionaire," arrived here today after a voyage across on the Leviathan, and immediately opened fire on prohibition.
Senator Couzens prophesied a speedy amendment of the "ridiculous Volstead act" for the sale of beverages containing 23.4 per cent alcohol.
"We in America are suffering from long-haired men and short-haired women whose fanaticalism produces the most serious results. The great tendency in America today is to prohibit everything. We are specializing on the word 'verboten,' as the Germans used to do. The result is that the plain people of America are alarmed."

Los Angeles Sportsman Held as Burglary Suspect

Los Angeles, Aug. 4.—Frank Lowry, widely known automobile race starter and sportsman, is being held in the criminal ward of the general hospital here, suffering from a broken leg and charged with suspicion of burglary. Police arrested Lowry three weeks ago when George B. Griffith declared Lowry was the man who jumped out of the window of Griffith's office to the street when Griffith surprised him kneeling before his safe. Lowry was taken into custody in front of the building which Griffith has offices, with his leg broken, apparently by a fall.
Lowry is said to be wanted by Seattle police in connection with a $40,000 bond robbery a year ago.
