

School Methods Have Progressed

Individual School of Instruction Uses Most Modern System.

Have you ever listened to your grandmother tell of geography-singing, where states are bounded, capitals named, and rivers located in a sort of chanting sing-song? Or the syllables sung something like this: "a, bay; b, bee; c, cick; d, de; e, be; f, f; g, g; h, h; i, i; j, j; k, k; l, l; m, m; n, n; o, o; p, p; q, q; r, r; s, s; t, t; u, u; v, v; w, w; x, x; y, y; z, z."

If you have heard these things and pondered over them, you realize we have come a long way since that time in education. In your grandfather's day the three r's were sufficient schooling for the average man or woman, and many had very little even of these. There have been grandmothers who learned to write after their boys and girls were old enough to teach them.

Those who have taken the trouble to investigate agree that the school of individual instruction conducted by Mrs. Pratt at Thirty-sixth and Harney streets is the most modern system of instruction to be found in the country today. Small classes and intensive study produce remarkable results. The school is now entering upon its third year in new enlarged quarters. Mrs. Pratt says that not only does the "backward" pupil master his problems, but the average pupil advances faster than in mass instruction.

Enrollment at Omaha U. Is 350

Many Vocations Listed in Early Matriculation—Registration Continues.

Approximately 350 students had matriculated for classes at the University of Omaha by noon today, most of them new students. Students will continue to arrive all this week.

Registration week pointed to a large number of future educators, as about six times as many students are working for teachers' certificates as for other professions. Of these about one-third are taking the two-year kindergarten course.

Science and medicine follow, with 30 students studying commercial chemistry and a corresponding number of pre-medicines. Law, and engineering are also popular and several students are studying for the ministry and religious education. There are two prospective missionaries.

Other vocations named are: Commercial illustration, interior decorating, architecture, dentistry, household arts, music, nursing, physical training, advertising, journalism, business and dietetics.

Yom Kippur Observance to Begin Wednesday Eve

The Jewish day of atonement and fasting, Yom Kippur, starts at sundown Wednesday, with services the next morning at 7 a. m., and continuing throughout Thursday till sunset, at which time is the blowing-of the "shofar."

On Thursday a 2 p. m. memorial services are to be held at Kipling's hall at Twenty-fifth and Farnam streets. These services are public with no admittance charge, and will include an address by Prof. Nathan Berstein.

Man Officer Caught in Room Draws 2-Year Pen Sentence

Chares Curry, 58, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary yesterday morning by District Judge Goose, after he had pleaded guilty to entering the room of Police Officer George Adgett, 412 South Twenty-fourth street.

Curry pleaded for leniency, declaring that he was advanced in age and had "a bad cough." He was arrested by the police officer, who awakened while Curry was in the room. There was a struggle between the two, but help arrived in time to make the arrest possible.

MICHAEL O'HALLORAN

By Gene Stratton-Porter

SYNOPSIS.

Michael O'Halloran, an orphan newsboy, finds a tall lame girl screaming with fright for fear that she will be taken to the hospital. Her grandmother has just died. Mickey is sympathetic and takes the child to his home and attempts to care for her.

Douglas Bruce, a corporation lawyer, has seen Mickey and wants to employ him as his little brother. However, before he can mention the subject, Mickey disappears. He tells all of this to Leslie Winton, his sweetheart, and declares that he will find Mickey yet.

Mickey in the meantime struggles to get things for Lily Peaches, the little lame girl. He finds that it is impossible to tell anyone about her for fear that any stranger will force him to put the child in an orphanage.

One woman threatens this and Mickey leaves her determined to help no one for fear that in the conversation he will tell about the girl. He has hardly gone a block when a woman strikes and strikes her head, losing consciousness. He helps take her to a hospital. There he meets a nurse, who gives him things for Peaches and instructs him in how to care for her.

Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton become engaged and on the morning following their betrothal go to the swamp to make the basket as agreed.

The trip to the swamp is made and the Minstrels are called in to set up judges on the baskets. During the judging Peaches is found by Leslie Winton and she is taken to the hospital.

Leslie and Douglas Bruce, he refuses Bruce's offer of a job in the future. While talking to her he tells her how he has met Peaches and how he happens to know him.

She held the flowers toward him. "I brought these—" she began, then paused. "You wouldn't believe me, if I should tell you. You are right! Perfectly justified! Of course I shall not bring this before the public. Go!"

At the door he looked back. She had dropped into a chair beside the table, holding the cast in one hand, the fringed orchids in the other.

CHAPTER VII.

Peaches' Preferences in Blessings.

"God ain't made a sweeter girl 'An Lily," 'at keeps my heart a-whirl. If I was to tell an awful whopper, I'd get took by the cross old copper."

Thus chanted Mickey at his door, his hands behind him. Peaches stretched both her toward him as usual; but he stood still, swinging in front of him a beautiful doll, for a little sick girl. A baby doll in a long snowy dress and a lace cap; it held outstretched arms, but was not heavy enough to tire small waivering hands. Peaches lusted forward until falling. He tossed the doll on the bed, and caught the child, the lump in his throat so big his voice was strained

Mrs. Pratt's School Marks Big Advance in Instruction

Have you ever heard your grandfather tell about reaping wheat with an old-fashioned sickle, threshing it out with a flail, or tramping it out with oxen and winnowing it in the wind?

Just as the modern binder has supplanted the primitive sickle, so individual instruction has supplanted the old-fashioned method of mass instruction.

Individual instruction is equally as far advanced for training pupils as the old-fashioned methods compared to the present. By means of small classes each pupil is taught to work out his own problem.

The School of Individual Instruction features careful explanation of assignments and teaches boys and girls how to study. It is the modern successful method.

just love to say a real thankful prayer.

"Mickey, I ain't goin' to say prayin'! I just said I was," explained Peaches. "I never said none for kranny, 'cause she only told me to when she was drunk."

"No and you never had a box of ribbons to make you look so sweet, or a baby to stay with you while I'm gone. If you ain't thankful enough for them to say your prayers, you shouldn't have them, nor any more, nor Christmas, nor anything, but just—just like you was."

Peaches blinked, gasped, digested the statements, then yielded wholly. "I guess I'll say them, Mickey when shall I?"

"Tonight 'fore you go to sleep," said Mickey.

"Where's your slate? We got to do lessons 'fore it gets so dark and we are so sleepy we can't see."

Peaches proudly handed him the slate. In wavering lines and tremulous curves ran her first day's work alone, over erasures, and with re-linings, in hills and deep depressions, which it is possible Mickey read because he knew what it had to be, he proudly translated, "Mickey-loves." Then the lines of the night before, then "cow" and "milk." And then Mickey whooped because he faintly recognized an effort to draw a picture of the cow and the milk bottle. "Grand Lily!" he cried. "Gee, you're the smartest kid I ever knew! You'll know all I do 'fore long, and then you'll need your back, so's you can get ready to go to a Young Ladies' Sem'nary."

The Seven-Passenger Touring Car

The comments of those who have just taken their first ride in the new Pierce-Arrow Seven-Passenger Touring Car would seem extravagant in print. But we venture to say that you would be similarly enthusiastic.

We invite you to spend an hour—or an afternoon—in this low-hung, graceful car. You then would understand in a measure why you see Pierce-Arrows in such increasing numbers.

Riding comfort, possible only in a car of such generous wheelbase and perfect spring suspension—a surprising ease of control—a performance of which only the six-cylinder Dual-V-8, Dual-Ignition Engine is capable—all these account for the unprecedented demand for this distinctive, long-lived car.

May we place a car and a courteous driver at your disposal?

He Will Say "Fight film on your teeth daily" No prettier teeth without that

Do you know that leading dentists all the world over now advise a new way of teeth cleaning? They urge people to fight film.

Millions of careful people follow that advice. You see the results in whiter teeth wherever you go today.

This offers you a ten-day test to show what that method means.

What film does

Film is that viscous coat you feel. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That's how white teeth lose luster.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Few people who brush teeth in old ways escape some film-caused trouble.

Two better ways Dental science has found two

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disinfects the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film comb that which contains harsh grit.

Far cleaner teeth

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. One is there to neutralize acids, the other to digest starch deposits. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

That means far cleaner teeth. And they come without harm to enamel, without harsh grit.

These things are bringing a new era in teeth cleaning. You see the results in whiter teeth among careful people everywhere. Now we urge that you obtain them for the people in your home.
