PHOTOGRAPHS BY DEWELL

Bicycling is not a new art in Omaha. It has been quite a fad with a group of college girls this summer. The picture to the upper right shows some of them leaving the attractive new home of Mrs. H. D. Jolley at 5619 Elm street following breakfast there. Their next stop was Elmwood park, where Miss Mildred Larsen dropped down at the foot of a glowering totem pole for a moment's rest.

Mrs. Paul Wilcox, who was Miss Bonnie Jones, Misses Eno Grenawalt and Margaret Thompson are expert cyclists. They can ride without using their handlebars and otherwise put to shame the average messenger boy who whirled around the city streets with the mangle of a Mercury.

A second bicycle breakfast will be given tomorrow morning by Miss Margaret Thompson at Elmwood Park club, when Mildred Larsen will be the honor guest. Miss Larsen, formerly of this city, is now a student at the University of Lower California. The bike is a popular fad among the college set in Los Angeles, according to Miss Larsen.

Guests at the breakfast and at a house party to be given by Miss Thompson later in the week will include: Mrs. Paul Wilcox, Misses Eno Grenawalt, Vesta Beavers, Leone Leary, Mildred Larsen, Ruth Parker, Mildred Oleson of Seattle, and Marjorie Dean.

Miss Dean, cousin of Mrs. Jolley, is from Manchester, England. She is in this country attending Smith college and is en route there, having spent the summer in Los Angeles. Mrs. Jolley, who chaperones the group, was formerly professor in journalism at Omaha university. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Miss Grenawalt is a member of Delta Delta Delta at the University of Nebraska. Miss Larsen is a member of Delta Delta Sigma. Miss Wilcox and Miss Thompson are members of Delta Sigma Phi at the University of Omaha.

'Build Club House in City,' Advice of Mrs. Winter

"Tell the club women not to build a clubhouse outside. Put it down in the city."

So said Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to Miss Luella Allen of Omaha at Chautauqua, N. Y., this summer.

"No active political life for me," Miss Allen quotes Mrs. Winter as saying, which Miss Allen interpreted as meaning Mrs. Winter would not be an office-seeker.

Mrs. Winter gave some wonderful addresses at Chautauqua, according to Miss Allen, especially on the subject of world peace. "She is a brilliant, forceful woman," said Miss Allen.

Miss Allen returned Friday after her third season at Chautauqua as head of the stringed instrument department. She has been engaged again for the next season. During the summer she received an offer to instruct at Princeton this coming year, but refused it to return to Omaha. Miss Allen's studio is at the Loyal Hotel.

Miss Metcalfe First September Bride

At 8:30 last evening was solemnized the first of this season's many fall weddings, when Miss Rachel Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Metcalfe, became the bride of Edward J. Phelps, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Phelps, sr. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. Edwin Hart Jenks officiating in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends.

Miss Metcalfe's engagement, it will be remembered, was announced last January.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Edward J. Connor, jr., who was matron of honor. Two years ago Miss Metcalfe served as maid of honor when Mrs. Connor, who was then Miss Eleanor McGilton, was married.

Miss Katherine Wyatt of St. Louis, cousin of the bride, was Miss Metcalfe's only bridesmaid, while little Miss Helen Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wyatt and Miss Jane Walte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Walte, were flower girls. Raymond Phelps, brother of the groom, was best man and the bride's two brothers, George S. and Walter L. Metcalfe, served as ushers.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon, headed in pearls and rhinestones on the waist, girdle and edge of the skirt which was made in petal. The bride's long veil was made of net, forming a train. The headpiece was made of the same rose point lace which the first Rachel Metcalfe, this Rachel Metcalfe's grandmother, wore on her wedding day in St. Louis. Miss Metcalfe's bouquet was of orchids, lilies of the valley and bride's roses.

Her going away gown was a three-piece suit of navy blue with the blouse and coat embroidered. She wore with it a rose fox fur piece and a small black hat.

The matron of honor wore green chiffon in petal effect which was edged with rhinestones. Her bouquet was of pink roses. Miss Wyatt was gowned in orchid chiffon with a large ribbon bow on the side back and a full skirt made in petals. She carried a bouquet of tea roses. The flower girls wore pink georgette with bows. Their baskets were filled with flowers that carried out the color scheme of pink and orchid. Mrs. Metcalfe, the bride's mother, wore a gown of handmade white lace over pink georgette and a corsage of orchids roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Phelps, wore gray embroidered crepe with a corsage of pink roses.

The house was decorated with palms, ferns and baskets of gladiolus, asters and roses. The wedding march

Caddy Tourney

Missed His Knife When Pie Was Served. Boys "Concede" Themselves Some Putts.

By GABBY DETAILS.

ONE hundred and thirty-three caddies of a local country club held their annual tournament Friday. Of course, they were given a special dinner at noon with a search for the club president and all that.

"Would you believe it?" a woman onlooker commented afterward, "only one of all that crowd ate with his knife. But that one ate everything with it, potatoes, meat, and even the more precarious carrots. He looked utterly lost," she said, "when they brought up a potato and let him nothing but a fork."

The boys made 43 on the Friday rounds and one a 44. Instead of putting the 44 score out of the memory, one 43 was admitted in quite grown-up fashion, that they had "conceded" themselves some putts. So they played off the game Saturday with the club's good men golfers ending for them, and incidentally, ending strokes.

Players at the club say the greens were a funny sight Friday morning, with hills shooting across in every direction, sometimes bumping into each other on their way to the cup and less than 10 or a dozen on at one time. Anyway, "a good time was had by all," and if Gabby knows what the caddy tournament next year she is going to spend the day, or where in a bizarre world could she find him?

BEAUTIFUL clothes are expensive, but at that they pay. A daintily gowned feminine, in the midst of summer frocks, was seen Friday. Parking space was at a premium, and she left her car some distance from the entrance to the store.

Gloating at her tiny wrist watch,

Mrs. Howell and Son to Winter in Europe.

Mrs. Brandon Howell and son, Brandon, who have been visiting Mrs. Howell's parents, Col. and Mrs. William G. Doane at Grand Forks, N. D., have returned to Omaha. Mrs. Howell is giving up her apartment and will leave September 8 to join her parents in St. Paul, Minn., for a motor trip to New York. Mrs. Howell and son will visit in the early fall for a winter in southern Europe.

Out-of-Town Guests.

Miss Ramona Simpson of Brayton, Ia., guest of Miss Irene Morrissey and Miss Julia Coffey of Nebraska City, guests of Miss Florence Sullivan, will be honor guests at a theater party at the Orpheum given tomorrow by Kappa Alpha Delta followed by dinner at the King Fong Cafe.

she saw that 30 minutes had passed. With dutiful consciences she sped toward her car, which a relentless officer might tag at any minute.

But hie! Clouds glowered and large drops of wet, wet rain were falling. She couldn't, she wouldn't, spoil her lovely outfit. She waited patiently in the foyer of the store.

The shower over, she rushed to her car, but, alas, too late. The hateful tag fluttered from her steering wheel. It was too much. Tears fell as freely as the unwelcome rain of a few moments before.

What to do? Her husband was out of town. She was leaving herself the next day and simply could not appear in police court. She called a few faithful friends, but could find no one to take up her burdens.

Finally, dauntless and resolute, she drove straight to the police station and told her story to the proper official. Perhaps he has a wife of his own and knows the cost of clothes. At any rate, a note of sympathy came into his voice and he dismissed the charming damsel with these words:

"Never mind. Run along and I'll take care of it for you. I don't blame you at all for not wanting to spoil your pretty dress."

September a Month of Laces and Orange Blossoms

The month of September promises to be one of laces and orange blossoms. Indeed it is rivaling June as the month for fashionable weddings. Regan last evening, its first day, with the marriage of Miss Rachel Metcalfe to Edward J. Phelps, jr. It bids fair to be crowded full of brides and bridal parties. Yet in spite of the great interest social Omaha takes in these weddings, nevertheless it is loath for them to come, since nearly all of them take from the city popular members of its young set.

Tuesday, September 4, is to be the wedding day of three brides. Miss Eleanor Carpenter, daughter of Mrs. Frank Carpenter, will wed Donald Pettis of Lincoln on that date. The wedding will take place at the Calvary Baptist church, and with it Omaha loses the first of its September brides to Lincoln, for the bride and groom will live there.

Miss Mary Downey, another bride of September 4, will be married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Downey, to Arthur Frederick Trimble, Miss Downey's cousin, who will be her only attendant.

The third bride, Miss Wilfred Travis, daughter of Mrs. T. L. Travis, will be married Tuesday evening to Dr. Gerald J. Bruce, of Mullen, Neb., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Anderson. Omaha will lose Miss Travis, too, for she and her husband will reside in Mullen.

Immediately following the popular "fourth," comes the fifth, the wedding day of Miss Esther Westerfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elery Hill Westerfield, who will be married to the Rev. Lawson Lavery of Harrisburg, Pa. Miss Westerfield and her husband will reside in Harrisburg. Miss Westerfield will wear on her wedding day a ring that was given her by her grandmother. She will be the seventh bride to wear it.

On September 10, the wedding of Miss Maurine Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Richardson, to Donald Robbins, of Los Angeles, will take place at the home of
