

Guests in the Land of Quivera

Miss Anne Bingham and Miss Peggy Reed

Miss Josephine Hamlin

Miss Catherine Shafer and Mrs. George Radcliffe

In spite of the unusual gaiety of the week, hostesses and their guests have snatched time to spend part of these perfect days out of doors. Silver birches, their green and gold tracery still clinging to the boughs, feathering down over white trunks, caught their eyes, the while our photographer was catching them.

And by the way, when he came back with the prints the combined beauties had made such a profound impression that it reminded of a prophetic pun, and we have his own word for it, "When the leaves fall, the fall guests leave."

A most interesting visitor is Miss Polly Smith of Gloucester, Mass., who arrived for the ball, last week. Miss Smith and her hostess, Mrs. Malcolm Baldrige, attracted a great deal of attention in her box Friday evening. Miss Smith is as distinctively a brunette as Mrs. Baldrige is a titian beauty, but both wore tangerine colored gowns most effectively, Miss Smith's of the more brilliant nuance. Miss Smith is an interesting as well as attractive guest. During the war she became interested in occupational therapy, and since, has been devoting her time to it. At present she has charge of this work with wounded soldiers in the hospital at Beverly, Mass.

Following the ball Miss Smith was a guest in Miss Gertrude Stout's supper party at the Omaha club, and Wednesday she will be honor guest at a bridge given by Mrs. Albert Sibbersen. Mrs. J. E. Megeath will be her hostess Thursday at her home, Longview on West Dodge, when Mrs. Phillip Metz will also share honors. Miss Haley Cotton will give a bridge Friday, and on Saturday, Mrs. Robert Garrett will entertain.

A visiting Junior League is Miss Josephine Hamlin of Detroit. Miss Hamlin is to remain a month with her hostess, Miss Willow O'Brien, who was her own guest last spring. Miss O'Brien and Miss Hamlin were classmates at Manhattanville in New York. Miss O'Brien will give a tea for Miss Hamlin on Wednesday afternoon. In the receiving line with them will be Miss Catherine Shafer and Mrs. George Radcliffe, whom she is visiting. Miss Shafer and Mrs. Radcliffe also have a friendship formed in college days, when they were students at Barnard college and had an apartment together in New York City. A colorful and changing background has given Miss Shafer an unusual charm, for she is a New Yorker, has lived in Richmond, Va., and has recently spent three years in New Orleans. Her visit here might be said to be a private exchange of civic compliments, for she was vastly interested in the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities, as was Mrs. Radcliffe in the Mardi Gras when she was Miss Shafer's guest in her Louisiana home two years ago. Last evening Mrs. Radcliffe gave a buffet supper for Miss Shafer, and this evening they will be the guests of Mrs. T. E. Patterson when she entertains at a buffet supper for her daughter, Marie, and her fiancé, Guernsey Wilbourne of Birmingham, Ala., who are to wed Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in Mrs. Radcliffe's parents' home.

The alert canine gentleman in the inset is included, for he too, is doing his best as a member of the Radcliffe household to make Miss Shafer's stay a pleasant one. He accompanies her on morning walks, and is always eager to romp about their apartment when they are home from parties. His name is Buddy, and he is a pedigreed English bulldog.

A week ago Miss Josephine Peason made the journey from her home in Montclair, N. J., to attend the ball, and incidentally, Miss Peason is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Olmsted. She has a number of school friends in the city, for she has attended Wisconsin university at Madison, and Miss Mason's school, "The Castle on the Hudson," at Tarrytown, N. Y. In the latter school she knew Miss Gertrude Forter, who is now Mrs. Robert Edwards. The last six months Miss Peason has spent in Europe. Miss Gertrude Stout will entertain for her on Tuesday. Among her hostesses during her visit are Mrs. Joseph Lewis and Miss Katherine Denny.

Coming west for the ball and remaining until October 23, is part of Miss Anne Bingham's fall program. Miss Bingham is from East Orange, N. J., and met her hostess, Miss Peggy Reed, at Vassar, where they were roommates in their senior year. Miss Bingham leaves the 23d to join her father, Dr. A. W. Bingham, in Chicago, where he will be at that time to become initiated into the American College of Surgeons.

This evening Miss Erna Reed will give a buffet supper for Miss Bingham, and for Miss Margaret Dows of Cedar Rapids, guest of Miss Stout.

reminded that all the chatter in the younger set concerns Mrs. Denny's Kountze's coming, William Neely Mallory of Memphis, Tenn., who it is hoped is to be her guest for the holidays. Standing at the ultimate pinnacle in youth's estimate of fame is young Mr. Mallory, for he it is who captains the Yale football team.

He is big and most attractive in a masculine way, as is Mrs. Kountze in her feminine way. He is 22 years old, stands 5 feet 10, and weighs about 175 pounds, to quote a Philadelphia paper.

Mr. Mallory is reputed to be a star in Yale's social as well as its athletic firmament, and with such Omaha boys as Dick Stewart, Ned Burke, Bob Millard and Milton Barlow in Yale as criterion, it is undoubted he will cut a wide swath here should he arrive.

Since Eleanor is queen, what rank are you, Harry? a genealogically interested gentleman inquired of Miss Burkley's eldest brother during the dance at the Omaha club following the ball. "Oh, I'm the clown quince," he nonchalantly replied.

Porte Cochere Is Noted

By GABBY DETAILIS.
IT was night. Gabby was showing an appreciative out-of-town guest the city by electric light. "This is our Blackstone hotel," she said, as they drove westward. "What a beautiful porte cochere!" exclaimed the visitor.
Gabby hadn't the heart to explain that it was an oil station across the street from the hotel.
Which reminds us of the man who said he adored driving into oil stations. "They make me feel I know all the best people in town!"

The Famous Martinelli in Love—With His Wife.

"An artist needs no other inspiration than his wife and children," said Giovanni Martinelli, the famous Italian tenor of the Metropolitan opera house, who is to sing here at the Omaha auditorium on Friday, October 12.
Martinelli looks the part of any one of the heroic figures of grand opera favorites that he has portrayed. Tall, handsome, with his mass of dark curls and his great, penetrating brown eyes, he suits his roles physically as few of his confreres are able.
Mr. Martinelli is a happy husband and father of two fine boys. Again, unlike the majority of operatic families, the Martinellis are very much in love—with each other. Their home life is of a really idyllic nature. Mrs.

New Fashions Set at Wedding of Miss Weston and Virgil Haggart

Low cut necks flouting the redoubtable Jenny, and bustles which are edging their way demurely into favor, were given added impetus in the fashion by the gowns worn in the wedding of Miss Mildred Weston and Virgil Haggart last evening. Rev. Edwin Hart Jenks performed the ceremony at the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Weston, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Weston, was unusually beautiful in a gown of chiffon velvet made on straight lines, beltless, and held at the hip line with rhinestone ornaments on either side. The neck was cut low and round. Her court train was of satin, with a foam of tulle cascading down it from a rose point and orange blossom head band. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids, brides' roses and lilies of the valley.

The first of the bride's maids to appear were Miss Frances Emerson of Evanston and Miss Jean Holtz of Burley, Idaho. Each wore gowns of lavender crepe brocade made without a waistline and drawn into a bustle bow at the back. A new feature of these gowns was the double neck line, one a low round one of the material, the other a silver ribbon tied across in the Jenny line. Silver bands bound their hair and they carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Following them were Mrs. Fred Raymond of Duluth and Mrs. Lawrence Penniman of Evanston, who were clad after the same fashion in yellow crepe brocade. They carried lavender bouquets.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Howard Martin of Sioux City, Ia. Mrs. Martin wore a bustle frock of primrose satin, the skirt beaded in seed pearls, and pearls and brilliants formed a bandeau in her hair. She carried lavender chrysanthemums. Her little daughter, Mildred, preceded the bride, dressed in ruffled taffeta in lavender shades and carrying a basket of lavender and yellow flowers.

Walter C. Johnson served Mr. Haggart as best man. The ushers included Dr. R. Allyn Moser, Charles Mattson, Wallace Spear and Howard Martin of Sioux City.

Before the ceremony Mrs. Charles Wells of Evanston sang "I Love You Truly" and Mrs. Louise Zabriskie played the bridal march.
Mr. and Mrs. Weston were hosts at the reception which followed the ceremony. Two hundred guests attended, among them Messrs. and Mesdames Carleton Matoun, Kirk Kingsbury, J. D. Utendorfer, Jules Martin and Miss Margaret Manley, all of Sioux City; the family of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Haggart, and Miss Clarice Haggart of St. Paul, Neb.; Mrs. L. G. Jones of Kansas City and A. S. Jones of Wichita, Kan.

Business Women to Sell Candy at

A candy booth in the lobby of the Brandeis theater will be conducted by members of the Omaha Business Women's club Monday evening in connection with the performance of "The Cat and the Canary," which the club is sponsoring on that evening.

Miss Blanche Karschner will be in charge of the booth assisted by the Misses Helen Collins, Doris Braden, J. Florence Holden, Eunice Jane Hilton, Ethel Kirby, Ruth Letour, Georgia McEneaney and Marie Scofield. The candy will also be sold in the theater between the acts.

J. R. Cain, who recently saw "The Cat and the Canary" in New York says of the play: "It is a mighty good play and in my judgment far exceeds either the 'Bat' or 'Whispering Wires.' The plot is very complicated and the mystery is not solved until the last." It contains lots of action and is chock full of surprises.

A Dutch treat party will include the Misses Cecile Lyon, Ella Hill, L. B. Patterson, Nona Robinson and Mary Krebs.

The clever posters for "The Cat and the Canary" seen in downtown windows were done by the Misses Hattie Pickard, Alvina Behrens and Beriah Lameroux, club members.

Box Parties for Nash-Jordan Recital.

Among those who will entertain box parties at the recital to be given by Frances Nash, pianist, and Mary Jordan, contralto, Sunday afternoon, October 28, at 4 o'clock, at the Brandeis theater, under auspices of the Duchesne college alumnae, are Mrs. Frank Knoch, Mrs. George Brandeis and Fred Hamilton.
Many of the army set from Fort Crook and Fort Omaha are planning to attend.
