

Crime Increase in Omaha Alarms Officials Here

Records Show 11 of 32 Murders in County in 1922 Have Not Been Solved.

Why were there twice as many murders in Omaha last year as there were in London, England? Thirty-two in Omaha and 17 in London. Omaha has about 200,000 people; London about 7,000,000.

The question has been answered by the American Sas association in its meeting in Minneapolis. The law, as the eminent lawyers, "lacks certainty, certainty and finality."

Robert Smith, clerk of the Douglas county district court, endorsed this view.

"The 48 states should have a uniform criminal code and the criminal code should be filled with plenty of certainty, certainty and finality," he said.

A man, a few months ago, made a pretended confession to the murder of Frank Fog, an Omaha druggist, in order that he might be brought to Nebraska and tried for murder. He said he thought he would get off easier here on a murder charge than he would if he were tried for robbery in the eastern state where he was in jail.

In only 21 of the 32 killing cases in Omaha last year were persons arrested and charged with the crime. Perpetrators of the other 11 are at large.

How the Law Operates.

Now look at the greatest city in the world, London, with its 7,000,000 people. Not one of them remains unsolved.

And in England, when a man is arrested for a crime, the law works with celerity, certainty and finality. Rarely does a murderer escape the extreme penalty which the nature of his crime calls for.

In Nebraska and other states, the opposite is too often true, and the public records of the courts are full proofs of this fact.

Suppose the murderer is arrested. The game has just started in our courts. If he has plenty of money to pay lawyers he may keep up the fight for several years with every advantage on his side. Suppose the 12 good men and true bring in a verdict of "guilty." His lawyer then appeals to the supreme court, which may take a year to review the case. One technical error in the trial will cause the case to be ordered to a new trial. The state is confronted with a renewed game of convincing one of 12 men "beyond a reasonable doubt," that the defendant is guilty.

It is what the learned lawyers in Minneapolis are weary of, "testing with the law" they say, as one of the big reasons for so many murders in Omaha as London.

No Interest by Public.

General public indifference to the crime accounts in large measure for the want of respect for the law. "It is the failure of the law," says the committee before the law association meeting, "the lack of sentimentality in this country, charged with causing the crime of murder. No sooner is the crime behind the bars than the sympathy of the community is turned to the victim in his grave. 'Feel so sorry for' the murderer, and the few known to the lawyers and possible under the law are fruitless and the defendant finally condemned to death, those who are not often successful in getting a commutation to 'life imprisonment,' which every criminal knows means probably only a few years in jail, and then the beneficial pardon heard turns the killer loose.

With a new criminal code, filled with certainty, certainty and finality, Omaha should be made as safe from crime as London.

If it were, there would be one murder here in two years instead of 32 in one year.

Al-Sar-Ben Ball Decorating to Be Done by Burgess-Nash

"Omaha has more high class interior decorators than any city its size in the country," said J. P. Dwyer, general manager of the Burgess-Nash company last night, in discussing the personnel of this branch of the business relative to W. G. Collins's resignation. This important work will be conducted by Mr. Collins's associates, George Bettinger, William Votava and William Paulson. Mr. Bettinger has been with the Burgess-Nash company for seven years in this capacity, previous to which he was with the Orchard-Wilhelm company. Mr. Votava has been with the Burgess-Nash company in this department for three years. Mr. Paulson is a New York decorator, a graduate of the Beaux Arts Academy of Design, after which he was associated with Baumgartner and also with Whitney & Warren, architects.

The Burgess-Nash company, under the personal supervision of Mr. Bettinger, is as usual decorating the Al-Sar-Ben hall room for the coming coronation.

Omaha Bee-Moose Garden Contest Prizes Awarded

Two Boys and One Girl Picked as Winners From Field of Thirty-Five Entrants.

Charles Ingalls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ingalls, 1318 South Twenty-fifth street; Walter Payne, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Payne, 4128 North Eighteenth street, and little Ruth Harris, 564 Erskine street, were the proud winners that emerged victorious last night from the 35 boys and girls that entered the Omaha Bee-Moose garden contest in May. The exhibits were displayed and the prizes awarded at the Moose temple last evening.

Charles Ingalls was awarded the first prize for flowers by the unanimous contest of the three judges. His exhibit included 23 different varieties. He was presented with a coupon entitling him to $10, trade or cash, from Hayden Brothers and an order for a pair of trousers from the Dundee Woolen mill.

The 15 varieties of the vegetable family that were listed as the entries of Walter Payne, won him first awards for vegetables. He is entitled to $12.50, cash or trade, at Hayden's. The prizes also included two neckties. Young Payne's display included sweet corn, carrots, wax beans, egg plant, potatoes, red onions and white onions, butter beans, cucumbers and so forth.

A special prize of $2.50 was awarded little Ruth Harris for the basket of tomatoes entered in the contest by her.

R. S. Fries, Harry Croaser and J. A. Nugent acted as judges. C. V. White headed the entertainment committee composed of Dr. R. A. Nelson, Albert Santa Lucia and J. L. Nelson. This committee officiated over the card games, dancing, singing and general levity that followed the announcement of the prize winners. On the program was A. W. Murphy who gained great approval with his performance on the French harp. Miss Rachel Wolf accompanied the joint singing on the piano.

A. S. Payne was chairman of the Moose committee which in conjunction with the Omaha Bee made arrangements for the contest. On this committee were J. A. Nugent, Dr. E. Benson, Harry Renby and C. A. Anderson.

Mr. Payne announced that the floral exhibits would be sent to the Salvation Army branch on 16th and the vegetables would be donated to the Salvation Army Industrial home.

Return Permitted as Orpheum Reopens Doors Today

The Commissioner Dwyer declared Saturday that attorneys who have been circulating petitions for the removal of Pauline Kelly and Eggers from the Sixth and Pierce street district have approached him with questions as to whether or not he intends to put them back in the Pierce street district.

"If Kelly and Eggers were removed from that district during the water famine, I informed the attorneys that I was not only going to put those officers back in that district, but that I intend to put other officers in other districts to do the same kind of work."

"Moreover, I have investigated the names on the petitions asking the removal of Kelly and Eggers, and find that 85 of the signers are not citizens."

Indians Forsake Ponies for Trains

Alliance, Neb., Sept. 1.—Times have changed.

Indian reservations nowadays use chair car reservations instead of faithful ponies to carry away their brides-to-be.

Joe Wanshew, 18, and Edith Blackhawk, 17, rode into Romeo and Juliet, respectively, were taken off the local train upon which they were speeding off to twin tapes in parts unknown. They will be returned immediately to the Crow Indian reservation at Wyo., Mont.

After a whirlwind courtship, Wanshew induced Edith Blackhawk to unconditionally surrender her ungodly love to his care and keeping. The pair were refused permission to marry, however, because the superintendent of the reservation considered them too young. Thereupon they eloped.

They took their capture gladly, expressing a hope that the superintendent will relent.
