Fiance Fails to Put in an Appearance: Should She Demand Explanation?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I read your column every day and find that you give some wonderful advice. What should a hope chest contain?

Then I am deeply in love with a young man who has asked me to marry him. He has blue eyes, has a fair complexion and blonde hair, the same as I have. He lives in Omaha at the present time and is a good worker. Would it be wrong for me to write to him asking for an explanation for not coming over after me Sunday as he invited me over to his sister's home for dinner? I have not heard from him since last Tuesday and am getting anxious to hear from him.

Also, would it be wrong for me to go out with other boy friends as we are not publicly engaged yet? He doesn't want me to, and says he doesn't go out with other girls or his mother would tell me. He never tells any good reason why he never keeps his promises. He has kept steady company with me since January 1, and I have grown to love him dearer and dearer every day. He is four years my senior; is that too much difference in age? I also wish to get a college education and he doesn't seem to think I ought to.

He never got much schooling as his father died when he was quite young and he has had to help his mother make a living. He is the only child at home in his family and is the youngest also. He has two sisters married, and also a step-sister married, and has a full brother and a half-brother married and only his youngest sister and her husband get along a bit good. I have no reason whatever to doubt this young man's word as he tells me he loves me as he never loved a girl before and I think the world of him. I know it would break my heart to lose him now as he means so much to me. I have promised to marry him.

I am about 5 feet 2 inches tall and weigh about 125 pounds. Is that too heavy for my height? He is about 5 feet 4 inches and weighs around 140, I think. If my letter is not too long I would like to see it in print in The Morning Bee as soon as possible as I am very anxious to hear your advice. Should I wait for him to write or not? Thanking you for your advice I am anxiously waiting as

F. S. I love dancing and music. Could you tell me any of the latest pieces for dancing?

You believe in getting all the information you can get while you're at it, don't you. Well, here is my advice. By all means go to college. After four years of college influence I think you will find yourself admiring a very different type of man than the one you are now engaged to. In fact, you will be laughing at the insipid youth you now admire.

Really, blonde, this is nothing but infatuation. Certainly not love. And you will be infatuated with many men before you find the right one.

Of course, he should have escorted you to his sister's house Sunday but very probably he didn't know that he was expected to call for you. He may be very hurt because you didn't come. You'd better get in touch with him in some way.

No, four years isn't too much difference in your ages. You really shouldn't go out with other boys if you are engaged, but it makes it rather embarrassing to be always refusing invitations for no reason at all, apparently.

Of course, I do not know how old you are but if you are about high school age as I judge you are from

Returned From Philippines

Mrs. McDonald Experiences Two Typhoons and an Earthquake but No Cyclones or Blizzards—Meets Governor General and Mrs. Wood.

Mrs. Henry S. McDonald who returned Tuesday from a 10-month trip to the Philippines, experienced two typhoons, and an earthquake but no cyclones or blizzards according to her own word.

Mrs. McDonald visited her daughter, Mrs. Charles Fossom of Manila who was formerly Miss Ruth McDonald. Mr. Fossom is associated with a lumber concern in the islands.

Judge and Mrs. C. S. Loring, former Omahans, entertained Mrs. McDonald in Shanghai. Miss Esther Thomas, now on a world tour, was her hostess in Honolulu.

Taylor of Madison, Neb., now of London, gave a dinner for her in Manila, where he was a visitor at the time.

When the "Empress of France" was in Manila on its world cruise, Mrs. McDonald met the Nebraskans who, with the other passengers, were quite elaborately entertained here. Among them were Judge and Mrs. Munger of Lincoln, parents of Al Munger of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mort, Mrs. Margaret Healy and Miss Florence Dunn of this city. En route home, Mrs. McDonald visited Mrs. Ben Funk (Eloise Jenks) at Winnipeg, Canada.

The friendly spirit among the 5,000 Americans in Manila impressed Mrs. McDonald. There are continual social gatherings, country clubs with golf courses and tennis courts, and swimming in pools in the bay at certain seasons.

"The men work as hard as our men do, harder because of the weather, their hours being from 5 to 5, but the women have a wonderful time," said Mrs. McDonald. "Native help is easily obtained and no woman can afford not to have at least two servants. The servants are paid so much for their work and given an extra allowance for their native food. They do not eat the American dishes."

Mrs. McDonald's earthquake shook itself in Baguio, a mountain resort where Manilans go during the hot months of April and May. There, too, one of the typhoons spent its fury. For four days wind and rain raged. For the same length of time, Mrs. McDonald was in a typhoon on her passage over on the "President Lincoln."

"Everybody likes Governor General and Mrs. Leonard Wood," said Mrs. McDonald, who met them on several occasions. She was guest at a tea at the old Spanish palace occupied by the Woods. It is a very beautiful building according to Mrs. McDonald. The walls are decorated with old Spanish drawings.

matic service, and army and navy people among the Americans, mingle in the same social life.

Dainty linen handkerchiefs embroidered by the Philippine women, are among the souvenirs brought home by the traveler. No duty is required on articles from the islands.

When seen Thursday, Mrs. McDonald was wearing a becoming straw hat of black and white braid which was made to order in Manila from the native hemp. Her sport skirt was a most attractive mandarin in the rich fuchsia and blue shades. Her bracelets were of black coral ornamented with thin, crossed copper wires. Jade is the rage in the orient and beads are sold everywhere.

Shanghai is quite modern, being a port city. There is the old and the new Shanghai. People there are either Chinese or "foreigners." The foreigners all live in one locality known as "The Foreign Concession." To identify yourself as an American would be considered slighting to other foreigners. Chinese names such as Shanghai and Canton are accented on the last syllable.
