

City of Aurora Wins Fight for Cheaper Power

Gas and Electric Company Agrees to Lower Rates and Refund $4,000 Excess Charges.

Aurora, Neb., Sept. 28.—At a meeting of the city officials of Aurora and the officers of the Nebraska Gas and Electric company a settlement was reached in the litigation which has existed over electric rates for many months. Under this agreement the company immediately puts into effect the ordinance rates for electricity and pays back to the consumers the funds which have been impounded in the office of the clerk of the district court of the United States at Lincoln. This amounts to about $4,000 and represents the excess charged by the company over the ordinance rates. A board of arbitration has been provided to settle the amount due the city under the profit sharing contract in the ordinance. The controversy arose over rates which the city claimed were granted for a single year during the period of high prices for coal and other products used by the company. This increase was granted at the urgent request of the company, but when the year expired the company continued to charge the same rates and declared it would continue to do so. The city applied for and secured a restraining order in the state courts and the company immediately removed the case to the federal court. The company at first contended that the city had no power to enter into such a contract for rates by ordinance. Judge Munder held against this contention and referred the case to Special Master D. H. McClanahan to determine what the contract really is. Mr. McClanahan held that the ordinance rates are the legal rates, thus supporting the claim of the city. Exceptions were filed to this report by the company and they had been set for argument before Judge Munder in Omaha. Under the stipulation of dismissal the company pays the costs and restores the old rates.

Douglas-Sarpy Merger to Be Issue Before Legislature Candidates

Claim Made That Sarpy County Has Not Graveled Principal Highways in Accordance With Promise Made.

Annexation of Sarpy to Douglas county promises to be an issue on which various candidates for the legislature must express themselves to Douglas county voters at the coming election. A bill providing for annexation in event more than 50 per cent of the voters in both counties favored it at a special election has been before the Nebraska legislature for two sessions. It was killed through influence of Sarpy county office-holders and certain property owners at both sessions with comparative ease. The first bill was introduced for the avowed purpose of forcing Sarpy county to better its courthouse and its roads. Hundreds of Sarpy county residents, living in the vicinity of Papillion, the county seat, went in person to the legislature carrying huge banners on their shoulders and protesting against such a procedure and promising to build a new courthouse and improve their roads. Built New Court House. The legislature believed them. Sarpy county did build a new courthouse and spent a little more time in keeping dirt roads in good condition. Meantime, Douglas county was expanding. The south side was beginning to evade Sarpy county. Douglas county was graveling and paving its principal roads until today there is more than 100 miles of graded or hard surfaced roads in Douglas county. Other counties were doing likewise, excepting Sarpy county. For instance, the D. L. D. highway from Lincoln to Omaha is paved with cement from Omaha to the Douglas county line and is gravelled from the Lancaster county line to Havelock where paving begins. Sarpy Officials Opposed. A bill was introduced at the last session, this time to force Sarpy county to gravel or pave its principal highways. The county office-holders arose in arms at Papillion. They had been instrumental in electing John R. Hughes, a South Omaha commission man, who lives over the Sarpy county line, to the legislature on an anti-annexation platform. Hughes was clever. He aided the outstate members and took the committee on privileges and elections to Papillion for a big dinner in advance of the ceremonies there for dedication of the new courthouse. Following the dinner, members of the committee heard speeches from members of some of the old families in Sarpy county. Self-determination, prodigious spending ability of Douglas county and local pride in the history of Sarpy county, one of the oldest counties in the state, were subjects of the addresses. Paved roads were mentioned and held out as probabilities in the next two years. In the committee were members likewise sentimental in a materialistic age. They returned to Lincoln and the first act of the members was to recommend the bill for indefinite postponement. Time Limit Elapsed. Now the first year of the two years in which Sarpy county was to pave or gravel its main roads have elapsed. To date, there is no paving or graveling reported in Sarpy county, excepting on the Bellevue road where Hughes lives. He arranged and passed a special bill for this bit of paving, it is said. Hence the agitation in Omaha now for annexation in order to insure travelers on east and west and north and south highways a road in Sarpy county that will vie with those of other counties. Numerous influential citizens in Gretna, Sarpy county's rival of Papillion, are beginning to believe materialism and progress should override sentiment. They are clamoring for
