

Raced With Lightning on Heels in Night

Pulls Into Boone 35 Minutes Late, Then Strikes Out Through Grain Belt.

By International News Service.
Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 6.—Rushing through Iowa today a modern caravan of sorrow carried the body of the 29th president of the United States "stood by" in reverence to a martyr of peace.

Thousands of Iowans gathered at Boone, Ames and Clinton to pay their last respects to the honored dead. This morning Mrs. Harding gazed upon a rolling landscape of green and golden corn and farm houses reminiscent of her home state of Ohio.

Impressive Masonic rituals of honor for the dead was exemplified at Boone by the Knights Templar of western Iowa, and at Clinton by the Knights Templar of eastern Iowa.

The funeral cortege was making up lost time as it sped through the nation's "avenue of sorrow," and left Boone, Ia., 35 minutes behind schedule time. Taps were sounded as the train slid away from the Boone station, where the streets were packed with spectators.

United States Senator A. B. Cummins, Des Moines, who was to head the delegation of honor to meet the train and escort it through the state, was unable to officiate because of his duties as president of the senate calling him to Washington, and the other members of the party, including distinguished Iowans from every walk of life, decided to abandon the trip because of the crowded conditions obtaining on the presidential special.

By International News Service.
Aboard the Harding Funeral Train, Aug. 6.—Throughout most of the night the train ran steadily away from a severe thunder and electrical storm which constantly was on its heels. The train only escaped from the rain and lightning when it crossed the Missouri river early this morning and struck out through the Iowa grain belt. Officials aboard the train received assurances from Washington today that Mrs. Harding's desire for the capital cemetery to follow the precedents established in the rites for President McKinley will be carried out to the letter.

There is a remarkable similarity in the careers and lives of these two Ohio presidents which is frequently commented upon by those aboard the funeral train. Each had served his state in Columbus and in congress before going to the White House. Each was known for his sane conservatism, kindly human qualities, and each expired during his term of office.

Even in their domestic lives the parallel extends. Mrs. McKinley's health was, after a severe illness, very precarious and her husband was ever solicitous of her physical well being even as President Harding was so tenderly watchful of Mrs. Harding ever since her severe illness a year ago and yet despite her illness Mrs. McKinley survived her husband even as now Mrs. Harding despite her illness has survived him who was looked upon but a month ago as a picture of health and vigor.

"Help Wanted" Is Cry of East: Many Jobs Offered, Applicants Few

By International News Service.
New York, Aug. 6.—"Help wanted." This is the cry of the east today. From Burlington, on New York's water front, through the upstate farm country and into the mill towns of Pennsylvania, labor—any kind at all—has a market approaching the heyday of war times.

Twenty-five of the largest employment agencies in New York gave this as their experience today. But, say the employers of labor, 1923 is the year of the "strong back profession." It is the laborer who is making the "big money." The white collar man is not doing so well, comparatively. "Every man and woman in the United States can be working today—there is no such thing as an unemployment problem," William J. Gallagher, in charge of the Knights of Columbus employment bureau said.

Mr. Gallagher had calls for 91 bricklayers at $13.50 for an eight-hour day; 38 carpenters at $9, 14 plumbers at $9, 17 plasterers at $12, all the common labor he can supply at from $7.50 to $9 and all the motor mechanics he can find at 74 cents an hour, with an offer of $400 a year bonus if the man will stay on the job 12 months.

E. J. Rowan, placing only college trained men, exhibited his list: Six civil engineers, $200 to $225 a month; 3 electrical engineers, $200 to $220; 9 mechanical engineers, $225 to $250.

Farm Hand Third Victim of Tragedy

Milo Wickey Who Had Searched River for Girls' Bodies Drops Dead.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.
Atlantic, Ia., Aug. 6.—Milo Wickey, 44, farm hand, was the third victim of the tragedy near Berea last Saturday when Clark Cadlock, 12, and Helen Weaver, 13, were drowned while wading in the Nodaway river. Wickey, who apparently had been in good health, dropped dead from a heart attack in the general store of Joe Yetter at Berea on 6 Saturday night. It is thought that exposure while in the river several hours searching for the bodies of the little girls brought on the attack. He leaves a wife and one son seven years old. The bodies of the drowned girls were found in a 10-foot hole in the river near the spot where they were wading in the stream. The bodies were located about 8:30 Saturday night, after searchers had dragged the stream for several hours. Funeral services for the little girls were held Monday. Services for Wickey will be held tomorrow.

Skeleton Found in Sand in River

Believed to Be Remains of Carl Scoresome, Fremont Railroad Employee.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.
Fremont, Neb., Aug. 6.—A skeleton, believed to be the remains of Carl Scoresome, 35, missing from his home in Fremont since last February, was found nearly buried in the sand along the bank of the Platte river south of this city by Will Taylor, farmer, living nearby.

The skeleton is the second to be found in this vicinity during the past week. Fishermen recovered the remains of George Larson, Oakland, in the Elkhorn river in practically the same manner.

Scoresome had been reported acting queerly before his disappearance. Parties living near the Platte river bridge south of Fremont reported they saw the body of a man plunge into the icy waters last February.

Curiosity impelled Taylor to go to the skeleton after he noticed bones protruding from the sand. Sheriff Condit took charge of the remains. Scoresome's coworkers at the Chicago & Northwestern railway shops who viewed the skull ascertain the skeleton is his remains because of the shape of the teeth.

Mrs. Scoresome, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Lena Shomsher, Scribner, Neb., has been called to view the skeleton. Scoresome was the father of two children.

Passes Opposed for Ministers

Lincoln, Aug. 6.—Lancaster county district court was called upon today to explain why ministers and charitable workers should ride on free passes in Nebraska, and lawyers, newspapermen and legislators should pay their own fare.

This explanation was called for in a petition for an injunction against five railroads to set aside the law passed by the last legislature granting free passage to ministers and charitable workers. C. A. Sorenson, Lincoln attorney, filed the petition at the request of certain ministers, priests and charitable workers who opposed free passage.

It is claimed in the petition that the law is unconstitutional. At the present time, ministers may ride interstate free, and the law passed by the last legislature provided free transportation for such persons intra-state.
