

Raleigh's Historic Briar Pipe Is Claimed by Two

London, Aug. 11.—Where is Sir Walter Raleigh's pipe? And who owns it? That is a question engaging the attention of lovers of the briar here, and, incidentally, is causing much controversy.

For some years Messrs. Dunhill, famous pipe is owned by them. But their claim is now disputed by one R. T. Spencer of Bristol, who maintains that the pipe is really in his possession. In support of his claim he puts forward interesting data in which he says that the pipe was presented early in the last century to his grandfather, then a young man, by an old soldier who had had the pipe in his possession for some time.
