

German Prices Continue to Climb; Papers Suspend

Reports From Paris Dissipate Feeling of Optimism Over Assumption of Office by Stresemann.

By Universal Service.
Berlin Aug. 17.—Reports from Paris regarding Premier Poincaré's coming to England, the new fall of the mark and a sudden attempt to make a transition to gold reckoning, have already dissipated the optimism which followed the assumption of office by Chancellor Stresemann.

At the close of the hour the dollar stood officially at 3,125,000 marks, but after the close of the exchange it went to 4,000,000.

The printers, who have been completing matters by crippling the money presses through their threatened strike, are demanding 48 gold marks weekly, which is more than a dollar above the wages demand that made the basis of agreement between the union and the Cuno government.

Owing to the demands of the printers, the newspaper publishers in middle Germany have decided to suspend publication unless the employees accept lower wages. Book publishers announce that it is impossible to print scientific books since the cost would be triple the world price, making them unsalable both here and abroad.

At Cologne the tram fare is 37 pfennigs. It was 10 before the war. Prices of all necessities are rising rapidly, partly as a result of high wages and partly because of the high taxes.

The Stresemann cabinet faces a muzzling situation; it can take no steps toward an active foreign policy until the domestic situation is in order, and it cannot bring order out of the domestic situation until the foreign problems are regulated.

The spectre of unemployment looms as prices of export products are approaching, or even in some cases exceeding, world market figures.

Viola Rose, 3, Reads The Omaha Bee Is Fond of Spark Plug

Viola Rose Neiswanger, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Neiswanger, 4704 South Twentieth street, has the distinction of being the youngest subscriber and reader of The Omaha Bee in South Omaha.

She is found by the carrier waiting in the front yard for the paper, which she takes to her favorite chair in the parlor and first proceeds to read the doings of Barney Google and Spark Plug, after which she scans the entire paper from the fashion section to the sport page.

Her proud parents say Viola will not give up her newspaper to other members of the family until she has entirely finished looking it over.

White Horse, S. D., Aug. 17.—From all parts of South Dakota, and as far away as Nebraska, members of the Sioux nation, representing more than 2,000 communicants of the Protestant Episcopal church, have trekked across the plains and were encamped last night in a great circle on the banks of the Missouri river. The meeting is the Niobrara convocation, Niobrara meaning running water in the Indian tongue.

The camp has always been held on the banks of some stream to afford water for the horses, but the horse-drawn prairie schooner is fast disappearing and the primitive conveyance made of fence poles has vanished. These Christian Sioux have traveled for the most part in automobiles, with here and there a spring wagon.

The Right Rev. Hugh I. Burleson, bishop of South Dakota, and the Right Rev. Blair Roberts, suffragan bishop, are here nominally in charge of the convocation, but in reality it belongs to the red man and all services will be held in the Dakota language.

Patriotic Week.
Week of September 16 to 22 has been set aside as "Constitution week" by the committee on American citizenship of the American Bar association.

Meetings of local bars in United States court rooms on September 17, the anniversary of the adoption of the constitution, has been urged, together with the preparation of appropriate programs.

Auto Crash Wrecks Brand New Car at Curb

H. W. Thornton, 324 North Forty-first avenue, called on police early Friday morning for aid in locating the motorist who crashed into and wrecked his brand new automobile while it was standing parked in front of his home.

Thornton had parked the car in the street before his home shortly after midnight. About 2 he heard a crash and the sounds of steel rending steel. He leaped from bed and went to investigate.

There on his front lawn, devoid of wheels, bent and twisted out of shape, lay his car, the pride of his heart. The careless motorist who had done the damage had not tarried, he had left as he had come, and all that Thornton could see was a tall light disappearing in the distance.

Coolidge Accepts Gift of Fox Terrier

Boston, Aug. 17.—President Coolidge has tentatively accepted the gift of a fox terrier from Dr. Alfonso G. Howard of this city. In response to the offer of the proposition, the president wrote: "I feel sure I will want the fox terrier you so kindly offered to me, but suggest that you write to me again a little later after I go to the White House."

Militant Church Hymns Endorsed by Clergy

Omaha Pastors Declare They Inspire an Aggressive, Virile Christian Life Despite Christian Endeavor Protest

Martial hymns of the church, such as "Onward Christian Soldiers," have a long life before them if the opinion of Omaha pastors is a guide, in spite of an attack not long ago at the International Christian Endeavor convention at Des Moines.

The discussion at the convention against the use of such hymns that seem to glorify war has met little favor in the eyes of Omaha clergy, nearly all of whom use the hymns and expect to keep on doing so. "Such hymns as 'Onward Christian Soldiers' are stimulating and, under a figure of speech, express a great truth," said Bishop Homer C. Stuntz of the Methodist Episcopal church. "The spiritual life is a battle, although not a physical one."

"Any objection to the hymns must be based on a misunderstanding of their meaning. This sometimes occurs in the mission fields where it is not understood that the military allusions are only figures of speech. In Korea during the revolt of the natives a few years ago the Japanese government forbade the singing of 'Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus' and other warlike hymns.

"Protestant missions in Turkey have had to cut these hymns out of their hymn books because the Turks believed them to be direct references to the Crusades."

"If we had no more impetus to war than those hymns give," declared Dr. Jo East of the First Methodist church, "the millennium would start right now."

Dr. Ezra Duncan of Parkside Baptist church, who has had charge of the Baptist vacation schools, declared "Onward Christian Soldiers" was used daily in the Christian flag salute ceremony and the children enjoyed it.

"The Christian life is a real fight for righteousness against sin," continued Dr. Duncan. "We must keep some of the fighting spirit in our religion."

Similar was the opinion of Rev. Howard C. Whitcomb of Calvary Baptist church, who believes such hymns "express an element of aggressiveness and virility in Christianity which is important in challenging the spirit of heroism, especially among young people."

Dr. Edgar M. Brown of Deitz Memorial Methodist church says he personally would miss such hymns a great deal.

"They serve as an aid to healthy religious life and everyone understands that they refer only to warfare in the spiritual sense."
