Transitory Effect on Popular Reading

phy, stimulated during the war, con-Los Angeles, Oct. 5 .- If the world tinues today, also." war had any effect on the literary preferences of the people it was an evanescent one, according to a statethe only war book now being erad to ment made at the public library. any great extent here. Topics that were suddenly thrust into limelight by the war and later clipsed by the armistice are still in

With the exception of but two or hree instances the world war has left no print on current literature, and the reading matter of the war days is dusty from neglect, according to attaches at the library.

In the fiction field the only new books which reflect the influence of the recent war are analytical English novels, dealing with post-war conditions. Young patrons of the public library who crave books of adventure do not seek those whose locale is the battflefield of France, but other types of adventure.

One aftermath of the war is psycho analysis, which is still the seeming rage. The number of psychological tests to which military candidates were subjected is said to be respon sible for this.

Acquaintance with present day European conditions, which was brought on by the war, has created a new interest in the history of other centuries before the 19th and 20th, and as a result people are now reading history backward, looking for the ause after they have learned, through heir reading, the effect.

"Shelves of books dealing with life after death are idle now, since people

Recommends Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

am telling all my friends about it. I have a nice big baby girl and am feeling fine. You may use this letter to help other sick mothers."—Mrs. C. A. MOEDE, Box 634, Windom, Minn.

My First Child Glen Allen, Ala.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines with-out much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter. "-Mrs.IDA RYE, Glen Allen, Alabama.
