Increased Deposits in State Indicate Guaranty Law Popularity.

Lincoln, Sept. 14.—Governor Charles W. Bryan will appear at an open meeting of the state senate, investigating a committee now at work investigating and attempting to get at the true condition of state finances.

This much seemed assured tonight, the third day of the investigation. The committee is headed by State Senator George Wilkins of Cambridge.

To date, the republican officeholders accused by Governor Bryan have appeared voluntarily before the commission to present their facts and figures to prove the fallacy of the series of Bryan statements which made it appear that their administration of office has put the state treasury of Nebraska in a financial hole.

Members of the commission tonight were known to be of the opinion that the series of statements by Governor Bryan were not entirely for political effect and were determined to give him an opportunity to appear in person and explain how he put up with the figures on which his statements were made.

In doing this, the committee composed of Wilkins, Senator John W. Robbins of Omaha, and Senator W. B. Manning of Cass county, are admittedly going against the desires of a good many republican politicians who were insisting on a good report from the committee from the republican viewpoint.

The committee, composed of a majority of republicans, insist that the investigation should be for the purpose of putting clearly before the taxpayers the truth about Nebraska finances.

Therefore, tonight they were strongly in favor of calling Governor Bryan before them and giving him an opportunity to explain in full the stories he has given newspapers, published throughout the nation, that Nebraska finances were toppling. They want to make the meeting public so that the governor's reasons for his statements may be known to the public.

Woman's Smiles Lose Husband Like Lion, She Grins; Judge Is Peeved Her Suit for Divorce

"I adopted one child and it died," testified Mrs. Inez Yohe, 2211 Jones street, in her effort to obtain a divorce in District Judge L. B. Day's court Friday morning.

The trying of the second adopted child drove her husband away, she said. "She declared her husband is a 'high-powered' salesman, who never earned less than $100 a week, but added with a smile that she just simply couldn't get along.

"Did he ever strike you?" she was asked. "I'll say he did," she replied, still smiling. "Did he curse you?" "Yes, that's his long suit."

"Was his temper bad?" "Just like a wild lion," she replied, still smiling. But her smiles had the wrong effect on the judge. "Get off the stand," he ordered. "I won't give you a divorce."

"Safety First"—What all the world needs to learn

An acknowledgment of the public's indebtedness to the management and employes of the Union Pacific Railroad

The Union Pacific Railroad company is rendering great service to the whole world in bringing off its "Safety First" gathering in Omaha on Saturday. It is estimated that from 7,000 to 10,000 Union Pacific employes will be here, the purpose being to impress upon railroad men as well as upon the general public the thought that "Safety First" all along the line is a good thing. The management of the Union Pacific, always leading in practical efforts for good, is entitled to the cordial thanks of the public. Certainly these guests may depend upon an old-fashioned Omaha welcome.

It is a wonderful service given by the Union Pacific at a most opportune time. "Safety First" is a comprehensive term and carries a much needed lesson. How important it is that the principle of "Safety First" be adhered to in every line of human effort! How different, too, we all are to the thoughtfulness of those whose devotion and wisdom carries us safely through our journey. How many who read these lines ever think of their debt to the watchfulness of the engineer, and other members of the train crew when they have made a railroad journey free from wreck! How many ever take the trouble to give a word of thanks to the engineer, conductors or the brakemen. Yet Theodore Roosevelt never made a trip over a railroad without hunting out the engineer and other members of the train crew and personally thanking them.

There is so much devotion to duty and wise effort displayed by obscure men and women that we accept our blessings as a matter of course and take it all generally without even a thought of gratitude. We have the same attitude toward all the simple blessings of life. For instance we never appreciate our ample supply of pure water until for a short period we were compelled to do without it. It was easy to step to the faucet and with a turn of the wrist obtain a seemingly unlimited supply of water. We never thought that every drop of that pure water represented the fidelity and industry and wisdom of some obscure person. We accepted it all—just as we do the sunshine and the rain and our countless other blessings—as a matter of course.

This "Safety First" gathering may set us to thinking along these lines and if our thought goes deep enough and broad enough it will be possible to over-estimate the debt of gratitude we owe to the Union Pacific management and their faithful employes who will assemble in Omaha on Saturday.
