

Nebraska Woman Editor Is Slated for New Honors

Mrs. Marie Weekes of Norfolk Press May Become Head of Two Editorial Bodies.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 26.—An honor unique in the annals of American journalism is in prospect for a Nebraska woman editor if the precedent custom is followed at the next convention of the Nebraska Press association and the Tri-State Editorial association, which has just closed its annual convention here. The unusual honor lies in the selection of a woman editor to head two editorial associations, filling both offices at the same time.

Mrs. Marie Weekes, editor of the Norfolk Press, and first woman candidate for congress in Nebraska, is the woman. Mrs. Weekes is now serving as vice president of the Nebraska Press association and will be elevated to the presidency at the annual meeting next February. She has also just been elected vice president of the Tri-State Editorial association, and under the unwritten law of that organization will be advanced to the presidency at the annual meeting next fall. Mrs. Weekes is not only widely known as an editor, but devotes much of her time to all matters that have for their aim the advancement of the interests of the farmer, on which subjects she is an authority.

W. C. Lusk, of Yankton, was elected president of the Tri-State Editorial association; Justin Barry of Cherokee, Ia., was chosen treasurer and Frank M. O'Purvey, of Iowa Falls, Ia., was re-elected secretary. The meeting was attended by 250 editors and publishers from Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota, and the visiting newspapermen were entertained on a more lavish scale than at any previous similar gathering.

Boys in Reform School Like Work

Lincoln, Sept. 26.—Boys of the state industrial school at Kearney do not have such an unhappy time as the accompanying picture of the dairy detail shows.

The dairy detail is in charge of the milk cows of the school, no small task as the herd numbers 62 without counting the two recent additions shown above.

In the left hand lower corner is Reuben Clark, son of the superintendent, who almost escaped the photographer.

ever held in this city. The visitors were guests of the Associated Retailers at one banquet the Commercial club at another the United Advertising agency at another and were guests at the Tri-State fair management, being guests at every attraction on the grounds. Theater parties occupied the evenings. Frank Miles, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, was the principal outside speaker.

Dangerous Curve in Adams County to Be Eliminated

Blue Hill, Neb., Sept. 26.—It is expected that a grading crew will begin work next week straightening the dangerous turn in the Hastings-Red Cloud federal highway at the county line, north of here, where two young women were killed in an auto accident about a year ago.

The Adams county commissioners purchased the land required to do away with the curve, and the Webster and Adams county authorities each pay half of the cost of grading. The Webster county commissioners had planned to widen a bridge to lessen the danger, but found that by changing the road as indicated, the cost would be less and the results more satisfactory.

Red Cloud M. E. Minister Will Go to Clay Center

Red Cloud, Neb., Sept. 26.—Rev. W. H. Cope, pastor of the Methodist church here for the last four years, has announced his appointment to the pastorate of the church at Clay Center, Neb., September 30 being his last Sunday to hold services here. Rev. Mr. Wilcox of Nelson comes here to take his place.

Alleged Incendiary Fire Destroys Cafe at Alma

Alma, Neb., Sept. 26.—Fire was discovered at 4 in the morning in the Golden Rod cafe. The contents and fixtures were burned. The fire started under the floor of the basement and is thought to be of incendiary origin. The loss was covered by $4,500 insurance.

Woodmen Seek Court Support

Order Resists Payment of Insurance for Policyholder Who Disappeared.

Lincoln, Sept. 26.—In a brief of many pages the order of Modern Woodmen appealed to the supreme court to support its plea that the by-law of the order relating to the payment of policies on the lives of members who have disappeared is reasonable and should be so held by the courts.

For many years Nebraska courts have held that if a man is gone from his home for a period of seven years and nothing has been heard from him, the presumption is that he is dead.

The case at issue is one in which John J. Cunningham of Clay county, a policyholder, disappeared in 1911 and has not been heard from. The beneficiaries paid his dues and assessments from that date and then brought suit for payment of the death benefit. The order resists payment.

County Sunday School Convention at Upland

Upland, Neb., Sept. 26.—The 18th annual county Sunday school convention is to be held at the Methodist church here September 29 and 30. It is planned to have Margaret E. Brown and W. H. Kimberly, state workers, here to take part in the program.

South Dakota Woman Lassoes Wild Coyote

Custer, S. D., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Jess Elliott, living on a ranch near Custer, has proved herself something of a heroine by trailing and lassoing a coyote, which was killed by her with the aid of her dog.

Mrs. Elliott heard a disturbance among her chickens and rushing to the scene she discovered a coyote trying to steal a fry. Instead of becoming frightened and running away, Mrs. Elliott grabbed her gun and took a long-distance shot at the animal, which was striving to make its escape. The bullet struck one of the coyote's legs, breaking it.

Then Mrs. Elliott started in pursuit of the wounded coyote, trailing it some distance. She finally succeeded in lassoing and killing it.

Woolen clothes examined under the microscope can be tested not only for their quality, but also to show whether the wool was grown on a healthy animal.
